

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. Preface.

The present Handbook for Berlin, which corresponds with the sixteenth German edition, incorporates, in a much expanded and carefully revised form, information heretofore included in the Handbook for Northern Germany. Its chief object, like that of the Editor's other guides, is to render the traveller as nearly as possible independent of the services of guides and others and to enable him to employ his time, his money, and his energy to the best advantage.

Though Berlin does not compete in antiquity or historical interest with the other great European capitals, its position as the metropolis of the German empire and its wealth of art-treasures, both ancient and modern, invest it with high importance in addition to its special and characteristic interest as the greatest purely modern city in Europe. While devoting particular attention to the description of the imposing imperial and national edifices and of the great public collections, the Editor has not forgotten this last-mentioned phase, and has endeavoured to include as comprehensive a selection as possible of other objects of general interest for the cultivated traveller. No one is better aware than the Editor himself of the difficulty of securing absolute accuracy in a guide-book; and he will therefore gratefully welcome the continuance of those valuable corrections and suggestions with which travellers have long been in the habit of favouring him.

The utmost care has been bestowed upon the Maps and Plans. The subdivision of the large Plan of Berlin (at the end of the book) into three sections of different colours will be found materially to facilitate reference, as it obviates the necessity of unfolding a large sheet of paper at each consultation. The area shown on this plan coincides with that given in reduced scale on the Tramway Plan at p. 14, so that reference from one plan to the other presents no difficulty. The numbers appearing on the Tramway Plan correspond with the official numbers of the tramway-lines. A plan of the inner town on a larger scale has been added to the present edition.

The list of Hotels and Restaurants given in the Handbook comprises the most important establishments and many of humbler pretensions. Those which the Editor has reason to believe especially worthy of commendation in proportion to their charges are denoted by asterisks. The Editor has distributed these marks of commendation (the value of which is relative only) as fully and impartially as his knowledge warrants; but there are doubtless many equally deserving establishments among those not starred or even mentioned. The charges are stated in accordance with information supplied by the proprietors themselves.

To hotel-keepers, tradesmen, and others the Editor begs to intimate that a character for fair dealing towards travellers is the only passport to his commendation, and that advertisements of every kind are strictly excluded from his Handbooks. Hotel-keepers are also warned against persons representing themselves as agents for Baedeker's Handbooks.

I. BERLIN.

a. Railway Stations. Arrival and Departure.

Railway Stations. There are five TERMINUS RAILWAY STATIONS at Berlin, exclusive of the 'Stadtbahn' (see below). 1. Anhalt Station (Pl. G, 19), for Dresden, Leipzig, Halle (Austria, Bavaria, Thuringia, Frankfort on the Main). — 2. Potsdam Station (Pl. G, 19), for Potsdam, Magdeburg, Cassel, Cologne, and the Lower Rhine (junction with the 'Stadtbahn' at Potsdam). — 3. Lehrte Station (Pl. R, 18, 21), for all trains to Hamburg and slow trains to Lehrte, Hanover, Bremen, etc. (junction with the 'Stadtbahn' at Spandau). — 4. Stettin Station (Pl. R, 24), for Rostock (and Copenhagen), Stettin, and Dantsic (via Stargard). — 5. Görlitz Station (Pl. G, 32), for the Spreewald, Görlitz, and the Giant Mts. (junction with the 'Stadtbahn' at Nieder-Schöneeweide). — The following five STATIONS OF THE 'STADTBAHN' (see p. 12) are also used for distant traffic: 1. Charlottenburg Station (Pl. G, 4). — 2. Zoological Garden Station (Pl. G, 10). — 3. Friedrich-Strasse Station (Pl. R, 23; with the heaviest traffic). — 4. Alexander-Platz Station (Pl. R, 26). — 5. Silesian Station (Pl. R, 31). — The express trains from Hanover, Bremen, Cologne and all the trains from Nordhausen and Frankfort on the Main, from Königsberg, Posen, and Breslau arrive at these stations.

The Custom House Examination of registered luggage, arriving from abroad at the stations of the Stadtbahn or at the Stettin Station, takes place at the Friedrich-Strasse Station (daily 11-12 a.m.). — Head Custom House, Alt-Moabit 145.

Arrival. — Cabs are to be found on the S. side of the stations of the Stadtbahn (except at Charlottenburg and Alexander-Platz), and on the arrival (right) side at the terminus stations (except at the Görlitz Station where they are straight in front). A policeman, posted at the exit from each railway-station, hands the traveller a metal ticket with the number of a cab, on his stating whether he wishes a motor-cab ('Auto'), a cab ('Droschke'), or a luggage cab ('Gepäck-Droschke'). Travellers with luggage should entrust the summoning of the vehicle to the porter (20 pf. for luggage up to 55 lbs., 10 pf. for every 55 lbs. more). Cab fares see p. 23; in addition to the fare a charge of 25 pf. is made for the ticket securing House numbers in Berlin generally begin at the end of the street nearest where the old town-gates originally stood, and thence run consecutively along the right-hand side of the street, returning on the left-hand side, so that the highest number is opposite to No. 1.

the cab. 'Gepäck-Droschken' are necessary if luggage is heavy (over 100 kilog. or 220 lbs.); see p. 23. — Most of the TRAMWAYS stop near the stations: Zoological Garden, see p. 179; Friedrich-Strasse, see p. 145 (a few min. from the station); Alexander-Platz, see p. 153; Silesian Station, see p. 169; Anhalt Station, see p. 128; Potsdam Station, see p. 127; Lehrte Station, see p. 140; Stettin Station, see p. 167; Görlitz Station, see p. 171. — Hotels near the Railway Stations, see pp. 4, 5.

Travellers may avoid the necessity of taking a cab by having their luggage delivered by the Parcel Delivery Co. (Berliner Gepäck-Be-förderung; offices at all the large stations). Forms for registered luggage may be obtained from the guard of the train during the journey, and after filling these up the traveller gives up his luggage-ticket in exchange for a receipt. Luggage reaching Berlin between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. should be delivered within 3 or 4 hrs., luggage arriving after 7 p.m. is delivered before 10 a.m. the next day. Tariff: small luggage (up to 20 lbs.) 30, two pieces 40, three 60 pf., etc.; trunks up to 20 lbs. 30, 20-40 lbs. 50, 40-60 lbs. 70, 80-100 lbs. 90 pf.; every 20 lbs. more, 10 pf. — The Parcel Delivery Co. (head-office Luisen-Str. 37) conveys luggage to the station on receiving 5 working hours' notice, together with an exact statement of the address of the sender, the number and approximate weight of the packages, and the station and the hour of departure. Luggage for trains starting between 10 p.m. and 10 a.m. is sent for between 6 and 8 the previous evening. Tariff see above; additional charge 20 pf.

Tourist Agencies, where railway tickets also may be obtained: Ämtliches Reisebureau at the Potsdam Station (open 8-7, Sun. 9-1); Office of the Hamburg-America Linie (agency of the American Express Co.), Unter den Linden 8; Norddeutscher Lloyd, Unter den Linden 5-6; Weltreisebureau Union (agents for Thomas Cook & Son, London), Unter den Linden 5-6 and at the Hôtel Kaiserhof; Al. Peters (booking-office for the American Line, Dominion Line, Hook of Holland Route, Holland America Line, Red and White Star Line, etc., Unter den Linden 6 (reading-room, see p. 35); Brasch & Rothenstein, Unter den Linden 39 (office of the Flushing Route), Mohren-Str. 33, etc.; the International Reisebureau of the Sleeping Car Co., Unter den Linden 57, 58; the Office of the Austrian State Railways, Unter den Linden 47 (also agency of the Austrian Lloyd). Railway tickets may be obtained also at several of the first-class hotels (see below). — Internationales öffentliches Verkehrsbureau (Public Enquiry Office; no tickets sold), Unter den Linden 14 (open 9.30-6).

b. Hotels. Boarding Houses. Furnished Apartments.

For alphabetical list see Index. — List of Streets, p. 229.

In the following list of Hotels mention is first made of the large establishments of the highest class, all of which are comfortably fitted up, with steam or hot-water heating, electric light, lifts, baths, and first-class restaurants, and with proportionate charges. The hotels in or near the Linden are the most conveniently situated for tourists.

e. Stadtbahn and Ringbahn. Electric Elevated and Underground Railway.

Comp. Plans opposite the title-page and at p. 14, and the Map at p. 187.

The Stadtbahn, or City Railway, constructed in 1874-82, is 10 M. long and stretches through the N. half of the inner city from Westend-Charlottenburg on the W. to Stralau-Rummelsburg on the E. It is connected with the Ringbahn, dating from 1867-77, which runs through the N. suburbs and makes a wide sweep round the S. portion of the city. Trains run on the Stadtbahn from about 5 a.m. till after midnight at intervals of 2-5 minutes, and on the Ringbahn every 10-20 minutes. There are only second and third class carriages. Fares for any 5 stations 15 and 10 pf. (monthly tickets 4 M 70 and 3 M 10); beyond that distance 30 and 20 pf. (monthly tickets 7 M 40 and 4 M 60). No time should be lost in taking seats, as the stoppages are extremely brief. Notice-boards indicate the point at which second-class carriages come to a stand, the name of the station, and the direction in which the trains run. Passengers accidentally carried past their destination may return to it without extra charge on applying at once to the station-master.

The STADTBahn has four lines of rails, of which the two northmost are used for the intramural traffic and by the Ringbahn trains (see below), while the two southmost are traversed by main-line trains (see p. 1; special entrances). All four tracks are used by the suburban trains. The stations are (from W. to E.): Charlottenburg (Pl. G, 4), Savigny-Platz (Pl. G, 7), Zoologischer Garten (Pl. G, 10), Tiergarten (Pl. R, 10), Bellevue (Pl. R, 14), Lehrter Bahnhof (Pl. R, 18, 21), Friedrich-Strasse (Pl. R, 23), Börse (Pl. R, 26), Alexander-Platz (Pl. R, 26), Jannowitz-Brücke (Pl. R, 28), Schlesischer Bahnhof (Pl. R, 31), Warschauer-Strasse (Pl. G, 34), and Stralau-Rummelsburg (Pl. G, 37, 40).

SUBURBAN TRAINS OF THE STADTBahn. On the S. tracks the trains run (from the chief stations) eastwards to Strausberg (p. 210), with junction for Rüdersdorf (p. 205); westwards to Spandau (p. 202). — On the N. tracks they run (from all stations) eastwards to Nieder-Schöneweide, with correspondence for Grünau (p. 205), or to Königs-Wusterhausen (p. 206), and by Lichtenberg (p. 169) to Kaulsdorf; also to Erkner (p. 205; junction for Fürstenwalde); westwards to Grunewald (p. 186). — Suburban trains also run from the Potsdam Station viâ Potsdam to Wildpark or Werder (comp. p. 202); from the Wannsee Station (Pl. G, 19) viâ Schlachtensee and Wannsee to Potsdam (comp. p. 188); from the Ring-Bahnhof (Pl. G, 19; to the left beyond the Potsdam Station) to Gross-Lichterfelde (p. 188) and Zossen; from the Stettin Station to Tegel, Oranienburg, and Bernau; and from the Lehrte Station to Nauen.

Tickets by suburban trains are cheaper than tickets to the same place by main-line trains. On Sun. afternoons in summer the suburban trains are usually overcrowded, and in the evening it is almost impossible to find a seat at stations near Berlin in trains returning to the capital.

The RINGbahn consists of the 'Nord-Ring' and the 'Süd-Ring', both mostly used in connection with the Stadtbahn (stations, see above), from which they diverge at Stralau-Rummelsburg (Pl. G, 37, 40; comp. above) and Charlottenburg (Pl. G, 4). — The NORD-RING (11 M.) passes the following stations: Frankfurter Allée (Pl. R, 40; p. 169), Zentral-Viehhof (cattle-market; Pl. R, 38; p. 169), Landsberger Allée (Pl. R, 39), Weissensee (Pl. B, 33, 36; p. 169), Prenzlauer Allée (Pl. B, 32), Schönhauser Allée (Pl. 29; p. 168), Gesundbrunnen (Pl. B, 23; p. 168), Wedding (Pl. B, 17, 20; p. 167), Putlitz-Strasse (Pl. B, 15), Beussel-Strasse (Pl. B, 12; p. 167), Jungfernheide (Pl. R, 3), and Westend (Pl. R, 2; p. 183). — The SÜD-RING (13½ M.) stops at the stations of Halensee (Pl. G, 2; p. 186), Schmargendorf, Wilmersdorf-Friedenau (pp. 183, 187), Ebers-Strasse, Schöneberg (Pl. G, 18; p. 175), Pape-Str., Tempelhof (p. 174), Hermann-Strasse, Rixdorf (p. 173), and Treptow (Pl. G, 38; p. 171). Carriages are changed at Schöneberg; the trains proceed or come from the Potsdamer Ring-Bahnhof (Pl. G, 19; p. 127).

The Electric Elevated and Underground Railway, constructed in 1896-1902 by Siemens & Halske (p. 184) and extended in 1907-8, traverses the S. quarters of Berlin from E. to W. The underground part begins at the Nollendorf-Platz and runs thence to the W. to Charlottenburg. From the central junction a branch line, descending a steep incline, leads to the underground platform at the Spittelmarkt. — The regulations are similar to those of the Stadtbahn. There is no 1st class; tickets on the main line, 2nd class, 15-45, 3rd class 10-30 pf.

1. SPITTELMARKT (Pl. R, 25)-CHARLOTTENBURG, every 5 min.; stations: Hausvogtei-Platz (Pl. R, 22; comp. p. 160), Friedrich-Strasse (Pl. R, 22; access also from the Gendarmen-Markt, p. 121), Kaiserhof (Pl. R, 22; access also from the Wilhelm-Str., comp. p. 123), Leipziger Platz (Pl. G, R, 19; access also to the left in front of the Potsdam Station, comp. p. 127), Bülów-Strasse (Pl. G, 17; p. 175), Nollendorf-Platz (Pl. G, 13; p. 176), Wittenberg-Platz (Pl. G, 13), Zoological Garden (Pl. G, 10; adjoining the Stadtbahnhof, p. 12), Knie (Pl. R, 7; comp. p. 184), Bismarck-Strasse (Pl. R, 4), Wilhelms-Platz (Pl. R, 5). — From Bismarck-Strasse station an underground branch leads W. viâ stations Sophie-Charlotte-Platz (Pl. R, 1) and Kaiserdamm (Pl. R, 1) to the Reichskanzler-Platz (Westend; Pl. beyond R, 1); every 10 min. — To the S. of Nollendorf-Platz station begins the new SCHÖNEBERG UNDERGROUND LINE now under construction (comp. p. 175). From the Wittenberg-Platz in future will start the Wilmersdorf line (p. 183) and a loop-line viâ the Kurfürstendamm to the Uhland-Strasse.

2. SPITTELMARKT-WARSCHAUER BRÜCKE, every 10 min. As in No. 1 to the Leipziger Platz, then viâ Möckern-Brücke (Pl. G, 20), Hallesches Tor (Pl. G, 23; p. 172), Prinzen-Strasse (Pl. G, 26), Kottbuser Tor (Pl. G 28, 29), Oranien-Strasse (Pl. G 34, 32; Görlitz Station, see p. 171), Schlesisches Tor (Pl. G, 34; p. 171), Stralauer Tor (Pl. G, 34) to Warschauer Brücke (Pl. G, 34; Stadtbahnhof Warschauer Strasse, see p. 12).

3. WARSCHAUER BRÜCKE-ZOOLOGICAL GARDEN, every 5 min.; as far as Möckern-Brücke as in line 2; thence to the Bülów-Strasse, etc., as in line 1.

f. Electric Tramways.

The various lines of the Berlin Tramway Co. (Grosse Berliner Strassenbahn-Aktien-Gesellschaft) are divided into groups and numbered or designed by large initials. The numbers and letters shewn in the list below and on the opposite plan correspond with these official numbers. A few lines which have no numbers are denoted at p. 22 by small letters. On certain busy routes extra cars are run, marked with an E. beneath the route-number; these are not in our list. Cars run every $7\frac{1}{2}$ min. or oftener except when otherwise indicated. Fare 10 pf.; 10-20 pf. on certain lines. Monthly ticket for one line $7\frac{1}{2}$, for two lines 10, all lines (except a-h) 30 M.

The lines radiating from the chief points of intersection will be found specially mentioned in our description of the city.

k. Post, Telegraph, and Telephone Offices.

The addresses of the nearest post-offices, etc., are given on the letter-boxes and advertising-pillars. Inquiry Office for all postal matters, König-Str. 61. Official postal guide ('Postbuch') for Berlin and neighbourhood, 50 pf.

Post Offices. The CENTRAL POST OFFICE is at Spandauer-Str. 19-24 (Pl. R, 26; p. 151). The town is divided into nine postal districts, denoted by letters, C, N, NO, O, etc. (comp. the list of streets, p. 229). Letters for Berlin should contain the district-initial on their address and, if possible, also the number of the post-office by which they are delivered. There are 113 post-offices and branch-offices, almost all of which have telegraph, pneumatic post, and telephone offices. Parcels are not received by the branch-offices. The most important post-offices are the following: C1, Hof-Postamt, Spandauer-Str. 19-24; C2, Heiligegeist-Str. 24-33; letters to be called for ('Postlagernd' or 'Poste Restante'), when not addressed to any particular post-office, are distributed here. Then, N3, Paket-Postamt (Parcel Post Office), Oranienburger-Str. 70-72; NW 7, Dorotheen-Str. 23-24; W 8, Tauben-Str. 8-9; SW 12, Zimmer-Str. 27; SW 19, Beuth-Str. 18-21; C 25, Am Königsgraben 17; and the offices at the six chief railway stations (Anhalt, Potsdam Lehrte, Stettin, Silesia, and Görlitz). The post-offices are open from 7 (in winter from 8) a.m. to 8 p.m. (branch-offices from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m.); for parcels till 7 p.m.; on Sundays and holidays the district offices are open from 7 (in winter 8) to 9 a.m., and 12 to 1 p.m., the branch-offices remainin-closed. The postage for letters within the city and its neighbour-hood is 5 pf., for post-cards also 5 pf.; for other parts of Germany 10 and 5 pf.; for abroad 20 and 10 pf. Parcels from abroad are examined by custom-house officers at Ritter-Str. 7, Kloster-Str. 76, Köthener-Str. 28, or Schiffbauerdamm 22, according to the district of the city in which the addressee lives.

A system of Pneumatic Tubes (Rohrpost) also exists for the rapid transmission of letters and post-cards from one part of Berlin to another (including Charlottenburg). Letters (30 pf.), which must not exceed a certain size and weight, or post-cards (25 pf., reply post-cards 50 pf.) intended for transmission by this service must be marked 'Rohrpost' in the upper left-hand corner of the address. Post-offices with pneumatic service (open from 7 or 8 a.m. till 10 p.m.) are distinguished by a red lamp (comp. above). Letters and post-cards sent by this service reach their destination in 1-2 hrs., but only when posted at a pneumatic post-office.

Telegraph Offices. Central Office (Pl. R, 22), Oberwall-Str. 4a (p. 160), and over 80 branch-offices, generally in connection with the above-named post-offices. The Central Office, that at Goethe-Str. 3 (Charlottenburg), and the offices at the six chief railway stations (see above) are open day and night; the offices at the General Post Office, Exchange, and a few others, from 7 or 8 a.m. till 10 p.m.; the remainder, from 7 or 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. Telegrams within Berlin cost 3 pf. per word (minimum 30 pf.), to other parts of Ger-many 5 pf. (minimum 50 pf.). Telegrams to Great Britain 15 pf.

(minimum 80 pf.), to the United States and Canada from 1 M 5 pf. to 1 M 75 pf., to British India 2 M 60 pf. per word, etc.

Telephone Offices (open 7 a.m. till 10 p.m.) at Französische-Str. 33 b and c (p. 160; head-office) and the above-named post-offices, where lists of subscribers to the 'Telephonic Exchange' are provided. Fee for 3 min. conversation within the city, 10 pf.; environs, 20 pf.; for longer distances, 20 pf. - 2 M.

1. Parcel Delivery Co. Commissionnaires.

The Berliner Paketfahrt-Aktien-Gesellschaft (Starke & Co.; office: Berlin S., Ritter-Str. 98-99) delivers parcels in the town and suburbs at a moderate charge. The numerous offices are recognisable by red signs. As to luggage to be conveyed to the station, see p. 2.

Commissionnaires (Dienstmänner): for parcels up to 11 lbs. (5 kg.) and for letters and messages taking not more than 20 min., 30 pf., and 10 pf. for every additional 10 min.; for parcels of 11-55 lbs. (5-25 kg.), up to 20 min. 60 pf., and 15 pf. for every further 10 min. Commissionnaires with bicycles: for 1 M. (1.6 km.) 30 pf., with a parcel, 40 pf.; and 10 or 15 pf. for every further $\frac{1}{2}$ M. (800 m.). — The charge should be arranged beforehand when possible; and it is safer always to demand the porter's number.

The Berlin Messenger Boy Company undertakes messages of every kind. Stations: Bayreuther-Str. 38 (head office), Unter den Linden 23 (Passage, shop No. 1), König-Str. 1 (Kurfürsten-Brücke), Leipziger-Str. 46-49 (Tietz), etc. Telephone Central Office: Amt VI, 9783. Fee: messengers on foot, one hour 60 pf., with bicycle 80 pf.

m. Police.

The address of the nearest police-station is given on each advertising-pillar.

HEAD POLICE OFFICE (Polizei-Präsidium), Alexander-Platz 5-6 (Pl. R, 29; p. 153). The Passport Office is at Eingang IV, adjoining the Stadtbahn (office hours 8-3). On the third floor at the same address is the Einwohner-Meldeamt, where the address of any resident in Berlin may be obtained for a fee of 25 pf. The Office for Public Conveyances ('Verkehrs-Commissariat') is at Eingang II in the Alexander-Str. (complaints are received daily 8-4 in room 80). — All strangers arriving in Berlin must be reported at the police-office by their landlord within six days. — The 111 police-offices are open day and night.

Lost Property Offices: of the Police, especially for articles left in cabs, at the Polizei-Präsidium, Eingang II, Room 79 (9-1 on week-days; a list of articles that have been found is posted up); of the Railways at the Silesian Station, N. Arch 10 (8-3 on week-days) and at the terminus stations (p. 1; after the eighth day at the Silesian Station only); of the Elevated Railway at Köthener-Str. 12 (10-4 on week-days); of the Tramways at Leipziger-Platz 14 (10-4 on week-days).

n. Theatres. Concerts.

Theatres. Plans may be consulted in the Berlin 'Adressbuch', or Directory. Performances at the royal theatres and the Deutsches Theater begin at 7.30 p.m., at all the others generally at 8 p.m. Weekly repertoire in the daily papers. Seats may be procured in advance at the box offices or at the Invalidentank, Unter den Linden 24 (9-4.30; on Sun. 9-10 and 12-2); at Wagner's, Markgrafen-Str. 72; at Wertheim's (p. 31; 1st floor), at the Café Bauer (p. 11), and at the Kaufhaus des Westens (p. 31; the four last-mentioned not for the royal theatres). In winter Sunday afternoon performances at reduced prices are given at most of the private theatres.

v. A Week in Berlin.

A fair knowledge of Berlin may be gained in a single week. The most important places and objects of interest in the city are to be found in the space enclosed between the Tiergarten to the W., the Alexander-Platz to the E., the Spree to the N., and the Leipziger-Strasse to the S. A fine day should be devoted to Potsdam (comp. p. 190).

1ST DAY. Walk through Unter den Linden from the Brandenburg Gate (p. 55) to the Lustgarten, visiting the Arsenal (p. 60) and the Royal Palace (p. 65) on the way. Then drive past the Old and New Museums (pp. 72, 79) and the National Gallery (p. 84), cross the Friedrichs-Brücke, and proceed via the Burg-Str. (Exchange, p. 154) and Kaiser Wilhelm-Str. to the Alexander-Platz (p. 152). Thence follow the König-Str. (inspection of the Rathaus, with the view from its tower, p. 152), the Kurfürsten-Brücke (p. 71), and the Schloss-Platz (p. 70) to the National Monument to Emperor Wil- liam I. (p. 70). Crossing the Werdersche-Markt (p. 159) and the Gendarmen-Markt (p. 121), take the Friedrich-Str. and Mohren-Str. to the Wilhelm-Platz (p. 123) and thence the Wilhelm-Str. and Leipziger-Str. to the Potsdamer-Platz (p. 127), and proceed by the Bellevue-Str. to the Sieges-Allée (p. 141). Lastly, walk through the last to the Reichstag Building (p. 136) and the Bismarck Monument (p. 139).

2ND DAY. Emperor Frederick Museum (p. 94). In the afternoon (before 6 p.m.) visit the Emperor William Memorial Church (p. 182) and the Mausoleum at Charlottenburg (p. 185).

3RD DAY. Arsenal (p. 60), Cathedral (p. 64), Old and New Museums (pp. 72, 79). Drive to the Kreuzberg (p. 173).

4TH DAY. Reichstag Building (9 a.m., comp. p. 136), Palace of Emperor William I. (p. 57), National Gallery (p. 84). In the afternoon the Exhibition Park (p. 141).

5TH DAY. Museum of Industrial Art (p. 132) and Ethnographical Museum (p. 128). Drive through the Tiergarten Quarter (p. 175) and walk through the S. part of the Tiergarten (p. 178). Zoological Garden (p. 179).

6TH DAY. Hohenzollern Museum (p. 146) and Natural History Museum (p. 163). In the afternoon to the suburb of Grunewald (p. 186) and excursion to the Kaiser-Wilhelm-Turm (p. 187).

7TH DAY. Rathaus (interior and ascent of tower, p. 151), Märkisches Museum (p. 155). In the afternoon, Botanical Garden at Dahlem (p. 188) and walk thence to the Grunewald Lakes (p. 186).

8TH DAY. Potsdam (p. 190). The first fine day should be devoted to this excursion, without which a complete impression of Berlin can scarcely be obtained.

w. Hints for Cyclists.

Cyclists resident in Berlin must be provided with a permit (to be obtained from the district police-authorities), but for a short visit that is not necessary. The rule of the road in Germany is the reverse of that in England; riders keep to the right side of the street in meeting, and to the left in overtaking traffic.

In Berlin the following streets are closed to cyclists, but may be crossed: Unter den Linden (including the Pariser-Platz and the Lustgarten), Friedrich-Strasse (from the Leipziger-Str. to the station of the Stadtbahn), Leipziger-Strasse (including the Spittel-Markt and the Potsdamer-Platz), and Potsdamer-Strasse (from the Potsdamer-Platz to the Potsdamer-Brücke).

The business offices for Section 20 of the Deutsche Radfahrer-bund are at Berlin S.W., Wilhelm-Str. 15 (9-5).

Bicycles cannot be sent through the town by the Stadtbahn or Ringbahn. The following regulations are in force as to the transport of unpacked machines by rail in the suburbs and on the Berlin-Tegel-Kremmen line. The machines must be presented at the luggage-office not later than $\frac{1}{4}$ hr. before the departure of the train; the bicycle ticket (30 or 20 pf.) may be taken either here or at the ticket-office. For the convenience of those who wish personally to see their machines into the van, there are special despatching offices at the Friedrich-Str. Station (entrance Georgen-Str.) and at the Silesian Station (E. entrance). The journey may not be broken.

Several bicycle excursions are indicated on pp. 192-210. For further information see E. Richter's 'Wegweiser durch die Mark Brandenburg'.

Berlin (110-160 ft. above the sea-level; 13° 23' 54'' E. long., 52° 30' 17'' N. lat.), the capital of Prussia, the residence of the German Emperor, and the seat of the imperial government as well as of the highest Prussian authorities, contains upwards of 3,000,000 inhab.†, and thus occupies the third place among the cities of Europe. Lying in a sandy plain about halfway between the S.W. and N.E. extremities of the Empire (465 M. from Mülhausen in Alsace, and 405 M. from Memel), equidistant from the mid-German mountains and the sea, and connected with N.E. Germany and Poland by the navigable Spree, it is at the same time an important centre of the railway-system of Germany, one of the foremost seats of commerce in the country, and perhaps the greatest manufacturing town in continental Europe. The staple commodities of its trade are grain, spirits, and wool; the principal branches of its industry are iron-founding, the construction of machinery, locomotives, and railway-carriages, and the manufacture of arms, chemicals and textiles, furniture, china, carpets, linoleum, linen, household and fancy goods, and articles of clothing, the cheaper qualities of which last find their way to all parts of the world. The money-market of Berlin is also of great importance, and the city has of late taken a leading place in the utilization of electric power and the improvement of lighting facilities.

The boundaries of the city now enclose an area of about 25 sq. M. The oldest quarters are Alt-Berlin (on the right bank of the Spree, bounded by the Ringbahn), Alt-Kölln (on an island in the river),

† The census of Berlin proper for Dec. 1905 gave its population as 2,035,815, of whom about 83 per cent were Protestants, 11 per cent Roman Catholics, and 5 per cent Jews, and this number had increased to upwards of 2,100,000 in Dec., 1907. To this total must, however, be added about 1,000,000 inhab. of those suburbs which, though not yet incorporated, really form an integral part of the city. There are 24,000 Poles in Berlin, of whom 4,000 are not German subjects. Of other foreigners there are ca. 28,000 from Austria-Hungary (4600 Hungarians), ca. 1800 Italians, 3000 English and Americans, 4400 Russians, 2700 Scandinavians, 1400 Swiss, 700 Dutch, 700 Roumanians, 600 French, etc. — The Garrison of 23,000 men consists of the 2nd, 3rd, and 4th regiments of Foot Guards, the 1st, 2nd, and 4th Grenadier Guards, the Fusilier and Cuirassier Guards, the 1st and 2nd Dragoon Guards, the 2nd Lancer Guards (Uhlans), the 1st and a part of the 3rd Field Artillery Guards, the battalions of Pioneer and Train Guards, the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd Railway Regiments, the 1st Telegraph Battalion, etc. Berlin is the seat not only of the Commander-in-Chief of the Mark of Brandenburg, but also of the 1st Army Inspector, the Chief Commander of the Guards, and the Commander of the 3rd Army Corps. — The 3rd Grenadier Guards are quartered in Charlottenburg, and a battalion of Riflemen of the Guards in Gross-Lichterfelde.

Friedrichs-Werder (on the left bank of the Spree, between the Arsenal and the Spittel-Markt), and Neu-Kölln (the Wall-Strasse and its neighbourhood). These form the heart of the city and were originally enclosed by fortifications. Around them in the 17th and 18th cent. rose an inner zone of new quarters, bounded until 1868 by a customs-wall 9 M. in length (almost corresponding with the present 'Stadtring' of the electric tramway, p. 14): the Dorotheenstadt (stretching from the Spree to the Behren-Strasse), Friedrichstadt (to the S. of the Behren-Strasse), Luisenstadt (to the E. of the Linden-Strasse), etc. To these a large number of suburbs now incorporated in the town were added during the 19th century.

The government of the city is shared by the Royal Police Department, the Civic Magistracy, and the Town Council, under a Chief Burgomaster and a Burgomaster. The magistracy consists of 34 members, of whom 18 are salaried. There are 144 town-councillors. The municipal revenues for 1910 were estimated at 15 millions sterling. — Berlin is divided into six electoral districts for the Reichstag (Imperial Diet), and four for the Landtag (Prussian Chamber of Deputies), in the latter of which it is represented by nine deputies.

History. Berlin first appears in history in the early part of the 13th cent., when it was already a double town of some importance (Berlin and Kölln). In all probability the original Wendish settlements had been taken possession of by German colonists at the end of the preceding century. The name also is doubtless of Wendish origin, and its connection with the bear (Bär) which appears in the city arms is merely an etymological fancy of later date. The name of Kölln is mentioned for the first time in a document of 1237, that of Berlin in 1244, after which the town soon began to be regarded as one of the most considerable in the Mark, ranking with Brandenburg (p. 208), the residence of the Margraves. The two towns were united in 1307, and by their prudent policy during the troublous times of the 14th cent. raised themselves to a position of great importance. Berlin-Kölln even became the head of a confederation of towns of the Mark, which it represented in dealings with the Hanseatic League. Such a position, however, almost amounting to the independence of a free imperial town, could not be maintained against the might of the Hohenzollern family, who became masters of the Mark in 1415. In consequence of its unsuccessful opposition to Frederick 'with the Iron Tooth' (1440-70), the second Elector, the town was deprived of its privileges (1442, 1448), and a fortified castle was erected to keep it in check. Elector John Cicero (1486-99) made Berlin-Kölln his permanent abode, and since that period the fortunes of the town have been interwoven with those of the Hohenzollern family and their other dominions. In 1539 the townspeople and Joachim II. (1535-71) embraced the Reformed faith. This splendour-loving prince and his successor John George (1571-98) began the alteration and extension of the palace in the Renaissance style.

To FREDERICK WILLIAM, the 'Great Elector' (1640-88), the founder of the modern Prussian state, Berlin is chiefly indebted for its modern importance. He incorporated the settlement of Friedrichs-Werder with Berlin-Kölln, fortified the city on the Dutch system (1658-83), and founded the new town, which he named Dorotheenstadt in honour of his second wife. The forest which extended on this side of the town nearly as far as the Spree was now removed, and on its site was planted a double avenue of lime-trees, on each side of which gradually sprang up the handsome modern street named Unter den Linden (p. 56). Owing to the introduction of foreign settlers, particularly of French Protestant refugees (after the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes in 1685), the population of the town increased to 20,000. It now became the seat of an independent industrial activity, while the Court zealously promoted artistic enterprise and strove to embellish the town, chiefly with the aid of Dutch architects. The nucleus of the royal library and art-collections was also formed at this period.

Frederick III. (1688-1713), who became KING FREDERICK I. in 1701, erected the Friedrichstadt, constituted Berlin a royal residence, and united the administration of the five quarters of the city. In 1694 he founded the Academy of Art, and in 1700 the Academy of Science, the first president of the latter being the celebrated Leibnitz; while in the province of architecture he was fortunate in obtaining the services of Andreas Schlüter (b. at Hamburg in 1664, d. at St. Petersburg in 1714), the greatest artist of his period. First employed as a sculptor on the Lange Brücke, in the Royal Palace (p. 65), and on the Arsenal (p. 60), begun by J. A. Nering (d. 1695), Schlüter afterwards erected the Palace of Charlottenburg (p. 184), and in 1699 began the reconstruction of the Royal Palace, which was not completed until long after his death. He was also the sculptor of the Equestrian Statue of the Great Elector (p. 71) in 1703. In 1710 the population, which had been steadily augmented by French and Walloon immigrants, was 61,000.

Under the patriarchal government of FREDERICK WILLIAM I. (1713-40) the city made no less substantial, though less striking progress. This monarch completed the royal palace, enlarged the Friedrichstadt and the Dorotheenstadt, began to pull down the fortifications, and added the N. and E. suburbs to the town, enclosing them with the customs-wall mentioned on p. 46. All these operations, however, were conducted in so economical a spirit, that the buildings are generally insignificant in appearance. In 1740 the population had increased to 91,000, including 2000 Bohemian Protestants.

FREDERICK THE GREAT (1740-86) was unwearied in his efforts to extend and embellish his capital, though he seldom made it his residence. In G. W. von Knobelsdorff (1699-1753) he found an architect who was eminently capable of executing his plans. Thus in 1743 he erected the Opera House (p. 59) in a noble, almost classical style, which presented a marked contrast to the capricious and degraded taste of the age. As the great monarch, however, had a strong predilection for designing his new buildings in person and for materially altering the designs submitted to him, he found the less independent successors of Knobelsdorff more subservient to his wishes. The Palace of Prince Henry (now the University; p. 58), the Church of St. Hedwig (p. 59), the Library (p. 59), and the Domed Towers in the Gendarmen-Markt (p. 121) are the principal edifices of this period. Frederick also presented his citizens and officials with several hundred buildingsites, but he characteristically insisted that, however modest the houses erected on them might be, they should present palatial façades towards the street. Commerce and industry (banking, maritime commerce, the manufacture of china, silk-culture, weaving) were fostered; the Academy of Sciences, under the auspices of French savants, awoke to new life; and the collections of art were materially increased. At the same time a new intellectual era began to dawn, and to this period belong the authors Lessing (1729-81), Moses Mendelssohn (1729-86), and Nicolai (1733-1811), and the painter and engraver Chodowiecki (1726-1801). Although Berlin suffered severely during the Seven Years' War, having been twice occupied by foreign troops (1757 and 1760), the population had increased by the end of Frederick's reign to 145,000.

Under FREDERICK WILLIAM II. (1786-97), Frederick's successor, the population increased much more rapidly, and in the year 1800 it amounted to no fewer than 172,000. Considerable progress was also made in the province of art. In 1793 K. G. Langhans (1733-1808), following the example of Knobelsdorff, erected the Brandenburg Gate (p. 55) in the classical style, while G. Schadow's Quadriga, with which it was adorned, achieved a new triumph in the province of sculpture. The architects Gentz and Gilly also adopted the classical style, while J. A. Carstens, a native of Schleswig, who began his career in 1788 as professor at the Berlin Academy, inaugurated the revival of classical taste in painting. The theatre, formerly devoted to French plays, was now dedicated to the national German drama, which was zealously cultivated from the year 1796 onwards under the auspices of Iffland (d. 1814).

The Napoleonic disasters by which Berlin was overtaken during the reign of FREDERICK WILLIAM III. (1797-1840) presented only a temporary obstacle to the progress of the city. The crushing impression produced by the defeat of the Prussian army in 1806 and by the French occupation of the city, which lasted till the end of 1808, was largely counterbalanced by the foundation of the University in 1809. After the establishment of peace in 1815, art, science, and commerce began to flourish anew. The university took the highest rank among the learned institutions of Germany; William and Alexander von Humboldt, Karl Ritter, Hegel, Savigny, Schleiermacher, Böckh, Lachmann, and many other famous men lived and worked at Berlin; and the dramatic art also attained a high standard. At this period the most distinguished architect was Friedrich Schinkel (1781-1841), who was equally capable as a painter, as his sketches for the frescoes of the hall of the old museum testify (see p. 72); and many admirable buildings, both in the classical and the Gothic style, were erected by this great master in Berlin and the environs. It was his aim to build as the ancient Greeks would have built had they lived among us, and it was due to his teaching that the foundation-stone of a national artistic revival was laid. He was the architect of the Royal Guard House (1818; p. 60), the Royal Theatre (1821; p. 121), the Old Museum (1828; p. 72), the Academy of Architecture (1834; p. 159), and the Friedrichs-Werder Church (p. 160, in the Gothic style) at Berlin, of the Palaces of Babelsberg (p. 201), Gliencke (p. 200), and of Charlottenhof (p. 198), and the Church of St. Nicholas at Potsdam (p. 195), while his numerous designs exercised no inconsiderable influence on the architecture of other countries. Berlin architects long accounted it the highest honour to be reckoned among his pupils. As Schinkel reigned supreme at Berlin in the province of architecture, so did Chr. D. Rauch (1777-1857) in that of sculpture, eclipsing his senior, G. Schadow, and still more so his contemporary, Fr. Tieck. In him the hero-worship of the period of the wars of independence found an admirable illustrator, and portrait-sculpture now received a new impulse. Far inferior to these architects and sculptors were the painters of this period (Wach, K. Begas, Hensel, Klöver, K. Blechen, and F. Krüger), whose names are hardly known out of their native place.—The long years of peace in the latter part of this reign contributed materially to the external prosperity of Berlin. Commerce and industry, the latter stimulated by the exertions of Beuth, were greatly benefited by the construction of high-roads, the foundation of the Zollverein, and the abolition of the monopoly of the guilds; and the city now began to lose the official and garrison-like air with which it had hitherto been pervaded. In 1838 the railway to Potsdam was opened. From 201,000 in 1819 the population had in 1840 increased to 329,000.

During the following reign, that of FREDERICK WILLIAM IV. (1840-61), the cultivation of art seemed likely to progress far more rapidly. The favourable conditions of that monarch's reign were enhanced by the enthusiasm and refined artistic taste of the king himself, who often acted as his own architect. The prospect, however, was not entirely realized. The building of a cathedral, the king's favourite project, and of the royal burial-vault (Campo Santo) was never carried out; and although the architecture of the city was enriched by the completion of the New Museum, the dome of the palace, and numerous other edifices, most of them lack the imposing grandeur of Schinkel's creations. The leading architects of this period were F. A. Stüler (d. 1865), to whom most of the government-buildings were entrusted, Soller (d. 1853; St. Michael's Church; p. 170), K. F. Langhans (d. 1869; remodelling of the Opera House; p. 59), Strack (d. 1880; St. Peter's; p. 159), Knoblauch (d. 1865), and Hitzig (d. 1881), the last two chiefly eminent in the field of domestic architecture. — In the department of painting also the revival which had been anticipated from the presence of Cornelius (from 1841; d. 1867; see p. 91) and Kaulbach (d. 1874; p. 79) was never realized; while the originality of Ad. Menzel (p. 90) was not duly appreciated. To the labours of Rauch, on the other hand, whose masterpiece, the statue of Frederick the Great, is justly admired, and to those of his numerous pupils (Drake, Bläser, A. Wolff, Kiss, etc.), the art of sculpture was indebted for its high repute during this reign. — After the introduction of railways Berlin increased rapidly in importance as a commercial and industrial centre. In 1849 the population was 424,000, and in 1860 it had increased to 496,000.

During the reign of the EMPEROR WILLIAM I. (Prince Regent from 1858, King 1861-88) the prosperity of Berlin made still more rapid strides. In 1871, indeed, began that marvellous activity in industry and commerce which has obtained for Berlin a place among the great capitals of the world with a rapidity hitherto unknown except in the case of American towns. The population (826,000 in 1871, 1,000,000 in 1877, 1,500,000 in 1888) was gradually trebled, and by the end of the 19th cent., under the EMPERORS FREDERICK III. (1888) and WILLIAM II. (ascended the throne June 5th, 1888), it had risen to a sum total (including the suburbs) of 3,000,000.

ART also has revived, especially in the department of architecture. The Rathaus or Town Hall (begun in 1859; p. 151), the Exchange (p. 154), and the New Synagogue (p. 145) were the first of a long series of imposing edifices, in which a complete revolution in taste manifests itself. The prevailing tendency is to attach more importance to solidity and the artistic ornamentation of the interior, and to use colour more freely than formerly. Since 1870 the classic tradition of Schinkel has been succeeded by a strong leaning towards the Renaissance, though the Italian style proper has seldom been followed. The baroque-like forms of the later German Renaissance were found more congenial, and the pronounced baroque style associated with the name of Schlüter became ultimately the dominating feature in domestic architecture. The Building of the Imperial Diet (p. 136), by Wallot, marks a distinct advance in the standard of architectural forms. The Italian baroque style applied in the Cathedral (p. 64) produces a somewhat foreign impression. On the other hand mediæval styles of architecture have been most in vogue for the numerous churches built since 1890, especially the Romanesque style, which is well illustrated in the Emperor William Memorial Church (p. 182). More important than these examples of varying fashion in architecture are the creations produced by the specific demands of modern times, such as the railway stations with their enormous departure-halls (nearly all entirely rebuilt since 1870), the hospitals built on the pavilion system, and especially the palatial business-offices and warehouses. This last type of building, which has already changed the appearance of whole streets, was initiated by Kayser & von Groszheim in the Rosen-Strasse (p. 153), and carried to its height by Messel in Wertheim's Emporium (p. 125). Suburban villas show a leaning towards forms borrowed from England and the North of Europe. The Ministerial Offices (pp. 122-24), the Chamber of Deputies (p. 153), the Royal Stables (p. 70), the Emperor Frederick Museum (p. 94), and other palatial edifices usually follow the beaten track. Ludwig Hoffmann, the designer of the High Court of Justice at Leipzig, who has held the post of city-architect since 1896, has adopted a happy compromise, typically exemplified in the schools, hospitals, municipal offices, and baths built under his supervision. Lucas, Adler, Ende, Gropius, Raschdorff, Grisebach, and Ihne may also be mentioned among the creators of the most successful buildings of recent date. — In sculpture Siemering and Schaper adhered to the noble repose of the school of Rauch, while Reinhold Begas exhibits a pictorial style, with motives bordering on the baroque. The wholesale production of monumental statuary has rather expanded the field of sculpture than added to its intrinsic merit. Among the many younger masters may be mentioned Tuailon, Lederer, Eberlein, Herter, Brütt, Manzel, Lessing, and Uphues. — In painting the movement towards monumental art expected after the summoning of A. von Werner to Berlin in 1871 did not take place. Geselschap's paintings in the cupola of the Arsenal found no imitators. Of the members of the Society of Berlin Artists we may mention the painters L. Knaus, Paul Meyerheim, F. Skarbina (d. 1910), H. Herrmann, Hertel, Kallmorgen, A. Kampf, and the gifted portrait-painter Hugo Vogel. Max Liebermann started the 'Secession', an 'impressionist' movement emanating from the Munich society of that name, and he has been followed by Leistikow (d. 1908), Slevogt, L. Corinth, the sculptors Klimsch and Gaul, and many others among the younger artists.

Contemporaneously with the rise of architecture the APPLIED ARTS, which since the misfortunes of Napoleon's time had remained stationary, received a new impetus towards the picturesque style of the Renaissance. The increasing prosperity of the town after 1870 caused a demand for more luxurious and more artistic domestic interiors. The Museum of Industrial Art (p. 132), founded in 1868, made its influence strongly felt in this field. The increased activity in this branch of art is shown not only by the extraordinary multiplication of artistic upholsterers and the like, but also by the long list of excellent artists who devote themselves in whole or part to decorative art. Among these may be mentioned, besides architects, the painters Doepler, Koch, Lechter, and the sculptors O. Lessing, Wiedman, and Vogel. Chandeliers and artistic designs in brackets for gas and electric lighting are nowhere better made than in Berlin; while cabinet-making and carpet-weaving hold a high place among the industries of the city. The arts of the jeweller and the goldsmith, enamelling, and the manufacture of brass and bronze articles, are also carried on very successfully. The Royal Porcelain Factory is mentioned at p. 183.

As regards its General Aspect, Berlin suffers from the dead level of its site, and also, since three-quarters of its buildings are quite modern, from a certain lack of historical interest. The Church of St. Nicholas (p. 158), the Church of St. Mary (p. 153), the Kloster-Kirche (p. 158), and the Chapel of the Holy Ghost (p. 154) are practically the only buildings remaining of the old town (p. 46), which consisted of some narrow, crooked streets of dwelling-houses (pp. 152, 154), and a few larger cloisters and hospitals grouped round the two Town Halls. With improved means of locomotion the inner town has now gradually become the commercial nucleus of Berlin, like the City in London. Immense and palatial buildings have arisen, occupied from floor to ceiling by business-offices and warehouses alone. The approaches to the old town have now been widened, new ones have been built, and the Spree has been cleared of obstructions. The neighbourhood of the Royal Palace (p. 65) has been remodelled in harmony with the baroque forms of the palace itself. The Lustgarten, the Opern-Platz, and the Linden together form a broad and magnificent thoroughfare of the first rank, such as may possibly be paralleled in Vienna, but certainly not in either London or Paris. The street known as Unter den Linden (p. 55), which had hardly lived up to its ancient reputation, has again become one of the chief arteries of traffic. The old houses are disappearing, magnificent hotels and business-premises have sprung up, while the avenues of trees and the footpaths have been altered and modernized. The system on which the Friedrichstadt, to the S. of the Linden, is laid out, points to its origin in the mere will of the sovereign (p. 48). The regular streets crossing each other at right angles have not arisen from the needs of traffic; the few squares, such as the Gendarmen-Markt, have been arbitrarily inserted. Here also, however, the old houses have been replaced by magnificent new buildings, notably in the chief streets. The Behren-Strasse, the chief residence of the diplomats down to 1870, the Mauer-Strasse and the Kanonier-Strasse, all now contain numerous banking-houses and insurance-offices. The Spittel-Markt and the Hausvogtei-Platz (p. 161) are commercial centres, while the invasion of the residential quarters by business-premises progresses steadily towards the W. and already extends far up in the neighbourhood of the Leipziger-Strasse.

Neither the expansion of the town in the 18th century, nor the system of building adopted in 1860, was conducive to originality or variety in the different quarters. For miles the whole ground was systematically marked out, without any great consideration of the characteristic difference between the wide main arteries and such smaller side-streets as might be found necessary. The enormous prices of the large building-lots, which were generally very narrow in proportion to their depth, necessitated the building of high houses with narrow courts. All over the town we find on the same plots expensive residences in front and cheaper ones behind, thus causing a great mixture of all classes of the inhabitants, and great monotony of street effects. It is only within recent years that some of the suburbs have been laid out on the villa-system.

Just as in London, in Paris, and other capitals, so in Berlin, the upper classes tend on the whole to live at the W. end of the town, while the E. end is given over to factories and workshops. The SOUTH-EASTERN QUARTER is the seat of the more skilled industries, such as cabinet-making and the manufacture of articles in bronze and other metals. The place of the old building-yards and factories is gradually being taken by the so-called Höfe, huge, many-storied buildings, often enclosing three or four interior courts, and airy and well lighted from floor to ceiling, while the motive power for the machinery is furnished by steam or electricity. Similar erections serve as warehouses for industrial samples sent from every part of Germany. The permission to run their waste into the Spree being denied them, all the tanneries, fulling-mills, and dye-works situated on the river will soon be transplanted to the upper Spree at Köpenick (p. 204). Several imposing buildings, such as hospitals and churches, are to be seen more towards the centre of the town, and large barracks are found in the S. quarters, near the large parade-ground on the Tempelhofer Feld, which here marks the limit of the town's development. — The NORTH-EASTERN QUARTER is the seat of the woollen and clothing industries, and contains little that is worth seeing. The Friedrichshain (p. 154), however, forms a pleasant oasis here. Farther out is the Central Slaughter House, with its attendant industries.

The NORTHERN QUARTER was from 1860 to 1880 the seat of great machine-works and foundries. Since then the manufactories have been transferred to the N.W. as far as the neighbourhood of Tegel, and the buildings containing the Physical Science Schools and their collections now stand on the site of the old royal iron-foundry. In the extreme N. are the suburbs of Pankow and Nieder-Schönhausen. — The NORTH-WEST QUARTER is being given over more and more to barracks, courts-of-law, medical institutes, and hospitals. The district of Moabit is surrounded by them, while the Hansa Quarter (p. 178), which lies beyond the Spree and adjoins the park of Schloss Bellevue, can boast of several streets of high-class residences.

The WESTERN QUARTER is the favourite residence of the well-to-do inhabitants on account of its proximity to the Tiergarten. In place of the large park and small villas which once surrounded the woods, the aristocratic Tiergarten Quarter has arisen since 1850, with its handsome villas, gardens, and private roads, stretching on the S. to the Landwehr Canal and on the W. to the Zoological Garden. The gardens, however, are gradually disappearing before the encroachments of bricks and mortar, the ground to the S. of the canal being almost entirely built over. In the Potsdamer-Strasse the business life of the Leipziger-Strasse extends as far as Schöneberg. The Kurfürsten-Damm, a magnificent street beginning on the S. side of the Zoological Garden, runs to the S.W. to the Grunewald. The surroundings of the Grunewald (p. 184), which marches with Halensee, are given over to villas. To the N. the W. end of Berlin borders on Charlottenburg, to the S. on Schöneberg and Wilmersdorf, the space once intervening between the city and these suburbs being now entirely built over.

Almost every part of Berlin offers a pleasing picture. Its streets are a model of cleanliness, while a system of main drainage, radiating in twelve directions, carries off all its sewage to distant fields. There are few dark lanes or alleys even in the old part of the city. Nearly all the newer houses have balconies, gay in summer with flowers and foliage. The public squares are embellished with gardens, monuments, and fountains, and the newer churches also are generally surrounded by small pleasure-grounds. Numerous bridges are beautified with sculpture. The centres of traffic, such as the Jannowitz-Brücke, the Trebbiner-Strasse, the Lehrte Station, etc., with their network of railway-lines, and the navigation on the river offer scenes of remarkable animation.

1. Unter den Linden. Platz am Opernhaus.

The handsomest and busiest part of Berlin, which likewise comprises the most interesting historical associations, is the line of streets extending from the Brandenburg Gate to the Royal Palace, consisting of Unter den Linden (Pl. R, 20, 23), the Platz am Opernhaus, and the Platz am Zeughaus. The Linden, a street 198 ft. in width, deriving its name from the lime-trees (interspersed with chestnuts) with which it is planted, resembles the Boulevards of Paris, although inferior in length, and is flanked with handsome palaces, spacious hotels and restaurants, and attractive shops, which since the end of the 19th cent. have gradually replaced the older buildings (see p. 52). The Linden is to Berlin what Bond Street and Piccadilly are to London, the corner of the Friedrich-Strasse presenting a most animated picture, especially in the afternoon and evening. The length of the street from the Brandenburg Gate to the Monument of Frederick the Great is about $\frac{2}{3}$ M., to the palace-gate about 1 M.

The Brandenburg Gate (Pl. R, 20, 19), at the W. end of the Linden, forms the entrance to the town from the Tiergarten (see p. 136). It was erected in 1789-93 by K. G. Langhans in imitation of the Propylæa at Athens, and has five different passages, separated by massive Doric columns. The material is sandstone. The structure (85 ft. in height, including the figure, and 205 ft. in width) is surmounted by a Quadriga of Victory, in copper, by G. Schadow (1794). This was taken to Paris by the French in 1807, but restored in 1814. The iron cross (under the eagle) was added after its return. The gate is flanked with open colonnades for foot-passengers, built by Strack in 1868; the statue of Mars in that to the S. is by Schadow.

TRAMWAYS (pp. 14-22) run from the Brandenburg Gate and the Reichstag Building (No. 13 from the latter only) to the Anhalt Station (Nos. 1, 7, 14, 15, 21), Charlottenburg N, U, Dönhoff-Platz (6, 9, 13), Friedrich-Strasse Station (13, N, O, S, T, U), Gesundbrunnen (23), Görlitz Station (13), Hackescher Markt (52, 56), Halle Gate (1, 7, 14, 15, 21), Lehrte Station and Moabit (6, 7, 9, 13, 14, 15, 21, 23, 24), Museum Island (N, O, S, T, U), Neues Tor (50, 51, 57), Nollendorf-Platz (50, 51, 52, 56, 57), Opern-Platz (13), Potsdam Gate (1, 6, 7, 9, 14, 15, 21, 23, 24, 51, 52, 56, 57), Rixdorf (7, 15, 21), Silesian Station (1, 6, 9), Schöneberg (23, 24, 50, 51, 56, 57), Spittelmarkt (6, 9), Stettin Station (50, 51, 57), Zoological Gardens (O).

Between the gate and the beginning of the Linden lies the PARISER-PLATZ, so named after the victories of 1814, and embellished with pleasure-grounds. No. 4, on the S. side, is the Royal Academy of Art, established since 1907 in the former palace of Count Arnim. The Academy of Art was founded in 1694 under Frederick I. by Schlüter and Terwesten (exhibitions, see p. 37). No. 5, on the N. side, is the French Embassy.

UNTER DEN LINDEN, No. 1 (S. side), at the corner of the Pariser-Platz, is the Hôtel Adlon (p. 3), erected by Gause & Leibnitz in 1905-7 on the site of a palace built by Schinkel. On the right, beyond it, diverges the Wilhelm-Strasse (p. 122), continued on the N. by the Neue Wilhelm-Strasse (p. 162). No. 3, on the right, contains the offices of the Berliner Lokal-Anzeiger, where the latest telegrams and original illustrations of events of the day are exhibited. No. 4, with a sculptured frieze by Eberlein, is the office of the Minister of Religion and Education; Nos. 5 & 6 form the Hôtel Bristol (p. 3), by Gause; No. 7 is the palace of the Russian Embassy, erected by Knoblauch in 1840-41. On the N. side No. 75 is Schulte's Art Shop (p. 33), built in 1904-5 by Messel; No. 73 is occupied by the Minister of the Interior; and Nos. 57-58 are the premises of the International Railway Sleeping Car Co. (p. 2), by Berndt (1908).

At No. 68a, on the N. side, is the Aquarium* (Pl. R, 20, 23; entrance in the Schadow-Str.), founded by Prof. Brehm (adm., see p. 36; catalogue 50 pf.).

The collection is exhibited in a grotto-like corridor about 300 yds. in length, which occupies two floors. We first enter the Reptile House, which contains gigantic lizards and snakes of all kinds, some of the poisonous varieties attaining a length of 12 ft. The Geological Grotto, which comes next, contains birds (gulls, cockatoos). This is followed by the large Bird House, among the inmates of which the weaver-birds are specially worthy of notice. Here also are the cages of the anthropoid apes, and, to the left and right of the entrance, tanks containing salamanders, crocodiles, and tortoises. After these comes the Aquarium proper, with an excellent collection of fresh and salt water fish. Lastly we descend, passing breeding-tanks for salmon and trout on either side, to the lower rooms, containing other curiosities of the deep and a refreshment-bar.

Farther along the Linden, on the S. side (Nos. 17 & 18), is the Hôtel Schaurté (p. 3), adjoined to the S. in the Behren-Str. (passage) by the Metropol-Theater (p. 28).

Near the corner of the Friedrich-Str. is the entrance to the Passage or Kaiser-Galerie (Pl. R, 23, 22), built in 1869-73 by Kyllmann & Heyden, which leads to the corner of the Friedrich-Strasse and Behren-Strasse (p. 120). The arcade (400 ft. long, 24 ft. broad, and 40 ft. high) contains a café, shops, the Kaiser-Panorama (stereoscopic views; open 9 a.m. to 10 p.m., 20 pf.), and the Passage Panopticum (p. 39).

At the corner of the Friedrich-Strasse (comp. p. 120) are Kranzler's confectioner's shop. and (No. 25) Café Bauer (No. 26: p. 11).

TRAMWAYS from the Gendarmen-Markt (S. E.) see p. 121; from the corner of the Charlotten-Str. and Dorotheen-Str. (N. E.) see p. 145.

Beyond the Friedrich-Strasse, on the S. side (No. 35), is the building of the Diskonto-Gesellschaft, by Ende & Böckmann. — Opposite, on the N. side, is the new building of the — Royal Library (Pl. R, 23), under construction since 1903 from designs of Thne and Adams. The cost of the building, which is 557 ft. in length and 344 ft. in width, are estimated at $\frac{1}{2}$ million sterling. The sandstone façades show moderate baroque forms and are adorned with allegorical figures representing towns noted for their universities and libraries. — The front building towards the Linden will contain a festive hall for the Academy; three open portals will give access to the court of honour. From the latter an open flight of stairs will lead to the central building, where around the large reading room, an octagonal domed hall 121 ft. in height and 144 ft. in diameter, will be ranged studies for the students and exhibition-rooms. The back-building in the Dorotheen-Str. is provisionally occupied by the royal library and the university library (196,000 vols.). The reading-room contains 50,000 vols., ranged in five stories; above the entrance is a painting by A. Kampf, Fredrick the Great presenting the old library to the Berlin savants.

The Royal Library, which has been open to the public since 1661, and which was housed in the building on the Opern-Platz (p. 58) from 1780 to 1909, is surpassed in richness by the Paris and London libraries alone. Director, Prof. Dr. Harnack. Adm., see p. 39.

The library contains 1,230,000 vols. and 30,000 MSS., in addition to which there are numerous valuable musical works. Among the ILLUMINATED MANUSCRIPTS may be mentioned: the Quedlinburg Itala Fragments (6th cent.); the Codex Wittekindi, a MS. of the Gospels of the 8th cent., said to have been presented by Charlemagne to the Saxon duke Wittekind; the Gospels of Emp. Lothaire I., given in 852 to the abbey of Prüm; the alleged Psalter of Louis the German (9th cent.), the Golden Gospels of Cloves (9th cent.), the Lectionary of St. Maximin at Trèves (10th cent.), the Life of Mary by Werner von Tegernsee (13th cent.), and the Æneis by Heinrich von Veldeck (13th cent.). — Among the AUTOGRAPHS: Melanchthon's report on the diet of Worms; Johann Agricola's letter from Eisleben about Luther's death; Napoleon III.'s letter to King William, 2nd Sept. 1870; the original MSS. of 'Deutschland Deutschland über alles' and of the 'Wacht am Rhein'. — Farther on, BINDINGS with ivory carvings, e.g. the Diptych of Probianus (Roman, about 400), and works in the Byzantine and Romanesque styles. — Among the PRINTS: Luther's ninety-five Theses; the 'Editio Princeps' of Homer (Florence, 1488); Gutenberg's 42-line Bible on parchment, of 1450; the first German Bible (Strassburg, Mentelin, about 1405-6); the Theurdank (Nuremberg, 1517). — Also several PORTRAITS by Lucas Cranach in water-colours, numerous impressions from woodcut-blocks, bindings and Oriental MSS., comprising the Shah Nameh, a Persian epos by Firdusi (illuminated copy of the 16th cent.).

After the completion of the royal library, the front building will be occupied by the Academy of Science (comp. p. 175). The other rooms not required by the two libraries will be adapted for the Oriental Seminary and the Meteorological Institute (p. 159).

To the N. behind the Library, Dorotheen-Str. 7-8, is the Berlin Chamber of Commerce, a baroque building by Cremer & Wolfenstein. On the house Dorotheen-Str. No. 10 are busts of A. S. Margraf (d. 1782), the discoverer of beet-sugar, and of F. K. Achard (d. 1821), the founder of the beet-sugar industry.

At the E. end of Unter den Linden rises the Monument of Frederick the Great (Pl. R, 23), 44 ft. in height, an impressive and masterly work by Rauch, erected in 1851. On the top the great king is represented on horseback, with an ermine mantle and his crutch-handled stick. The pedestal is richly decorated with reliefs. The uppermost section contains scenes from Frederick's life, with figures of Moderation, Justice, Wisdom, and Strength at the corners. At the corners of the central section are four equestrian figures: Prince Henry of Prussia and Duke Ferdinand of Brunswick on the E., and Generals Zieten and Seydlitz on the W. Between these are placed spirited lifesize groups of other contemporaries and officers of the king, including Prince August Wilhelm and Keith (E. side), Kleist, Winterfeldt, and Taubentzien (N. side), Leopold of Anhalt-Dessau and Schwerin (S. side), Lessing, Kant, and Graun (W. side). The lowest section contains the dedication and the names of other distinguished men, chiefly soldiers of the time of Frederick.

To the right (S.) of the monument is the Palace of Emperor William I. (Pl. R, 23; adm., see p. 38), erected by K. F. Langhans (p. 50) in 1834-36; the decorations of the interior are by Strack. Entrance on the right of the palace, between it and the adjacent 'Niederländische Palais' (where the cards of admission are obtained). Description with views, 50 pf.

The GROUND FLOOR contains the simple rooms of the Emperor, crowded with furniture and souvenirs of all kinds. The Fahnenzimmer, to the E. of the main entrance, contains a picture by Camphausen (William I. entering Berlin in 1871). Beyond the Ministers' Room is the Emperor's Study, from the corner-window of which he was wont to watch the passing guard. It is preserved unchanged and contains many reminiscences of the old Kaiser. Behind the library is the bedroom (not shown) in which he died on 9th March, 1888. — The STAIRCASE is adorned with three Victories by Rauch and other sculptures. — On the UPPER FLOOR are the Apartments of the Empress Augusta, including her Study, containing a picture by Pesne of Frederick the Great as a child, and the room (not shown) in which she died on 7th Jan., 1890. — The W. part of this floor is occupied by the handsome Reception Rooms.

Beyond the Monument of Frederick the Great the street expands, forming the PLATZ AM OPERNHAUSE (Opern-Platz). The monumental buildings surrounding this 'Forum Fridericianum', together with the towers on the adjacent Gendarmen-Markt (p. 121), are the most important creations of this King in his capital.

The University Buildings (Pl. R, 23), formerly the palace of Prince Henry, brother of Frederick II., built by the elder Boumann in 1748-66 and fitted up in 1809 for the then recently-founded Friedrich Wilhelms-Universität, were remodelled in the interior in 1891. In the winter of 1909-10 the university was attended by 9242 students and 1077 'hearers', and had a teaching-staff of 513.

In the vestibule, to the right, is the Academic Enquiry Office (week-days 10-1.30). The front garden is adjoined by seated figures of William (d. 1835) and Alexander von Humboldt (d. 1859), the former by Paul Otto, the latter by R. Begas. In the garden itself, in the centre, is a marble statue of the physicist Helmholtz (d. 1894), by Herter (1899); to the right, a bronze statue of the historian Treitschke (d. 1896), by Siemering; to the left, a marble statue of Mommsen (d. 1903), by Brütt (both unveiled in 1909).

Behind the University, to the left of the Students' Reading Room (p. 36), is the University Garden, and to the right is the Kastanien-Wäldchen (chestnut grove), with a bronze statue, by Hartzel, of Mitscherlich (d. 1863), the chemist. Beyond the grove, in the Dorotheen-Str., is a colossal bust of Hegel, the philosopher (d. 1831), by Bläser.

To the S., beyond the Palace of Emp. William I., and facing the Opern-Platz, is the former Royal Library (Pl. R, 23, 22), erected in 1775-80 by Boumann the Younger from plans drawn by Unger, copied from a design by Fischer von Erlach for the Vienna Hofburg. This is one of the most effective rococo structures in Berlin, though sometimes likened to a chest of drawers. The motto below the cornice, 'nutrimentum spiritûs', was chosen by Frederick the Great. Since the removal of the library (p. 57), in 1909-10, the building has been adapted for university lecture rooms; the reading-room has been enlarged and is now used as aula.

Opposite the Library is the Opera House (Pl. R, 23; performances, see p. 27), erected by Knobelsdorff in 1741-43, and restored by K. F. Langhans after a fire in 1843. The interior is at present under reconstruction. The exterior is disfigured by a number of iron staircases erected in 1904 to facilitate escape in case of fire. The tympanum contains an admirable group in zinc, by Rietschel (1844): in the centre the muse of music; on the right the tragic and the comic muse with a satyr, the dramatic poet with the arts of painting and sculpture; on the left a dancing group with the Three Graces.

In the grounds between the Library and the Opera House stands a marble monument, by Schaper, to the Empress Augusta, unveiled in 1895. The reliefs on the pedestal represent the nursing of the wounded in war and the education of children. — In the background is the Roman Catholic Church of St. Hedwig (Hedwigs-Kirche; Pl. R, 22), a simplified imitation of the Pantheon at Rome, erected by Frederick the Great in 1747-73. The dome was sheathed with copper in 1886-87 and provided with the lantern and cross demanded by the spirit of the original design. The representation of the Adoration of the Magi in the pediment was executed in 1898 by N. Geiger. — Close by, Behren-Str. 38-39, is the Dresdner Bank, built in 1887 by Heim.

Five Statues by Rauch embellish the Platz am Opernhaus farther E. Between the Opera House and the palace of the crownprince is Blücher (d. 1819), a bronze figure, 11 ft. high, with drawn sword, resting one foot on a cannon, erected in 1826. To the left and right are bronze statues of Yorck (d. 1830) and Gneisenau (d. 1831), both erected in 1855. In front of the guard-house are marble figures of Bülow (d. 1816) and Scharnhorst (d. 1813), erected in 1822. The pedestals are adorned with reliefs referring to the wars of 1813-15.

The Royal Guard House (Königswache; Pl. R, 23) was constructed by Schinkel in the Doric style in 1816-18 in the form of a Roman fortified gate. Adjoining it are three large cannon; the central one ('La belle Joséphine') was brought from Fort Mont Valérien at Paris in 1871 and has been rechristened 'Valeria'.

Beyond the guard-house is the Ministry of Finance.—To the left of this, standing a little back, is the Singing Academy (Pl. R, 23), erected in 1825 and renowned for the excellent acoustic properties of its concert-hall. The academy was founded by Fasch in 1791, and afterwards came under the management of Zelter (d. 1832). Concerts, see p. 29.

TRAMWAYS (see pp. 14-22) run from the Opern-Platz and from the Dorotheen-Str. (lines N, O, S, T, U) to the Brandenburg Gate (N, O, S, T, U, 13), Charlottenburg (N, T, U, 33, 54), Dönhoff-Platz (12, 13, 18, 39, 42), Gesundbrunnen (34, 39, 42, 43), Görlitz Station (12, 13, 18, 23), Hackescher-Markt (33, 39, 40, 42, 53, 54, 55, III), Halle Gate (34, 39, 42, 43, 53, 55), Kreuzberg (34, 43), Lehrte Station and Moabit (12, 13, 18, 20), Lützow-Platz (33, 54), Potsdam Station (33, 40, 54, III), Rixdorf (20, 53, 55), Schöneberg (40, 43, III), Stettin Station (34, 43), Zoological Garden (O, S, 83).—The lines 60, 61, 70, 73, 75, 80, 81, running through the Französische Str. (S.), may also prove serviceable.

To the E. of the Royal Guard House (see above), and fronting to the S., is the Arsenal (Zeughaus; Pl. R, 23, 26), one of the best buildings in Berlin; begun by Nering in 1694 and carried to completion by Grünberg, Schlüter (1698-99), and De Bodt (1706). It is a square structure, each side of which is 295 ft. in length, enclosing a quadrangle 125 ft. square. The exterior is richly adorned with sculptures by Schlüter. The bronze bust of Frederick I. above the main portal and the allegorical figures to the right and left are by Hulot. In 1877-81 the interior underwent a thorough alteration under the superintendence of Hützig (d. 1881), and it was re-opened as a Military Museum and Hall of Fame of the Prussian Army. The artistic decoration was completed in 1891. The director of the collections is Dr. von Uebisch (adm., see p. 36; official handbook 50 pf.).

The vaulted chambers on the GROUND FLOOR, somewhat poorly lighted, are separated by handsome iron railings and adorned with mural paintings in grisaille (siege operations) by Burger. The rooms to the right (E.) of the vestibule contain the Museum of Artillery, those to the left (W.) are devoted to the Museum of Military Engineering.

The collection of artillery is nearly complete from the end of the 14th century onwards, though the number of fine artistic specimens is comparatively small. The following objects are specially worthy of attention: (to the left) between pillars 1 and 2, Chinese guns captured in 1900, among them No. 608. Chinese gun, cast in 1689 by Verbiest, a Jesuit (comp. p. 195); (to the right) old flint-lock muskets and orgues; No. 66. The 'Wild Man', the longest gun (19 ft.) in the collection; No. 130 (in the corner), so-called golden cannon of 1641; adjacent, 17th cent. cannon made of leather; No. 157. richly chased 48-pounder, made at Lübeck in 1669 for Holland and discovered at Paris in 1814; Nos. 168, 169, 185, and 186 (between the pillars), cannon of the time of the Great Elector, the last covered with ornamentation; farther on, opposite a balloon-gun of 1870-71, a cannon dedicated to the Elector Albert Achilles, one of eleven cast by Jacobi in 1708 by command of King Frederick I.; No. 361 (near the end of the room), orgue used by Schill's volunteers, who in 1809 made a brave but unsuccessful attempt to free Prussia from the French yoke.

The Museum of Military Engineering (left side) contains models of objects connected with pioneering and artillery. Here also are models of old French fortresses (including Sedan and Paris), brought from Paris in 1814; model-plans of the battles of Düppel (1864), Königgrätz (1866), and St. Privat (1870); and uniforms (to the left Austrian, French, British, etc., to the right Russian). At the end is a magnificent Turkish tent, captured in 1683 before Vienna.

Opposite the vestibule is the entrance to the glass-roofed Court, the centre of which is occupied by a colossal marble figure of Bo-russia, by R. Begas. The *Heads of Dying Warriors on the key-stones of the windows (widely known as the Masks of Schlitter) are very striking. The Chinese standards above were captured in 1900. There is also an exhibition of new acquisitions, at present of models of balloons and aëroplanes.

FIRST FLOOR. From the back of the court two flights of steps, adorned with sculptures by R. Begas, ascend to the HALL OF FAME, which occupies the N. wing of the upper story and consists of three sections—the 'Herrscherhalle' in the middle, and the two 'Feldherrnhallen' at the sides.

The 'Hall of the Rulers', which is 70 ft. square and nearly 70 ft. high, is lighted from the roof. The *Triumphal Procession on the dome, the large *Paintings in the spandrels (Resuscitation of the German Empire, War, Peace, and Valhalla), and the four Virtues of Rulers (Bravery, Justice, Wisdom, and Moderation) in the corners, are all by F. Gesellschaft. In the side-niches are the following paintings: Homage of the Silesian Estates in 1741, by Camphausen; Assembling of the Volunteers at Breslau in 1813, by Bleibtreu; Coronation of Frederick I. at Königsberg in 1701, by A. von Werner; and the Proclamation of the German Empire at Versailles in 1871, also by Werner. The sculptures include a marble Victory by Schaper (in the central recess, opposite the entrance), eight bronze statues of Prussian rulers from the Great Elector to the Emperor William I.,

by Encke, Brunow, Hilgers, Hundrieser, Schuler, and Siemering, and busts of Scharnhorst, Stein, Bismarck, and Roon.

The 'Halls of the Generals' are each adorned with six mural paintings of battles. Those in the hall to the left (W.) are (N. wall) the Battle of Fehrbellin (1675), by Janssen; the Passage of the Kurische Haß by the Great Elector (1679), by Simmler; the Battle of Turin (1706), by Knackfuss; — (W. wall) Hohenfriedberg (1745), by Janssen; Frederick the Great before the battle of Leuthen (1757), by Roeber; — (S. wall) Torgau (1760), by Janssen. Those in the hall to the right (E.) are the Capitulation at Sedan (1870), by Steffeck; the Storming of St. Privat (1870), by Bleibtreu; — (N. wall) the Meeting of King William and the Crown Prince at Königrätz (1866), by Hüntten; — (S. wall) the Allied Monarchs at Leipsic (1813), by Schuch; — (E. wall) Waterloo (Belle Alliance; 1815), by Bleibtreu; and Düppel (1864), by Roeber. The plastic ornamentation includes colossal bronze busts of 32 eminent leaders of the Prussian army and four allegorical figures in marble. Two of the latter, by R. Begas ('Science of War' and 'Power'), are in the W. hall, and two by Schaper ('Enthusiasm' and 'Loyalty') in the E. hall. The busts were executed under the superintendence of R. Begas by various sculptors. Those in the hall to the left represent Sparr and Derfflinger, Schöning and Treffenfeldt, Prince Leopold of Dessau and Schwerin, Keith and Winterfeldt, Prince Maurice of Dessau and Gessler, Duke Ferdinand of Brunswick and Seydlitz, Prince Henry and Fouqué, Zieten and Belling. In the hall to the right are Blücher and Prince Louis Ferdinand, Yorck and Courbière, Bülow and Kalckreuth, Tauenzien and Gneisenau, Kleist and Wrangel, Goeben and Werder, Moltke and Manteuffel, Crown Prince Frederick William and Prince Frederick Charles.

The W., N., and E. wings of the upper floor are separated from the Hall of Fame by iron railings, and contain the COLLECTION OF WEAPONS AND ARMOUR, which is divided into three sections. The numbers given below correspond with those on the porcelain labels attached to the exhibits.

E. WING. On entering from the E. Hall of the Generals, we have the Oriental weapons to our right and the European to our left. Special attention should be paid to the beautiful 15th cent. armour and the fine gala suits of the 16th cent., many of them adorned with reliefs. By the portrait of Elector Johann Sigismund: 84 and 59a two suits of Elector Joachim II.; tilting-armour of Margrave George Frederick of Ansbach-Bayreuth; on the pillar by the window, parts of a gilded suit with cavalry contests; by the window to the left, 64. Shield with the Judgment of Paris (after Raphael), and 74. Engagement under the walls of a fortress; by the window to the right, 73. shield with cavalry contest, once belonging to King Henri II. of France. By the portrait of the Great Elector: 106. Armour of Margrave Hans of Küstrin; field suit of the later Elector Johann Georg. Next section: 82. Shields with Curtius and Hercules; 94. with Horatius Cocles, and 95. with the Fall of the Giants; No. 60a. Helmet with the Judgment of Paris and Abduction of Helen. By the next pillars:

75 and 125. suits said to have belonged to Emp. Charles V. and King Francis I. of France. In the corner: ornamented cross-bows (125, 133) and portable fire-arms (130-132), calendar blades (131).

S. Wing. Chiefly Prussian arms and uniforms down to the time of Frederick the Great. In the middle of the side next the court are uniforms and orders of the Emperors William I. and Frederick III., orders of Bismarck and Moltke, and keys of French fortresses captured in 1814 and 1870-71.—On the side next the street, near the middle; swords (197) of the Brandenburg Electors, and (198) others with portraits of Emperors Leopold, Rudolph II., and Ferdinand II.—Beyond the centre, 232. souvenirs of Derfflinger; 233. Standards of Henning von Treffenfeld with symbolic devices. These are followed by uniforms of the 18th century; on case 278, ensign of a Prussian recruiting officer of the 18th century; tiger-skin and bearskin-cap of Zieten.—In the corner: 302-7. Figures of the soldiers of Frederick the Great. On the adjoining pillars are portraits of the tall grenadiers of Frederick William I.

The W. Wing is specially devoted to arms and uniforms of the time of the War of Liberation (1813-15). At the end of the side next the street: 417. Figures of Prussian soldiers of the period; 412. Orders, hat, and pistols of Napoleon I., captured at Waterloo; 411. Uniforms of Frederick William III.; 423. Souvenirs of Blücher.—On both sides of the central passage are 68 Lifesize Figures of Prussian Soldiers*. Those to the left represent soldiers from the time of the Great Elector down to 1806 and also the royal household troops; to the right, those from 1806 to the present time, ending with the troops in the colonies and the China expedition (1900).

On the S. side of the Zeughaus-Platz is the Palace of the Crown Prince (Pl. R, 23), which is connected with the so-called Palace of the Princesses by an arch over the Oberwall-Strasse. Built in 1663 as a private mansion, it was rebuilt in 1732 for Frederick the Great when Crown Prince, and from 1793 to 1840 was occupied by Frederick William III. In 1797 Emperor William I. was born here. It owes its present form to the alterations made in 1857 by Strack, who added the second story, and from 1858 to 1888 it was the winter residence of the Crown Prince Frederick William (Emp. Frederick III.).

The last house on this side is the Residence of the Commandant of Berlin.—Beyond is the Schinkel-Platz, see p. 159.

2. Cathedral. Royal Palace. National Monument to Emperor William I.

In a straight line with the E. prolongation of the Linden, and spanning the Spree, is the Schloss-Brücke (Palace Bridge; Pl. R, 26), 106 ft. in width, constructed in 1822-24 from designs by Schinkel. It was adorned by Frederick William IV. with eight groups in marble, over lifesize, illustrative of the life of a warrior. On the S.: 1. Victory teaches the boy the history of the heroes, by E. Wolff; 2. Athena instructs the youth in the use of weapons, by Schievelbein; 3. Athena presents the combatant with arms, by Möller; 4. Victory crowns the conqueror, by Drake. On the N.: 5. Victory raises the wounded warrior, by Wichmann; 6. Athena protecting and aiding a combatant, by Bläser; 7. Athena inciting him to a new contest, by A. Wolff; 8. Iris conducts the victorious fallen warrior to Olympus, by Wredow.

Beyond the bridge extends the LUSTGARTEN (Pl. R, 26), an open space planted with trees, 247 yds. in length and 220 yds. in width, originally a garden belonging to the palace, and afterwards converted into a drill-ground by Frederick William I. In the centre, on a pedestal of granite 20 ft. in height, rises the equestrian Statue of Frederick William III., by A. Wolff, 19 ft. in height, unveiled in 1871. The pedestal is adorned with allegorical figures of Clio (in front), Borussia with the Rhine and Memel on the right, Science with Industry and Art on the left, between them Legislation, and at the back Religion with the olive-branch, a reference to the Union of the Evangelical Confessions (1817). Military music at noon (p. 31). — Beyond the statue, in front of the steps of the Old Museum, is a huge Granite Basin, 22 ft. in diameter and 75 tons in weight, hewn out of a solid erratic block of ten times the weight.

The Cathedral (Dom; Pl. R, 26) dominates not only the Lustgarten and its environs, but with its lofty dome forms the distinguishing feature of every general view of Berlin. It occupies the site of another cathedral built in 1747-50, the poverty of whose appearance even Schinkel (1816-17) was unable to remedy, and of the beginnings of a royal vault ('Campo Santo'), dating from the time of Frederick William IV. (1845-48). The new building was erected in 1894-1905 in the style of the developed Italian Renaissance by Julius Raschdorff and his son, Otto Raschdorff, at an expense of 10½ million marks (525,000 l.). Its dimensions are: length 344 ft., breadth 246 ft., height to the main cornice 102 ft., to the foot of the lantern 246 ft., and to the top of the cross on the dome 374 ft. The material is Silesian sandstone, with granite for the lower courses of masonry, while the cupolas, lantern, and roofing are of copper.

The vestibule on the Lustgarten side is two stories high and 262 ft. long. The chief entrance in the centre is high and vaulted; over the arch are two bronze angels holding a shield. The piers on both sides of the entrance are adorned with bronze reliefs (to the right, Luther translating the Bible, by Goetz; to the left, Luther at Worms, by Janensch); above them are bronze statues of SS. Luke and John (right) and SS. Matthew and Mark (left). On the impost to the right and left are bronze figures of Mercy and Truth, modelled by Widemann. On the attic are ten figures of apostles, two head-pieces ending in crowns and a centre-piece containing a figure of Christ by Schaper, in copper, 17 ft. in height. — The four niches of the memorial church (N.) contain figures, embossed in copper, signifying the virtues of rulers. — The central dome is octagonal in shape and measures 125 ft. in external and 102 ft. in internal diameter. The richly ornamented drum is surmounted by eight figures of angelic musicians, 17 ft. in height, by Schott. The domed towers at the corners, each 262 ft. high, contain the bells.

The INTERIOR (adm., see p. 36) of the cathedral is tripartite. The CHURCH PROPER, to which the main entrance admits, is surmounted by the dome. The vaulting is adorned with mosaic representations of the Eight Beatitudes, after A. von Werner; the four spandrels have decorative carvings from the history of the Apostles, by O. Lessing. Eight colossal statues surround the base of the drum: Luther and Melancthon (by Pfunnschmidt), Zwingli (by Janensch), Calvin (by Calandrelli), Frederick the Wise (by K. Begas), Joachim II. (by Magnussen), Philip the Magnanimous (by Schott), and Albert of Prussia (by Baumbach). The body of the church is in the form of an irregular octagon, and has seats for 1960 worshippers. In the semicircular niches on the shorter sides are the pulpit and galleries. On the longer sides are galleries for the court (W.), the ministers (S.), and the organ and choir (N.). On the E. is the semicircular apse, with dark-red marble columns, sumptuously fitted up with sculpture and gilding, and lighted by beautiful stained-glass windows after A. v. Werner's designs, the birth, crucifixion, and resurrection of Christ. — To the S. lies the WEDDING AND BAPTISMAL CHURCH (not accessible), 59 ft. long and 30 ft. wide, and roofed with barrel-vaulting. — To the N. is the MEMORIAL CHURCH, 115 ft. in length and breadth. The pentagonal central space is surrounded by small chapels, to contain various monuments. Among these are a monument of Bismarck by R. Begas, the bronze monument of Elector John Cicero (d. 1499), by Peter Vischer and his son, finished in 1530, with two representations of the deceased (see p. 151); the zinc state coffins of the Great Elector (d. 1688) and his consort Dorothea (d. 1689), of King Frederick I. (d. 1713) and his consort Sophia Charlotte (d. 1705), the last two from designs by Schlüter; and the marble sarcophagus of Emp. Frederick III., by R. Begas (comp. p. 193). — A staircase on the E. side (with a Descent from the Cross by M. Lock) descends from the Memorial Church to the HOHENZOLLERN BURIAL VAULT (not accessible), extending beneath the whole cathedral and containing) 87 coffins of members of the reigning family.

Between the Cathedral and the 'Schloss-Apotheke', a side-building of the palace (see p. 67), the Kaiser-Wilhelm-Brücke (1886-89) crosses the Spree to the Kaiser Wilhelm-Strasse, in which the lofty Marien-Kirche is visible (p. 153).

The Royal Palace (Königliches Schloss; Pl. R, 26) is in the form of a rectangle, 630 ft. in length and 381 ft. in depth, enclosing two large courts, which are entered by five portals, each bearing a number. The façade rises in four stories to the height of 98 ft., while the dome above it is 232 ft. high. The original building was a castle erected by Elector Frederick II. on the Spree in 1443-51. After 1538 Joachim II. converted it into a palace after the designs of Kaspar Theyss, with a tilting-yard on the S. side, the whole forming a handsome example of the German Renaissance, highly extolled by contemporary critics. Elector John George completed the enclosure of the E. court in 1580-95; from his time date the façade towards the Spree with its corner-turrets (Pl. 16) and the 'Schloss-Apotheke'

(pharmacy), projecting towards the N. and recently shortened. A second court was added (to the W.) and the N.E. corner completed. Under the Great Elector, who at first directed his energies to laying out the Lustgarten, Nering erected the round-arched gallery on the Spree (Pl. 15) in 1685. The Elector's successor, Frederick I., the first King of Prussia, determined to replace the irregular pile of buildings that had now arisen by a uniform structure of massive and imposing proportions, and confided the execution of this task to Andreas Schlüter, who began his work in 1698. The gigantic scheme of alteration thus projected has, however, never been fully carried out, the part of the building on the Spree and the transverse building still retaining their original form. In 1706 Schlüter retired from the direction of the work, as the rebuilding of the so-called 'Münzturm', which was to be some 300 ft. high (at the N.W. corner, where the column with the eagle now stands), had failed. He was succeeded by Johann Friedrich Eosander, surnamed von Goethe, a native of Sweden, to whom is due the architecture of the largest court and of the W. façade. In 1716 the process of alteration was brought by Böhme to a conclusion for the nonce, and during the reigns of Frederick II. and Frederick William II. comparatively trifling additions only were made. In 1825-26 Schinkel restored the apartments of Frederick II. for the Crown Prince. The spacious chapel in the W. wing, with its dome, was constructed in the reign of Frederick William IV. by Stüler and Schadow (1845-52), and greatly enhances the effect of the exterior. A new period of building activity began under Emp. William II., who made the palace once more the actual residence of the reigning sovereign. Great gates of wrought iron were placed in the five outer portals; a terrace with a landing-stage was constructed on the river-side; and, finally, the W. wing, with the White Saloon (p. 68) and the neighbouring apartments, has recently undergone a thorough reconstruction from the designs of Ihne.

The rooms occupied by the imperial family (no admittance), fitted up in 1888-89, are on the first floor, overlooking the Schloss-Platz. Those of the Emperor are between Portals I and II, while the apartments of the Empress adjoin them to the W. Above Portal I is the 'Sternen-Saal' (Star Hall; with the 'Elisabeth-Saal' above it on the second floor; see plan of the Royal Palace), containing the colours and standards of the Berlin regiments. A purple banner, hoisted on the N. side, indicates the Emperor's presence.

The exterior of the palace exhibits in its two principal façades, both by Schlüter, a pleasing diversity of style, that to the S. being distinguished by monumental severity, while that to the N., overlooking the Lustgarten (formerly the garden-front), is enlivened with light and elegant details. The statues on the balustrade of the latter are modern. They represent Emperor William I. as Jupiter, Empress Augusta as Juno, Emperor Frederick as Mars, and Empress Frederick as Minerva. The Horse Tamers at Portal IV, two large bronze groups by Baron Clodt, were presented by the Emperor Nicholas I. of Russia in 1841. — The W. FAÇADE, by Eosander, with its great central portal, built in imitation of the arch of Septimius Severus, is colder in style, but highly effective. The two bronze reliefs by O. Lessing (1897) represent Elector Frederick II. as builder of the castle, and King Frederick I. as builder of the palace.

To the memory of the Netherlandish relations of the Great Elector, Emperor William II. has recently dedicated six bronze statues. In front of the 'Schloss-Apothcke' a statue of Admiral Coligny, by Count Görtz-Schlitz, was unveiled in 1905 (Coligny, murdered in the Night of St. Bartholomew in 1572, was the great-grandfather of Louise Henrietta, the first wife of the Great Elector). Five statues of members of the Orange family on the parapet of the palaceterrace were added in 1907: William I. the Silent (1533-84), by Schott; Maurice (1567-1625), by Wolff; Frederick Henry (father of Louise Henrietta; 1584-1647), by Brütt; William II. (1626-50), by Haverkamp; and William III. (1650-1702; King of England from 1689), by Baucke.

By Portal IV of the N. façade, which is opened by a sentry, we enter the OUTER COURT, in the centre of which is a large bronze group of St. George and the Dragon, by Kiss (1865). A passage leads hence to the *INNER COURT, which is considered one of Schlüter's masterpieces; it is flanked on three sides with arcades. To the left, in Portal V, is a Statue of the Great Elector, by Franz du Sart (1651).

Tickets of admission to the *INTERIOR of the palace (comp. p. 39) are issued in the inner court, at the office on the groundfloor to the left. The entrance is in the E. wing. Sticks and umbrellas must be given up here, and are returned at the exit (no fees). — The old 'Wendelstein' (winding staircase) leads to the — Second Floor, where as a rule only the State Rooms overlooking the Lustgarten are shown to visitors. — In the E. WING is the Schweizer-Saal, originally the old guard-room, and now used as a reception-room on festive occasions. — Next come the two STATE ANTECHAMBERS. The first (1) contains portraits of the family of Frederick the Great and his queen, by Pesne; the second (2), with an old ceiling by Schlüter, has portraits of the Great Elector and his family, Frederick William I. as Crown Prince, Peter the Great, and Catharine II. of Russia.

In the NORTHERN WING is the KÖNIGS-ZIMMER (3), renovated in the style of Schlüter, and containing portraits of all the Prussian kings down to the Emperor Frederick (the first three by Pesne). — To the W. of the Königs-Zimmer follow the STATE ROOMS, built by Schlüter and gorgeously decorated, later somewhat modernized by Stüler. In the *ROTE DRAP D'OR KAMMER (9) is Camphausen's picture of 'Emperor William I. at Gravelotte', while the fireplace is surmounted by a relief by Schlüter. — This is followed by the ROTE ADLER, or BRANDENBURGER KAMMER (10), with silk wall-hangings; the chandeliers and tables are of wood covered with silver, the originals having been melted down by Frederick the Great; here is also Camphausen's picture of 'The Great Elector at Fehrbellin'. — In the *RITTER-SAAL (formerly the Throne Room) the gorgeous rococo decoration reaches its climax. The *Groups of the four quarters of the globe, above the side-doors, are among the best efforts of Schlüter, while the carving of the large central door is also worthy of notice. The trumpeters' gallery was formerly (1739) of solid silver, but was melted down by Frederick the Great in 1745. The crystal chandelier was purchased from the city of Worms by Frederick William III. On the sideboard, designed by Eosander (1703), are the finest specimens of plate in the royal collection (including a tankard by Jamnitzer), mostly dating from the time of the first two Prussian kings, and forming the remains of a once considerable treasure, the rest of which was melted down in war-time. In this apartment court receptions and the distribution of orders take place. — The SCHWARZE ADLER KAMMER (11), decorated in the same style as the 'Rote Adler Kammer', contains Camphausen's picture of 'Frederick the Great at Leuthen'. The allegorical ceiling-painting represents 'The Founding of the Order of the Black Eagle', by Leygebe. — In the ROTE SAMT-KAMMER (12) are portraits of Frederick I. and his consort Sophia Charlotte, in handsome antique frames. The old velvet tapestry with silver borders (from which the room takes its name) and the gilded furniture are worthy of notice. — The former CHAPEL (13) was fitted up in 1879 as a hall for the meetings of the High Order of the Black Eagle, and contains a picture by A. von Werner representing the first investiture with the order by King Frederick I. on 18th Jan., 1701.

The PICTURE GALLERY, 197 ft. in length, is used as a banquetting-hall and can accommodate 400 guests. On the window-side (fine view of the Linden and the Lustgarten) are various pictures, including battle-scenes by Röchling: Hohenfriedberg (1745), Tres Forcas (1856), Zorndorf (1758), and Kolin (1757); also by Schöbel, Generals of Frederick the Great before his dead body. Main wall: Weidemann, King Frederick I. and Queen Sophia Charlotte; Menzel, *Coronation of King William I. at Königsberg in 1861; Bülow, Emp. William I.; Keinke, Emp. Frederick; Corcos, Emp. William II. and Empress Augusta Victoria; A. von Werner, King William proclaimed Emperor at Versailles in 1871, and Emp. William II. opening the Imperial Diet for the first time. At the end of the gallery, to the right, is a sculptured *Group of Queen Louise and her sister (1795), by Schadow.

We now reach the WEST WING and enter the GALLERY OF THE WHITE SALOON, the addition of which (see p. 66) remedied the former isolated position of the saloon. The gallery is adorned with Gobelin tapestry (scenes from 'Don Quixote'; woven at Paris in 1774-76) and with portraits of members of allied reigning families. It communicates by several doors with the *WEISSE SAAL or WHITE SALOON, a large hall 105 ft. in length, 52 ft. in width, and 43 ft. high, begun in 1728, completed by Stüler in 1844, and completely remodelled by Thne in 1894-95. The ceiling has been raised and has received a rich plastic decoration, the four central spaces being adorned with the arms of the Hohenzollerns as Burgraves, Electors, Kings, and Emperors. The reliefs on the vaulting between the walls and the ceiling are by O. Lessing and represent victorious war as the fosterer of art, science, trade, and industry. The walls are decorated in coloured marble and gilded bronze. Between the coupled pilasters on the long side are 9 marble statues of Prussian rulers as they appeared at the time of their accession to the throne: the Great Elector by Schaper, Frederick I. by Böse, Frederick William I. by Schott, Frederick the Great by Magnussen, Frederick William II. by Calandrelli, Frederick William III. by Eberlein, Frederick William IV. by Unger, William I. by K. von Uchtritz, and Frederick III. by Baumbach. The opening of the Reichstag and of the Landtag (Prussian Diet) as well as the chief court festivities take place in the White Saloon.

The adjoining staircase leads to the *PALACE CHAPEL (comp. p. 68), an octagonal edifice, 113 ft. in height, lined with marble of different colours, and adorned with frescoes on a gold ground. The altar with its four columns is of yellow Egyptian alabaster, and is backed by a richly gilded silver cross set with large jewels.

The Palace contains altogether about 700 apartments, but permission is seldom accorded to view any others than those above mentioned. Adjoining the Königs-Zimmer (Pl. 3, p. 67) on the SECOND FLOOR, and looking towards the river, are the so-called 'Alte Parade-Kammern' or 'Old State Rooms', occupied before the commencement of Schlüter's building by Elector Frederick III. and containing rich decorations of his period. Next to these comes the Boisierte Galerie or Wainscoted Gallery (4), with portraits of the Great Elector and his family. This gallery leads into the Kurfürsten-Zimmer (5), with portraits of all the Hohenzollern Electors; this is adjoined by an antechamber containing those of the old Counts of Zollern and the Burgraves of Nuremberg. The following rooms include the Chinesische Kabinett or Chinese Cabinet (5a); the Kron-Kabinett or Crown Cabinet (6), in which the crown-jewels used to be kept; the Betkammer or Oratory of Frederick I. (7), and the Bridal Chamber (8), which still plays its historical part in weddings of the royal house. — Farther on, on the river-front, is the Neue Galerie or New Gallery (15), with portraits of the female relatives of Frederick the Great, by Pesne; the Braunschweigische Kammern* or Brunswick Rooms (16); the Tower Room in the 'Grüne Hut' (Green Hat; 17), hung with views of the Berlin Palace in the times of the Electors, by C. and P. Graeb; the adjoining Kapellen-Zimmer or Chapel Room; the Kleist Rooms (18), which have lately been restored in the German Renaissance style, and contain ten pictures by L. Cranach; the Elizabeth Rooms (19), formerly occupied by Queen Elizabeth Christina, consort of Frederick the Great, and later by Queen Elizabeth, consort of Frederick William IV.;

and the Apartments of Princess Marie (20). In an adjoining room (21) Frederick the Great was born on 14th Jan., 1712. — Looking on to the Lustgarten on the FIRST FLOOR are the Königs-Kammern* or King's Rooms, fitted up for Frederick William II. by Gontard and Erdmannsdorf, and now used as guest-rooms for the most distinguished foreign princes. on the S.E. wing (extending from the old Palace Chapel, the chief remaining fragment of Joachim's building, as far as Portal II) are the Apartments of Frederick the Great, re-decorated in 1825-26 by Schinkel for Crown Prince Frederick William, and now partly used by the Emperor. — On the GROUND FLOOR OF THE NORTH WEST WING were the Apartments of Frederick William I., the later 'Petits appartements' of Frederick William II., which are still fitted up in the style characteristic of their period.

Opposite the W. side of the Schloss, on a raised platform, stands the —

National Monument to Emperor William I. (Pl. R, 26, 25), an imposing work by R. Begas, unveiled in 1897. On a pedestal 66 ft. in height rises the colossal equestrian figure of the Emperor (30 ft. high), in bronze, attired in a field-cloak and holding a commander's bâton in his right hand, on a powerful horse led by a graceful figure of Peace. At the four corners of the base are Victories, and on the two principal sides are seated colossal figures of War (to the N.) and Peace (to the S.). Projecting from the corners of the base are four lions, amid trophies of weapons and banners. — A stone colonnade, with coupled Ionic columns, by Halmhuber, extends on three sides of the platform. The attic is adorned with sculptured groups representing the kingdoms of Prussia (by Breuer), Bavaria (by Gaul), Saxony (by Kraus), and Wurtemberg (by Breuer). The four groups at the back represent Commerce and Navigation (by L. Cauer), Art (by Hidding), Science (by K. Begas), and Agriculture and Industry (by L. Cauer). Each of the corner pavilions bears a bronze Quadriga*, that to the N. with Borussia, by Götz, that to the S. with Bavaria, by Bernewitz. — The cost amounted to 200,000*l.* The castings were made by Gladenbeck.

In the SCHLOSS-PLATZ (Pl. R, 25, 26), to the S. of the Palace (tramways No. 17, 32, 60, 61, 63, 70, 73, 75, 80, and 81; see pp. 15-20) is the Schloss-Brunnen, a monumental fountain by R. Begas, unveiled in 1891. In the centre is Neptune on a rocky throne, with Tritons and putti below. The basin, 59 ft. in diameter, contains four marine animals, while round the brim are figures of the Rhine, Oder, Elbe, and Vistula.

On the S. side of the Schloss-Platz, between the Spree and the Breite-Str., are the Royal Stables (Pl. R, 25, 26), erected by Ihne in the Renaissance style in 1897-1900. The main front is 305 ft. long, while the river-front is 578 ft. in length. The building is adorned with sculptures by Otto Lessing. On the attic are horse-tamers and figures of ancient warriors, while at each end of the main front is a fountain inserted in the wall, that to the left with Prometheus and the Oceanidæ, that to the right with Perseus and Andromeda.

Adm. to the stables (entrance, Breite-Str. 37), see p. 40. — The horses (200) are kept in two stories of the river-wing, with the carriages above. The small HISTORICAL MUSEUM arranged here contains the sledge on which the Great Elector pursued the Swedes across the Kurische Haff in 1679; the white charger which Frederick the Great bestrode at the battle of Mollwitz; Sadowa, a favourite horse of William I.; and state carriages and sledges of the time of the first kings. — The main wing contains state carriages, saddle and harness rooms; in the middle the coronation coach, built at Strassburg in 1793.

The Kurfürsten-Brücke (Bridge of the Elector; Pl. R, 26) leads to the E. from the Schloss-Platz to the old town of Berlin. The bridge, built in 1692-95 after designs by Nering and rebuilt in the old style in 1895, affords a good view of the river-front of the Royal Palace (p. 65), the Cathedral (p. 64), etc.

The bridge is adorned with a bronze equestrian Statue of the Great Elector (d. 1688), designed by Schlüter and erected in 1703. This clever and artistic group is one of the few really good works of a period when art was generally in a very debased condition. In spite of the Roman costume, the figure is remarkable for its air of majestic repose, which is heightened by contrast with the movements of the four slaves round the pedestal intended to typify the hostile powers against whom the Elector had waged war. The reliefs on the sides represent (left) the Electorate and the Old Palace, and (right) the Kingdom and the New Palace (original pedestal in the Emp. Frederick Museum, see p. 95).

3. The Museum Island.

Tramways Nos. 33, 39, 40, 42, 53, 54, 55, III, and from the neighbouring Kupfergraben N, O, S, T, U; see pp. 16-18, 21 and comp. also p. 60.

To the N. of the Lustgarten (p. 64) rises the Old Museum (see p. 72), with the New Museum (p. 79) opposite, the two buildings being connected by a passage carried across the street. To the right (N. E.) is the National Gallery (p. 84), and to the N. the provisional building for the Antiquities from Western Asia (p. 83). Beyond the Stadtbahn, on the triangular piece of land between the two arms of the Spree and only thence accessible, is the Emperor Frederick Museum (p. 94). — Extensive new buildings on the Museum Island, including a new Pergamon Museum, etc., designed by Messel (d. 1909) and L. Hoffmann, are under construction.

The following pages contain a notice of the principal treasures of the Museums. Details will be found in the official catalogues sold inside the buildings. The catalogues offered for sale outside are untrustworthy.

The Director General of the Royal Museums (except the National Gallery) is Dr. Bode, who is also director of the Picture Gallery and of the Collection of Christian and Persian-Islamic Sculptures in the Emp. Frederick Museum; Dr. Kekule von Stradonitz of the Collection of Antiquities, the Antiquarium, and the Pergamon Museum; Dr. Friedländer of the Cabinet of Engravings; Prof. Menadier and Prof. Dressel of the Collection of Coins; Prof. Delitzsch of the Asiatic Antiquities; Prof. Erman of the Egyptian and Assyrian Department.

a. The Old Museum.

ADMISSION, see p. 38. — The OFFICIAL GUIDE to the Old and New Museums (50 pf.; 13th edit., 1907) and also SPECIAL CATALOGUES and PHOTOGRAPHS may be bought in the North Room (p. 74).

The Old Museum (Pl. R, 26), an admirable building in the Greek style, 285 ft. long, 175 ft. wide, and 62 ft. high, with an Ionic portico of eighteen columns, and approached by a broad flight of steps, was erected by Schinkel in 1824-28. The raised central part of the structure is adorned with colossal groups in bronze: in front, the Horse Tamers of the Piazza del Quirinale at Rome, copies by Tieck; at the back, Pegasus tamed and refreshed by the Horæ, by Schievelbein and Hagen. The steps also are flanked by two large groups in bronze: right, *Amazon on horseback, defending herself against a tiger, by Kiss; left, Youth on horseback, launching a spear at a lion, by A. Wolff.

The VESTIBULE contains marble statues of German artists and connoisseurs: to the right of the entrance are those of Rauch (d. 1857) by Drake, Cornelius (d. 1867) by Calandrelli, G. W. von Knobelsdorff (d. 1753) by Karl Begas the Younger, Schlüter (d. 1714) by Wiese, and Winckelmann (d. 1768) by Wichmann; to the left those of Schinkel (d. 1841) by Tieck (replica), Otfried Müller (d. 1840) by Tondeur, Chodowiecki (d. 1801) by Otto, Carstens (d. 1798) by Janensch, and G. Schadow (d. 1850) by Hagen. The frescoes, designed by Schinkel, and executed under the direction of Cornelius, represent (on the left) the development of the world from chaos, and (on the right) the progress of human culture. (The original designs, in the Schinkel Museum, p. 182, with a key attached, afford more satisfaction.) — From the vestibule, a door leads to the first floor of the Museum (see below).

The UPPER VESTIBULE, to which a double staircase ascends, is adorned with a copy of the celebrated antique Warwick Vase in England. The frescoes, also designed by Schinkel, represent the struggle of civilized mankind against barbarians and the elements.

The Old Museum contains exclusively antique works of art and examples of applied art dating from the Græco-Roman period.

FIRST FLOOR.

The domed and vaulted ROTUNDA, which we first enter, is distinguished by the harmony and effectiveness of its proportions. It contains the first part of the Gallery of Sculptures, which

Old Museum, First Floor
Gallery of Antique Sculptures

is chiefly indebted for its origin to Frederick the Great, who purchased at Rome the collection of Cardinal Polignac. Most of its contents were formerly of mediocre merit, dating from the later Roman Empire and freely restored, but the purchase of the Saburrow collection of Attic sculptures in 1884 and other acquisitions have placed the gallery upon quite a different footing. The sculptures mentioned in the following description are of marble when nothing is said to the contrary. Large Illustrated Catalogue of the Antique Sculptures, 1891 (25 M); Greek Sculpture, by Kekule von Stradonitz, 1906 (with illustrations; 5 M).

In the middle of the Rotunda: 1452. Lion in Pentelic marble (4th cent. B.C.). Between the columns are decorative sculptures by Roman artists, some freely restored. To the left: 178. Goddess restored as Hera; 278. Satyr, after Praxiteles; 583. Hellenistic draped statue; 215. Meleager, after a Greek work in the manner of Scopas. To the right: 496. Roman woman praying; 587. Noble Roman lady as Fortuna. — The Rotunda is adjoined by the North Room (p. 73), which we traverse to the left to Room I. (inscriptions and architectural fragments). Then follows the —

II. ARCHAIC ROOM, with Greek sculptures of the 6th century B.C. On the left: 1555. Torso of Apollo from Naxos; 1574, 1575 (and 1576, on the right), Seated female figures from Miletus; 1577. Torso of a large female figure (standing). — On the right: *308. Bearded head from Ægina, an admirable Attic work; 1614. Portion of a parapet with sphinxes, from Miletus; modern coloured reproductions of Poros sculptures (three-bodied demon and bulls' heads) from the Acropolis at Athens; above, 734. Fragment of a painted stele; 1531. Fragment of the sepulchral stele of a girl, with traces of colouring, from Attica. In a wall-cabinet: 1474. Graceful small female head from Selinus (1st half of 5th cent.); 732, 731. Early Spartan reliefs (hero-worship). — In the middle, volutes from the corner of an ancient building at Miletus.

III. ETRUSCAN ROOM: Reliefs; sarcophagi and cinerary urns with high reliefs, partly of mythological scenes (3rd and 2nd cent.); in the middle an ancient sarcophagus in peperino, with well-preserved painting. — The following rooms are divided into sections by columns.

IV. WEST ROOM, with Greek sculptures of the 5th and 4th centuries. Beginning at the back: 1494. Female draped figure in a severe style with a late Roman portrait-head, and 605. Head originally belonging to the figure; 83. Goddess (Demeter?), dating from the time of Phidias; 1459. Headless draped figure of a goddess, an excellent work resembling the figures in the pediment of the Parthenon; 229. Torso of a girl in a short garment (runner?), a work in the severe style. — 709a. Votive relief with Hermes and nymphs; 1545. Votive relief from Rhodes, an exquisite Greek work the pillar), Head of Hercules from Pergamon. — 992. Top of a large circular tomb from Falerii (1st cent. B.C.); 462, 463 (by the foremost columns), Heads of barbarians (Germans?). — 363. Head of Antinous; 358. Head of Hadrian (basalt); 843 b. Sarcophagus with scenes from the legend of Medea; 955. Fragment of a large relief from the Esquiline, of the Antonine period. — 494. Girl playing with astragali; *1503. Head of a negro; *384. Head of Caracalla; 958. Relief with weapons of Trajan's time; 903. Relief of Cupid from the Forum of Trajan; 902. Frieze (Cupids with garlands). — 447. Characteristic head of an aged woman; unnumbered, Head of the Emp. Maximinus Thrax (a Goth); 385. Bust of Gordian III.; 461. Head of a barbarian.

UPPER FLOOR.

The double staircase in the North Room ascends to the passage connecting the Old and New Museums (p. 79) and farther up to the upper floor of the Old Museum, with the —

Antiquarium, a collection of small antique works of both ornamental and industrial art. Rooms 5-10, 13, 16, and 17 are being rearranged and are closed at present.

ENTRANCE ROOM I. Nike on a globe, bronze-gilt (2nd cent. A. D.); figures of dead bodies from Pompeii (reductions of casts obtained by filling up the holes in the solidified ashes).

ROOM II. COLLECTION OF ANTIQUE HELMETS. Most of them were deposited on permanent loan by Baron Franz v. Lipperheide (d. 1906). Among the Greek helmets those of the so-called Corinthian shape (with visor resembling a face; 7-4th cent.) may be noticed. On the exit-wall, helmet with half-length figure of Athena, from Melos (3rd-2nd cent.). Among the Italic helmets that in the shape of a pointed hat, with engraved designs, and the sumptuous Roman helmets with embossed reliefs are noteworthy. Here also are a bell-shaped helmet of the Hungarian bronze-period, and a Celtic iron helmet with ornamented bronze bands (another by the exit-wall). In the middle, a gladiator's helmet inlaid with silver; between the windows, half of a colossal helmet in the shape of a Phrygian cap, from a trophy found in the Lake of Nemi near Rome.

ROOM III. BRONZE FIGURES. Larger works: *Torso of a youth (Apollo?), of the end of the 5th cent. B.C., found near Salamis; Figure of Hypnos (god of sleep), an excellent replica of a work of the 4th cent. B.C.; Running boy wearing a wreath, of the early Imperial period, found in the Rhine near Xanten; *Torso of a draped female figure, early Hellenistic, found at Cyzicus (4th cent.); *Boy praying, the arms restored (the 'intention' therefore uncertain), purchased by Frederick the Great and formerly in the palace of Sanssouci (p. 196); — Small bronzes: in the first isolated cabinet, *Objects from the celebrated sanctuary of Zeus at Dodona, comprising an archaic statuette of a youth (6th cent.), two figures of warriors, Zeus as thunderer, with green patina resembling enamel (ca. 500 B.C.), a seated mænad (end of 5th cent. B.C.), and a statuette of Zeus (4th cent.). — By the entrance-wall are works of archaic Greek art: Aphrodite with a flower, from Sparta; Dancers on a dining-table; Youth (Hermes?) with ram, from Crete; small Arcadian figures. Statuettes of the 5th cent.: Goat-headed Pan; Aphrodite with a dove; Girls' figures as the handles of hand-mirrors; Two heads of youths; Hercules, recalling the Farnese statue. — Statuettes of the 4th-1st cent. and of the early Roman period: between the windows, Theseus with the Minotaur; by the exit-wall: Satyr from Pergamon; slaves, negroes, caricatures in the style of Alexandrian art; Mercury from Lyons. — By the back-wall statuettes found to the N. of the Alps: Dionysos, silvered, from Pomerania. — Utensils decorated with figures; tripods, vessels, folding mirror.

ROOM IV. The chief object here is the Hildesheim Silver Treasure*, found in 1868 on the Galgenberg near Hildesheim, consisting of Roman plate of the time of Augustus. Some of the objects possess great artistic merit, particularly the round dish with a relief of Athena, the large cratera (vessel for mixing), the cups with masks, and the laurel cup. — On the left —

GREEK, ETRUSCAN, AND ROMAN GOLD AND SILVER ORNAMENTS. Small golden plates with archaic designs, from Rhodes (7th cent. B.C.). Silver treasure from Hermoupolis (Egypt; 2nd cent. B.C.); silver ornaments from Luxor (2nd cent. A.D.): large silver dish with hunting-scene in the middle and a frieze of masks and animals on the margin. Decorations (phaleræ) of a Roman officer, found at Lauersfort. — On the right, objects from a Celtic tomb near Birkenfeld. *Gold treasure found at Vetttersfelde in Lower Lusatia (6th cent. B.C., from the colonies on the Black Sea); *Treasure of the early Imperial period found at Pedescia in the Sabine Mts.: gold bracelets in the shape of snakes, rings, cut stones, etc. Heads of Demosthenes and of Silenus from silver bowls (Mysia, 2nd cent. B.C.). — We now return to Room III and proceed to —

ROOM VII. OBJECTS FROM PERGAMON, PRIENE, AND BOSCO REALE. Small objects from Pergamon and Priene (comp. p. 83), mostly of the Hellenistic period: bronzes, terracottas, coal-pans, etc. Bronze utensils and vessels from the dining-room and the kitchen of a villa at Bosco Reale near Pompeii, etc. Dining-couch with inlaid ornaments in silver and copper. Fragments of wall-paintings and reliefs in stucco from Rome and Pompeii. Mosaics: Centaur protecting the body of his wife, from the villa of Hadrian at Tivoli; Festival at the rising of the Nile, from Palestrina.

ROOM VIII. BRONZE VESSELS. Greek, Etruscan, and Roman vessels. Domestic utensils, lamps, and candelabra. Weapons, except helmets (see Room II). Articles used in the palaestra (strigils, oil-bottles, etc.; engraved discs). Ornamental pins in chronological order. Rings, bracelets, and other bronze ornaments. Etruscan cists and hand-glasses (4th-3rd cent.; notice the Semele mirror). Amulets. — Inscriptions on bronze and lead; the earliest known Greek letter (4th cent.), on lead, from Attica.

ROOM IX. GLASS AND CUT STONES. Small bottles, vases, etc., in opaque, generally dark-blue glass, with yellow and white stripes, from Oriental or Oriental-Greek factories. Larger polychrome glass-vessels of the 1st cent. B.C. and the 1st cent. A.D. Monochrome or colourless, glass vessels, mostly from the Rhine district. So-called Diatretum, a glass vessel enveloped in a raised network of glass. — Chains of beads in glass, stone, and fayence. — Intaglios from the Cretan-Mycenæan epoch down to the latest period of Greek art; large rock-crystal with bust of Athena, signed by Eutyches. — Cameos: Gorgon's head of the Ptolemæan period; Hercules with Cerberus, by Dioscurides, of the time of Augustus; large onyx cameo with the apotheosis of an emperor (Septimius Severus?). — Carvings in amber, ivory, and bone.

ROOM X. CYPRUS. Vessels from the earliest period, recalling the early Trojan pottery, down to the Hellenistic epoch. Fine sepulchral figure of a woman seated on a throne (4th cent. B.C.). Statuettes and fragments of archaic statues in terracotta and stone; the faces of the men and the gorgeous semi-barbaric ornaments of the women should be noticed. Archaic bronze carriage, as support for a kettle. Objects from Gordion in Phrygia, comprising a bowl with the signature of the Attic painter Klitias. — Prehistoric antiquities from the Greek islands. — Cretan-Mycenæan art (ca. 1500-1000 B.C.): bronzes (praying woman, figure of a youth), terracottas (bull, idols), copies. — We return to Room I and proceed straight on to —

ROOM XI. GREEK TERRACOTTAS. Between the windows, Archaic figures from Tanagra: women baking, washing, with a pan; barber, cook. — Severe style (1st half of 5th cent.), in the central cabinets: Youths and girls, sometimes with attributes of deities; charming little temple with Hermes and two goddesses. By the entrance-wall (2nd half of 5th cent. and 4th cent.): Girl with a duck, from Corinth; anointing vessels in the shape of figures or groups, from Attica. — By the other walls: Figures of girls, Cupids and characteristic popular types, those by the exit-wall from Asia Minor (3rd-2nd cent. B.C.). — In the window-cases: Reliefs of the first half of the 5th cent. (Ulysses and Penelope from Rhodes, Calydonian hunt from Melos); figures from a vessel, representing an abduction, from Tanagra. — Traversing the adjacent R. XII, we next enter —

cottas from Pæstum and Campania. Archaic Etruscan antefixæ and slabs from the facing of entablatures, with reliefs. Terracotta reliefs with various representations, originally painted (end of the Republic and early Imperial epoch).

ROOM XII. ARCHAIC VASES. Greek and Roman lamps. Vessels with geometrical ornamentation (ca. 1000-800 B.C.); figures begin to appear on the later ones, e. g. the large amphora from Hymettus (left, No. 56). — Boeotian bowls, with birds. — Small 'Proto-Corinthian' vases, with friezes of pygmy figures. — Corinthian 'Pinakes' (votive tablets of potters), with scenes in potteries. — Corinthian black-figured vessels: 1655. Large cratera with the expedition of Amphiaræos and the funeral games for Pelias; 1652. Amphora with the deliverance of Andromeda. — Black-figured vases from Ionian, Ionian-Italic, and early Attic workshops. — Panathenæan prize-amphoræ with Athena (at the end of main passage). — By the long wall, terracotta sarcophagi from Klazomenæ, two of them in the manner of the red-figured vases.

ROOM XIV. BLACK-FIGURED AND EARLIER RED-FIGURED ATTIC VASES (the former till the end of the 6th, the latter of the 6th and early 5th cent.). In the middle, handsome large amphoræ: a black-figured one with horsemen, found near Athens; 2159. Large amphora from the workshop of Andokides (theft of the tripod and scene from the palaestra), one of the earliest works in the red-figured style; red-figured amphora with Hermes and Silenus. At the back, amphoræ from Nola. To the left, red-figured lecythi.

ROOM XV. RED-FIGURED ATTIC VASES. Earlier period: 2278, 2279. Bowls of Sosias and of Peithinos, both revealing most careful drawing; 2285. Bowl of Duris with teaching-scene; 2294. Bowl with brass-founder's workshop. — Middle of 5th cent.: large cratera with Orpheus and the Thracians, by the entrance-wall. — Second half of the 5th cent. (the period of the finest style): 2531. Bowl of the painter Aristophanes, with Battle of the Giants; 2633, 2634. Two hydriæ (companion pieces), Cadmus slaying the dragon, Judgment of Paris; graceful ointment-vessel, decorated with gold and colours. — Vases with polychrome painting on a white ground; lecythi with funeral designs. — Vases from workshops in Lucania and Campania (end of 5th cent. and 4th cent.).

ROOM XVI. Red-figured vases of Italian workmanship; Hellenistic and Roman pottery. — Black vessels with striated patterns; 2581. Large and excellently preserved black hydria of Attic workmanship. — Vases with reliefs; cups with designs from Greek poems. — Red Sigillata vessels from Arezzo and other places (1st cent. B.C. and 1st cent. A.D.). — Fragments of moulds used in making vases with reliefs.

ROOM XVII. ITALIC-ETRUSCAN ART. Vases of black clay ('Bucchero nero') with plastic ornamentation; imitations of metal vessels (7th-5th cent.). — Early Italic bronze vessels, weapons and utensils. — Objects found in tombs: Tomb from Chiusi, Tomba del Guerriero (tomb of the warrior) from Corneto-Tarquinii (7th cent.); large family-tomb from the environs of Volterra (3rd cent.). — Vases with vivaciously painted heads, recalling popular types. — Roman vases from the Rhenish provinces. — Mycenæan vessels.

b. The New Museum.

Pergamenian Sculptures. Antiquities from Asia Minor.

ADMISSION, see p. 38. — Official printed Guide, see p. 72. Lift from Room XI of the groundfloor to Room IX of the middle story and to the first exhibition-room of the cabinet of engravings (10 pf.).

The New Museum was erected by Stüler in the Renaissance style in 1843-55 (length 344 ft., depth 130 ft.; height of the central part, with the grand staircase, 102 ft.). The exterior of this edifice is comparatively insignificant, but its internal decorations are rich and artistic.

The main entrance is on the E. side, opposite the National Gallery. — The PASSAGE (p. 75) connecting the Old and New Museums leads to the first floor of the latter. The visitor is recommended to traverse Rooms X, XI, and XII and enter the imposing Staircase (Pl. II), 125 ft. in length, 50 ft. in width, and 65 ft. in height, which occupies the centre of the building. A broad flight of steps leads from the groundfloor (p. 80) to the first story, and two narrower ones from the first to the second (p. 82).

Six colossal MURAL PAINTINGS by W. von Kaulbach, executed in 1847-66, representing important epochs in the history of mankind, adorn the upper walls of the staircase: 1. Building of the Tower of Babel (division of nations); 2. Golden Age of Greece (Homer and the Greeks); 3. Destruction of Jerusalem by Titus (rise of Christianity); 4. Battle of the Huns (wandering of the nations); 5. The Crusaders before Jerusalem under Godfrey de Bouillon (middle ages); 6. The Reformation. — Over the doors are figures of Tradition and History, Science and Poetry. Between the large pictures appear the law-givers Moses, Solon, Charlemagne, and Frederick the Great; above them, Egypt, Greece, Italy, Germany. On the window-walls are allegorical figures of Sculpture, Painting, Architecture, and Engraving. Around the entire hall, beneath the richly-decorated open ceiling, runs a Frieze, bearing a humorous representation (in grisaille) of the history of the development of mankind, terminating with Humboldt leaning on his Cosmos, the whole hardly intelligible without a detailed explanation.

FIRST FLOOR.

The first floor of the New Museum and the passage leading to the Old Museum are occupied by the very extensive and valuable Collection of Casts from the antique. Scientific catalogue by Friederichs (2nd edit. by Wolters, 1885; 12 M). Room III contains also Greek landscapes, and Room X mural paintings from the Greek heroic myths. — Rooms XI and XII contain the casts of the sculptures discovered during the excavations carried on by Ernst Curtius in 1876-81 at Olympia at the expense of the German Government, and the duplicates of original sculptures found on the same occasion.

The originals of the first-named sculptures remain at Olympia. The chief objects here are the two Pediment Groups from the Temple of Zeus, by an unknown sculptor of the beginning of the 5th cent. B.C. The E. Pediment represents the preparations for the chariot race between Pelops and Oenomaos, which Curtius describes as follows. In the centre stands Zeus, with Pelops and Hippodamia on his right, and King Oenomaos and his wife Sterope on his left; to the right and left of these appear the two four-horse chariots, held by kneeling charioteers, beyond which, on the left, are a seated man, a kneeling girl, and lastly the recumbent figure of the river-god Alpheus, and, on the right, a bald-headed old man, a boy seated on the ground, and the river-god Cladeus. In the W. Pediment the struggle between the Lapithæ and the Centaurs at the marriage of Pirithous is depicted. In the middle is Apollo extending his right hand in a commanding gesture, while on each side are groups of combatants; to the left a Centaur abducting a woman and attacked by Pirithous; to the right, Theseus protecting a woman against her abductors; to the left again, a Centaur carrying off a boy, and to the right, a kneeling Lapith strangling a Centaur; the succeeding groups on each side resemble the first groups, but with the figures in a kneeling position; the composition terminates with a recumbent female form at each end.

The chief single figures in R. XI are those of the Hermes of Praxiteles, the only authenticated and at the same time well preserved masterpiece of the greatest Greek sculptor of the 4th cent., and of the Nike of Paeonios, erected at the beginning of the Peloponnesian War, in which the sculptor has most admirably succeeded in representing the goddess of Victory in the act of flying. — Room XII: Casts of the metopes from the temple of Jupiter, discovered partly as early as 1829, and depicting the labours of Hercules; attempts of restoring the figures of Hermes and Nike; models of the pediments of the Temple of Jupiter.

From the staircase (see above) we descend to the —

GROUND FLOOR.

Direct entrance see p. 79.

The groundfloor is occupied by the Egyptian Museum, one of the most important collections of the kind, founded by Passalacqua, and greatly extended by Lepsius in 1842-46. The acquisitions of more recent times have crowded the available space to such an extent that some of the rooms are not accessible at present. Illustrated catalogue, 2nd edit., 1899 (3 M).

The VESTIBULE contains, on the N. side, an obelisk of Ramses II., a head of King Har-em-heb, and sacred monkeys. S. side, see p. 81. — We pass through the anteroom next the staircase and enter the —

COLONNADE COURT (Pl. IV), which, together with Room V (closed), represents the main features of an Egyptian temple. On the side nearest the entrance: Statues of the lion-headed goddess Sekhmet.

In the middle: *Small antiquities of the earliest period, from tombs at Abydos and Abusir, some with the hieroglyphic sign of King Menes (about 3500 B.C.); alabaster vessel on a support which has played an important part in the deciphering of Ethiopian inscriptions; two criosphinxes (that on the right a cast). In the back-ground are two large figures of kings in a sitting posture, in porphyry:

to the left Ramses II., to the right Usertesen I. (2100 B.C.), the upper part restored. Behind them are wooden coffins of Mentu-hotep (right) and Hennui (left), with the figures dedicated to the dead. On the walls are paintings of Egyptian landscapes, and papyrus MSS., protected by curtains.

The closed rooms around the Colonnade Court contain objects of the period from 2200 to 660 B.C., the most important of which may be mentioned here. — Early Empire (after 2800): Sacrificial chambers from tombs: 1106. of Meten; 1107. of Mer-eb, son of King Kheops; 1108. of Manofer. Excellent reliefs: 15,420. Boat among lotus and papyrus plants; 14,642. Fattening poultry; 1129. Flax-harvest; fragments of scenes from animal life. Statues: 10,858. of Per-her-nofret, 15,701. of the major-domo Dersenez. — Middle-Empire (after 2200): 1121. Statue of Amen-em-het; 1570. Statue of an official; well preserved mummy (about 2000). — New Empire (after 1600). 2299, 2300. Sphinx heads with the features of Queen Hatshepsu; 2296. Statue of Senmut with a little princess in her lap; 2297. Statue of Ptahmai and his family. 2. Stone coffin of the general Meriti. Reliefs: 2058, 2079. from the tomb of Sethos I.; 10,859. Wooden relief of Tamaket. *12,411, 12,412, 2088, 289. Scenes from funerals. 2061, 2062. Stucco paintings from Thebes. From the time of Amenophis IV., who tried to introduce a new religion: 15,335, 15,336. Painted stucco tablets from El-Amarna (ducks among reeds); 15,000. The king with his consort, 14,115. with his family; 14,113. Head of his daughter. — Libyan and Ethiopian Period (after 1100). 2094. Relief from Karnak: captive Jews in the war of King Shishak; 1482. Fragment of a chapel of the Ethiopian king Shabataka.

In Room VIII. the *Objects found in tombs of Upper Egypt are provisionally arranged. They were discovered in the royal tombs of Abydos and Negade and in the burying-ground near Abusir-el-Melek, and belong partly to the 1st Dynasty (ca. 3000 B.C.), partly to a still earlier (pre-dynastic) period. Catalogue 20 pf.

—Mummies in sitting posture, sewn up in leather or mats; clay coffins. Vessels, comprising several in clay imitating stone-vessels; large tankard in alabaster. Slate slabs for grinding paint, mostly in the shape of animals. Cabinet to the left: Carvings, e.g. legs of cattle as supports of tables, figures of men and of animals; potsherds with hieroglyphics (showing the name of the earliest king Menes). Cabinet M: Draught-board with the pieces belonging to it.

ROOM IX., OF THE LATE PERIOD (after 660 B.C.). Numerous coffins; figures of deities and sacred animals, temple utensils, mummies of sacred animals. *12,500. Head of an old priest, in an unusual style (7th to 6th cent.); 10,114. Statuette of a queen; 2309. Statuette of a priestess; 11,404. Bronze head of a capricorn; 10,972. Statuette of an old man; 14,463. Vessel with the name of Artaxerxes in four languages; 2271. Statue of a general; 2123. Head in the Phœnician style from a marble sarcophagus; 2115. Relief with several of the Ptolemies. — In Passage X: 7733. Inscription of Zenobia, Queen of Palmyra, referring to a synagogue.

ROOM OF THE ROMAN PERIOD (Pl. XI). At the back (adjoining the lift): 31. Wooden coffin in the form of the goddess Hathor; 17,039. Coffin in the shape of a chapel. Terracotta figures of household gods, etc.; stucco heads from mummies; 17,126. Chapel with coffin of a child. — Mummies of the 2nd and 3rd cent. A.D. found in the Fayûm (Central Egypt), with portraits on wood or linen. The portrait of Aline and the gilded mask of her husband should be noticed. Palls (13,277. that of Dion). — Christian Period: Greek and Coptic inscriptions, textiles, writing materials. Adjoining the vestibule is the — NUBIAN ROOM (Pl. XII; closed). 2268. Monument of victory erected by King Nastesen; by the back-wall, marks indicating the level of the Nile. — Other Nubian antiquities on the S. side of the vestibule (comp. p. 80): 1157. Monument of victory of King Senvosret III. (1870 B.C.); 2261. Nubian king adoring Isis, from a pyramid at Meroë.

SECOND FLOOR.

In the staircase of the New Museum (p. 79) the stairs below the wall-paintings ascend to the second floor, which contains the engravings. Lift, see p. 79.

The Cabinet of Engravings contains engravings, woodcuts, and lithographs (300,000 plates); drawings by artists who died before 1800 (among which the German and Dutch schools are especially well represented); illustrated MSS. of the 10-16th cent.; old illustrated books; and lastly an extensive collection of photographs of paintings and drawings. Among the recent acquisitions are the Posony Dürer Collection, the illustrated MSS. from the library of the Duke of Hamilton, including 84 illustrations to Dante by Botticelli (d. 1510), engravings by Rembrandt from various private collections, including those presented by Baron von Lipperheide, the drawings by Italian masters (about 4000) of the Beckerath Collection, and the engravings, etchings, and wood-cuts by modern artists which are constantly augmented. Portfolios of engravings are shown on application Tues.-Sat. 10-3. — To the left (N.) the students' room for ancient art. By the entrance, behind a curtain, is an excellent water-colour portrait of Countess Potocka (d. 1823), probably by Kucharski (18th cent.). To the right (S.) are two rooms where a varying selection of the best drawings and engravings is exhibited, adjoined by the students' room for modern art.

Of the Pergamon Sculptures, until the completion of a new Pergamon Museum (p. 81), the most important are placed in the colonnade in front of the E. side of the New Museum, to the right and left of the entrance (p. 79).

Visitors are admitted at the hours when the Museum is open by applying to the chief custodian on the 1st floor (Room 12). — Guide to the Pergamon Museum (1904), 30 pf.; Guide to the Ruins of Pergamon (4th ed., 1905; 80 pf.).

On the Acropolis of Pergamon in Asia Minor, King Eumenes II. erected about 180 B.C. a huge altar in honour of his victory over the Gauls of Asia Minor, and dedicated it to Zeus (and perhaps Athena). It had the form of a rectangular podium or platform, 30 ft. in height, 113 ft. broad, and 124 ft. in length at its base. A flight of steps, 65 ft. broad (see below), let into the front, ascends to the top. Round the outside of the altar (including the side-walls of the flight of steps), above a kind of dado or pedestal, 7½ ft. in height, ran the famous Marble Frieze of the Gigantomachia*, also 7½ ft. high, representing the contest of the Gods and Titans with of the Giants, many of whom are represented in half human, half animal form. On the platform at the top of the flight of steps stood the sacrificial altar, which was surrounded by a low colonnade, with elegant Ionic columns. The inner side of the rear wall was decorated with the Telephos Frieze, 5 ft. in height, depicting the history of Telephos, the mythical founder of Pergamon. In 1871 the engineer Karl Humann (d. 1896) discovered several isolated reliefs built into a mediæval fortification wall, and in 1878-80 succeeded in bringing to light the whole of this most valuable work of art, which is the largest existing monument of Greek sculpture, and rivals in importance the Parthenon sculptures in the British Museum. The sculptures are characterized by strong dramatic feeling and great boldness in the representation of scenes of excitement; and at the same time they reveal a knowledge of the human form, a richness of fancy, and a mastery of execution, such as are displayed in no other antique remains on so large a scale.

In the colonnade the figures in high relief, still preserved, which in many cases were reconstructed from numerous small fragments, are arranged in long rows intersected by the entrance to the Museum. The following are the more important groups and figures of the Frieze of the Gigantomachia exhibited on the wall of the Museum, beginning at the former steps and proceeding from left to right. On the Left Side: Dionysos; various deities, including Cybele mounted on a lion, in combat with a monster in the form of a bull; Selene on horseback; Helios in floating drapery in his chariot; Aurora riding through the heavens; a lion-headed giant being strangled by a youth; Phoebe and her opponents; Asteria supported by a dog; Bearded giant in combat with the triple-headed Hecate; Artemis and the youthful Otos; Tityos hard pressed by the torch of Leto; magnificent torso of Apollo in the background. On the Right Side are the main groups: Zeus destroying three opponents with thunderbolts, and Athena grasping Alkyoneus (son of Gæa, the earth-goddess) by the hair (the Alkyoneus is interesting on account of the resemblance to the Laocoon); Castor defending himself against Idas; Nyx hurling a vessel encircled by a serpent; a goddess, supposed to be Medusa, supported by a lion. On the Front and on the adjacent side-wall of the staircase are marine deities, including the fantastic form of Triton, and the mighty Oceanus.—The numerous and in part uninterpreted fragments of the Telephos Frieze are exhibited in both divisions between the columns.

In the colonnade on the Spree, beyond the National Gallery, the other objects found in Pergamon, along with those brought in 1891-1899 from Magnesia on the Mæander and Priene, are preserved (not accessible). A few Pergamenian sculptures are in the N. room of the Old Museum (comp. p. 74).

The Collection of Antiquities from Western Asia is provisionally exhibited in a separate building at the N. end of the Kleine Museum-Str. (see Plan, p. 55). Admission on week-days 11-1.30, by application to the Director.

GROUND FLOOR (mostly originals). To the left are Assyrian Alabaster Slabs from the palaces of King Assur-Nasir-Pal (885-860 B.C.) and Sennacherib (705-681 B.C.) at Kalah and Nineveh (the modern Nimroud and Kouyunjik), with reliefs of winged deities, kings, hunting and battle scenes, and processions. Niche A: Early Babylonian inscriptions (ca. 3000 B.C.) and statuettes; objects from S. Babylonian crematoria. Niche B: Babylonian, Assyrian, and Persian stone seals (the earliest in the shape of cylinders); documental stone of the Babylonian King Merodachbaladan (714). Niche C: Assyrian bell; monument to King Sargon (722-705), from Cyprus. Niche D, in a case, Relief of Sennacherib and his favourite horse. Before the partition-walls: fragment of an ancient Babylonian memorial stone with a relief of the primæval king Gudea; Babylonian tiles (from Tello) with cuneiform inscriptions dating back to 3000 B.C.; tile with the stamp of Nebuchadnezzar (604-561).—At the end of Room I. L: Punic tomb-stone, with Latin and Punic inscriptions; two colossal lions from Sendjerli (see below); in front, fragment of a colossal statue of King Panammu from N. Syria (ca. 720 B.C.); statue of the God Hadad, with ancient Aramaic inscription; to the right, memorial stone of the Armenian King Rusas I. (ca. 720).—On the right side of the room are the so-called Little Sculptures, discovered in 1888-91 in N. Syria (Sendjerli) and Asia Minor, some dating from between 1000 and 2000 B.C.

NATIONAL GALLERY

First Floor

These are mainly mural reliefs (lion-hunt; deities with animals' heads); several bear ancient Aramaic inscriptions (King Barrakub with attendants); wine-vessel, double sphinx as base of a column. — In the middle: cast of a diorite slab found in 1901 at Susa, with the laws of King Hammurabi (ca. 2500 B.C.), the oldest existing civil code (original in the Louvre); eight enamelled slabs of brick with animals, from a triumphal avenue at Babylon. Monument of victory of the Assyrian king Asarhaddon (681-668). — On the STAIRCASE are casts of Assyrian monuments, chiefly from Nimroud.

FIRST FLOOR. To the left, casts of antiquities from Assyria, Phœnicia, and S. Arabia; to the right, casts from Cyprus, Persia, and Kommagene in Syria, and also of Hittite sculptures (see above). Among the most valuable originals are (in Niche F, to the left) the terracotta tablets found at El-Amarna in Central Egypt, consisting of letters addressed by Asiatic princes (one being from Jerusalem) and Egyptian vassals to the Pharaohs Amenophis III. and IV. (ca. 1400 B.C.). Niche G: Babylonian terracotta tablets (commercial documents, list of words, ground-plan of a palace). Niche H: Antiquities from Palmyra (3rd cent. A.D.); seals from N. Syria, Cyprus, and Chaldæa. Niche J: Leadén coffin from Jerusalem; Armenian bronzes. To the right (Niches K and L): Sculptures (and casts) from the tomb of King Antiochus I. of Kommagene (69-34 B.C.). In the centre, Babylonian inscribed cylinders, particularly cylinders commemorating the buildings of Nebuchadnezzar (604-562) and Nabonêdus (555-538); terracotta dishes with magic spells.

c. The National Gallery.

ADMISSION, see p. 40. Lift to the upper stories see p. 87. — The official Catalogue (1908, 2½, bound 3 M) contains short biographical and other notices and 300 illustrations. The names of the artists and the subjects represented are given on each work.

To the E. of the New Museum, in the centre of a square surrounded with Doric colonnades and embellished with flower-beds, rises the *National Gallery (Pl. R, 26), designed by Stüler in accordance with a plan of Frederick William IV., and built by Strack in 1866-76. The building is of red sandstone, and erected in the form of a Corinthian temple, 206 ft. long and 102 ft. wide, elevated on a basement 39 ft. in height. At the S. end is a portico of eight columns, and at the N. a semicircular apse. The sculptures are by M. Schulz, Calandrelli, and Moser. At the top of the imposing flight of steps in front of the S. façade is an Equestrian Statue of Frederick William IV., by Calandrelli (1886), with allegorical figures of religion, history, science, and art on the pedestal. — Several sculptures, mostly in bronze, have been placed in the gardens near the Museum. In front, by the fountain: Max Kruse, Messenger bringing the news of the victory of Marathon; A. Gaul, Lion. To the left: Louis Tuaillon*, Amazon on horseback; Heinrich Baucke, Victorious barbarian; Karl Janssen, Woman breaking stone; Ludwig Sussmann-Hellborn, Drunken Faun. To the right: Adolf Brütt, Saved; Max Klein, Fountain-group (marble); August Kraus, Ball-thrower; Nikolaus Friedrich, Archer; Erich Hösel, Hun on horseback; F. Lepke, Archeress.

The collection in the National Gallery, the nucleus of which was formed by 262 pictures bequeathed by Consul J. H. Wagener (d. 1861), now contains more than 1100 paintings and cartoons, 233 sculptures, and 33,000 drawings and water-colours; all by masters, chiefly German, of the 19th and 20th centuries. Director, Prof. Ludwig Justi.

The entrance is under the outside flight of steps.

Returning to the Cupola Room, we now enter the —

MENZEL SALOON. The upper parts of the walls are decorated by Ed. Bendemann with allegorical figures symbolizing the creation of a work of art. In the centre, *20. Reinh. Begas, Bust of Menzel.

The room contains chiefly battlepieces and portraits. Much the finest are those by A. von Menzel: to the right, 220. Rolling-mill (1875); *975. Frederick addressing his generals before the battle of Lützen (unfinished); *219. Flute-concert at Sanssouci (1852); *218. Frederick II.'s round table at Sanssouci (1850); to the right, 481. Adam, Cavalry attack at Sedan (1870); 602. Heinrich von Angeli, Emp. William I.

CORNELIUS SALOON. The wall-paintings, by Peter Janssen, depict the Sway of Cupid, the Seasons and the Periods of the Day; in the spandrels, Olympus, the realms of Neptune and Hades. This room contains *Cartoons by Peter v. Cornelius for the Campo Santo, a royal burial-place planned by Frederick William IV. (see p. 63). Soon after his removal to Berlin (1841) Cornelius commenced this work, and he was engaged upon it down to the day of his death (1867). The scenes were intended to represent in connection with the Apocalypse, the Redemption of Man, the Incarnation, the Sway of the Church, and Last Judgment. Above each painting is a lunette, and below is a narrow painting in which the chief subject is illustrated and explained, while between the principal paintings were to be placed eight small groups, typifying the Beatitudes of the Sermon on the Mount. The finest of the principal paintings are the *Apocalyptical Riders (to the right, No. 6; one of the most remarkable creations of the artist), the Resurrection of the Body, and the Descent of the Holy Ghost. While in these we admire the richness of conception, the dramatic life, and the boldness of the drawing, the groups of the Beatitudes appeal to us by the beauty and compactness of their outlines, no less than by the expressiveness of their figures. On the S. wall are *Five cartoons for the frescoes in the town-hall at Aix-la-Chapelle by Alfred Rethel (scenes from the life of Charlemagne). On the walls of the apse are five decorative biblical landscapes by Joh. Wilh. Schirmer; in front (No. 15) a colossal bust of Cornelius by Wittig; to the right and left, marble busts of Emp. William I. by Jos. von Kopf (103) and of Empress Augusta by Bernh. Römer (70).

The third floor is reached by a marble staircase, on the walls of which are: *84. Louis Gallait, The last hour of Count Egmont, 366. K. Chr. Vogel von Vogelstein, Ludwig Tieck; 661. Luis Alvarez, Philip II. on his rock-seat near the Escorial; *443. H.

Makart, Venice doing homage to Catharine Cornaro; Queen of Cyprus; 996. Francesco Paolo Michetti, The daughter of Jorio.

THIRD FLOOR. (Lift, see p. 87.)

The ANTEROOM (I) is decorated with good mural paintings by Paul Meyerheim, representing nature at the different seasons (covered at present). This room contains chiefly paintings and sculptures of the early 19th century. Paintings: to the left, 1081. Raphael Mengs, Portrait of himself; *593. Anton Graff, Henriette Herz; above, *898. J. G. v. Edlinger, Count Preysing; 605. Joh. Heinr. Tischbein, Family group; *561, *568, 484. Anton Graff, Portraits of himself, Female portrait; Ed. von Heuss, 525 a. Cornelius, 525 b. Overbeck; above, 606. J. H. Tischbein, Councillor Ch. Fr. Robert; *503. Friedr. Tischbein, Lute-player; J. A. Koch, 554. Sabine landscape, 413. The convent of San Francesco di Civitella in the Sabine Mts.; 1060. J. Tischbein, Lessing (at the age of 30); 908. Heinrich Füger, Princess Galizin. — Busts: *218. J. O. A. Tassaert, Zieten (bronze); Gottfr. Schadow, 197, 198. Frederick William III. and Queen Louise (bronze), *144. Princess Frederica of Prussia (terracotta), *196. Crown Princess Louise (model in plaster); 167. Friedr. Hagemann, Kant (bronze);

219. Tassaert, Mendelssohn (bronze). — 201, 202. Gottfr. Schadow, Designs for monuments of Prince Leopold of Dessau and Zieten. — Smaller sculptures by G. Schadow and others.

Room II, to the left, contains Frescoes from the history of Joseph, which were skilfully transferred hither from Rome in 1888. They were executed in 1816-18 for the Prussian consul-general Bartholdy in Rome, by the most eminent German artists then resident in that city, and formerly adorned a room in his house, the Casa Zuccari (since also called Casa Bartholdy). They are interesting as being the first important creation of modern German painting. The Interpretation of Pharaoh's dream (No. 587) and the *Recognition of the brothers (585) are by Peter von Cornelius; the Selling of Joseph (581), and the Seven Years of Famine (588), by Fried. Overbeck; Joseph and Potiphar's wife (583), and the Seven Years of Plenty (586), by Philipp Veit; Joseph interpreting dreams in prison (584), and the Brothers bringing the bloody coat to Jacob (582), by Wilh. von Schadow. — Sculptures: Gottfr. Schadow, *99. Countess Lichtenau (marble bust), 212. Girl sleeping (plaster), 12. Girl resting, *47. Goethe (marble bust); 26. Ant. Canova, Hebe.

A passage (in which is No. *109. The return of the miners, a bronze relief by C. Meunier) leads to the left from the anteroom to —

Room III, which contains works by pre-impressionist foreign artists. Paintings: to the left, *912. Francisco Goya, Bull-fight; above, 892. Thomas Couture, Female head; *891. Gustave Courbet, The wave (1870); 690. John Constable, Village on the Stour; above, 751. *R. The *Collection of Drawings, in Cab. 4, Room VIII, Corridor VII, and Room VI, consists of about 30,000 sketches and water-colours by German, and several hundred by foreign artists of the 19th cent., among whom we may specify Bellermann, Blechen, Böcklin, Carstens, J. Constable, H. E. Cross, F. Dreber, Feuerbach, Friedrich, Genelli, Greiner, Guys, Knaus, W. v. Kobell, F. Krüger, C. Larsson, Leibl, Liebermann, Menzel, Pfannschmidt, Preller, Rethel, L. Richter, Rodin, Runge, Schnorr von Carolsfeld, Schwind, P. Signac, Const. Somoff, E. von Steinle, A. Th. Steinlen, J. M. Swan, J. Toorop, etc. Catalogue 2 M. Some of the finest specimens are exhibited.

e. The Emperor Frederick Museum.

This museum, situated to the N.W. of the last-mentioned, is not directly accessible thence, but must be reached by a circuit via the Iron Bridge and the Kupfergraben (8 min. from the Old Museum; comp. Plan, p. 58). — Tramways: through the Charlotten-Str. (W.) see p. 145, through the Museum-Str. and from the Kupfergraben see p. 71.

ADMISSION, see p. 40. — Official GUIDE (4th ed., 1909) 1/2 M. Detailed 'Descriptive Catalogue of the Paintings' (6th ed., 1906) 1 M., with 81 photographs 10 M.

The Emperor Frederick Museum (Pl. R, 23), situated at the N.W. end of the 'museum-island', beyond the Stadtbahn, was built by Ilhne in 1898-1903 and opened in 1904. Two bridges, from the Monbijou-Strasse (p. 146) and from the street Am Kupfergraben, lead to the entrance, at the N.W. angle, opposite which rises the equestrian Statue of Emperor Frederick III., by Maison. The Italian baroque style has been adopted for the building, the two chief façades of which rise directly from the Spree and the Kupfergraben, while the third is turned towards the Stadtbahn. The corner with the entrance is rounded off into a semicircle; six massive columns support its upper story, which is crowned by the main dome. A smaller dome, above the rear staircase, rises over the centre of the façade towards the Stadtbahn. On the attic are ten statues by A. Vogel and Widemann, six of which represent the Arts and four the most prominent Art Cities.

The museum contains on the GROUND FLOOR, on the N. side, the early-Christian, Byzantine, Romanesque, and Gothic monuments, and the works of Coptic and Persian-Mohammedan art; on the S. side the German sculptures, alternating with easel-pictures, the greater number of the painted Italian sculptures, and the cabinet of coins. In the chief room are ranged the larger altar-pieces, both plastic and painted. The FIRST FLOOR is occupied by the picture-gallery: on the N. side the Romanesque Schools (Italian, French, Spanish), on the S. side the Germanic (Dutch, German, Flemish). Along with the former are exhibited Italian bronzes, marble sculptures, Della Robbia works, and the collection presented in 1904 by James Simon, while with the others are shown the collections of Adolph Thiem (acquired in 1904) and Carstanjen (on loan).

GROUND FLOOR.

The chief entrance admits us to the GREAT STAIRCASE (Pl. 1), decorated in the style of the time of the Great Elector. In the middle is a bronze cast of the Statue of the Great Elector by Schlüter (see p. 71), on the original pedestal. The stairs and the lift (10 pf., opposite the cloak-room) lead to the picture-gallery (p. 104).

Passing through a CORRIDOR (Pl. 2), with German baroque sculptures of the 18th cent. (comprising an Archangel Michael by Andreas Bergmüller and figures in the style of F. A. Günther and G. R. Donner), we enter the — BASILICA (Pl. 3), designed in the style of a Florentine church of the early 16th century. In the centre of the spacious hall stand two ancient columns, one bearing the 'Marzocco', or heraldic lion of Florence, the other the she-wolf of Siena. Beyond them is a lectern with intarsia work (1531), between *Choir-stalls with intarsia work by Pantaleone de Marchis (ca. 1495). On the pillars and in the stained-glass windows are coats of arms of Florentine families (15th and 16th cent.).

The large niches in the walls are occupied by a series of large altar-pieces, painted and carved. To the right: 259. Begarelli, Crucifixion, from Modena (ca. 1530); 287. Giac. and Giulio Francia, Madonna enthroned; 130. Ascension, glazed terracotta relief from the studio of the Della Robbia; 249. Fra Bartolomeo, Assumption; 192. Processional Madonna, from the Mark of Ancona (ca. 1500); above, 171. Venetian sepulchral monument (ca. 1530). — To the right and left of the exit, two Venetian sacristy fountains; in the lunette above the door, 205. Bust of Pope Alexander VI. (ca. 1500); on the balcony above it, 165. Tullio or Antonio Lombardi, Two shield-bearers (from the Vendramin tomb in the Frari at Venice). — In the niches of the left side-wall, beginning near the exit: 128a. Giovanni della Robbia, Pietà, in coloured terracotta; 191. Paris Bordone, Madonna enthroned with saints; 118. Andrea della Robbia, Madonna enthroned with saints, a glazed altar-piece, dating from the artist's middle period; 1165. Luigi Vivarini, Madonna enthroned with saints (1503); Andrea della Robbia, Stone altar from Brescia with St. Dorothea. — The door to the left of this niche leads to —

Room 4, which contains three Venetian fountains and a prayer-niche from Damascus. To the left are Coptic textiles from Egypt (4th-8th cent.), to the right Arabian textiles from Egypt (8th-13th cent.). The walls are hung with Oriental tapestry. — The door on the left leads into the — COPTIC ROOM (5), in which is exhibited an interesting collection of examples of the art of the Christian inhabitants of Egypt. Most of the work and at the same time the best of it belongs to the early-Christian epoch (3rd-8th cent.).

The wall-cabinet to the right of the entrance contains wood-carvings, paintings on wood, glass vessels, and leather-work. — On the principal wall, to the left, is a beam-head with a carving of Daniel in the lions' den; above, fragment of a group of Orpheus; farther on, Stone head of an emperor, from Kench (4th-5th cent. A.D.), between terracotta supports for vessels. Then follow numerous examples of Coptic sculpture, chiefly sepulchral steles; to the left of the next pillar, Relief of Christ on horseback between angels. In the centre of the room are frames with ornamental borders for garments, with Christian scenes. Above the door, tutelary goddess of a town (high relief; 6th-7th cent.). — The case at the end of the room contains painted terracotta vessels, bronze utensils, ampullæ (several of them representing St. Menas between two camels), and terracotta lamps with Christian emblems. — In the first case on the window wall, Carvings on bone (to the left pagan, and to the right Christian subjects); in the second case, Small bronzes (engraved mirrors, engraved silver cross, etc.). — The glass cases in the middle contain carvings (e. g. a battle before a besieged town) and bronze utensils, comprising lamps in the shape of animals.

We pass through the door under the tutelary-goddess (see above) into the —

EARLY-CHRISTIAN AND BYZANTINE ROOMS (6 and 7). In the apse, at the extreme end to the left, is a *Mosaic from the Church of San Michele in Affricisco in Ravenna, dating from A.D. 545, acquired by King Frederick William IV. in 1843.

The mosaic represents the youthful Christ, adored by the archangels. In the surrounding frieze are the Lamb of God and doves, the symbols of Christ and the apostles. On the triumphal arch, Christ as Judge of the World, surrounded by angels bearing the instruments of the Passion and trumpets. Below, SS. Cosmas and Damianus.

In the same room (7) are several early-Christian sarcophagi and fragments of others. By the left wall, near the entrance, Sarcophagus with the story of Jonah (3rd-4th cent.); above, Fragments with pastoral scenes. By the window-wall, Colossal capital from Constantinople (5th cent.). — Along the side-wall of Room 6, as far as the green pillar of verde antico, is arranged an important collection of early Byzantine sculptures. On the pillars are characteristic Byzantine capitals.

In the first section, End of a sarcophagus from Constantinople, representing Christ between two apostles (4th-5th cent.); above, ornamental slab with vase, vine, and peacocks drinking (Syrian, 6th cent.); to the right, below, a game of balls in the shape of a staircase with scenes from the circus. Round the door of Room 5 are grouped several ornamental slabs and architectural fragments; in the pediment a mosaic picture of Christ the Merciful (12th cent.). Beyond the door are various representations of the Madonna in relief, the largest (headless) from Constantinople (10th-11th cent.); beside it a smaller Madonna adoring the Child and, as a pendant, the Archangel Michael wearing the imperial insignia. — Farther on, beyond the verde antico column, Mediæval Italian sculptures showing the Oriental-Byzantine influence, mostly of an ornamental character. The large painted Madonna is by Presbyter Martinus (Tuscan; 1199).

The glass-cases contain smaller Byzantine works of art. In the first case (near Room 7) are noteworthy ivory carvings: diptych with Christ between Peter and Paul, and the Virgin between angels (Syro-Egyptian, 6th cent.); scenes from the life of Christ (Roman, 4th cent.); also ornaments, terracotta lamps, and bronze utensils. In the large glass-case are small bronzes and ivory carvings: in the middle, *Pyx with Christ and the apostles (4th cent.); below it, Bronze statuette of St. Peter (Roman, 4th cent.), and numerous lamps with Christian emblems (some in the form of doves), etc. In the middle of the second case is a wax mosaic of the Crucifixion (12th cent.); to the left of it, ivory carvings of the 10th-12th cent. (No. 19. Crucifixion, No. 440. Death of the forty martyrs); to the right, Italian ivory carvings in a style resembling the Byzantine, grouped round a large late-Byzantine diptych in soapstone.

ROOM 8: ITALIAN SCULPTURES OF THE 13TH-14TH CENTURIES. Between the windows, a late Gothic chimney-piece from Venice. To the left of the entrance: 28a. Head of a bearded prince, one of the rare busts of the Hohenstaufen period; to the right, 28. Bust of a lady, from Scala near Ravello (second half of the 13th cent.). In the corner, Niccolò Pisano, Angel of the Annunciation (much injured); to the left of it, 22. Niccolò Pisano, St. Buonacorso between two angels; above, 24. Giov. Pisano, Pietà (lectern from the pulpit of Pisa cathedral). — Between the doors to the right are several statuettes by Giov. Pisano: Madonna, two sibyls (from the pulpit of Pisa cathedral), four prophets (studio works). 25. Andrea Pisano, Christ on the cross (lifesize); Pisan School (about 1380), Annunciation, group with well-preserved old painting. — In the left corner, Pisan Master of the 14th cent., Madonna, painted wooden statue. Near the window, Relief of the Madonna and two mourning figures from Neapolitan tombs of the 14th cent. (Nos. 29, 30); Madonna in alabaster (Sicilian; ca. 1500). — In the glass-cabinet, Gothic ivory carvings (chiefly French); 26. Nino Pisano, Alabaster statuette of the Madonna; 80. Madonna of the end of the 13th cent. (French); on the side next the window, three Diptychs with Passion-scenes (14th cent.), on the right side, chiefly non-religious works (mirror-cases, book-covers with love-scenes, etc.). — The door in the Venetian 15th cent. portal leads into —

ROOM 9, containing WORKS OF ARABIAN AND PERSIAN ART.

On the entrance-wall are inscriptions; in the corner an alabaster wall-fountain with coloured tiles. On the other walls, Carpets of the 14th-16th cent., conspicuous among which, in the centre of the long wall, is one with the heraldic dragon of the Ming dynasty of China; on the end-wall, Persian carpet of the early 16th cent. (betraying Chinese influence). In the show-cases are examples of Arabian and Persian industrial art. By the long wall is a large bronze casket inlaid with gold and silver for the preservation of the Koran; in the case to the right, Cover of a similar casket, and numerous book-bindings, two splendid examples of which are in the case on the left. In the other cases are glazed terracotta vessels and fragments of vessels found in Egypt and Asia Minor; in the middle, so-called 'Mosul' vessels of bronze inlaid with gold and silver; at the end, glass vessels, chiefly from Syria.

The door in the long wall leads into —

ROOM 10, containing the ISLAMIC COLLECTION OF F. SARRE (on loan). Guide, with a survey of the Persian-Islamic art, 1 M.

To the left on the principal wall: Oriental metal works for Christian churches; above, Persian embroidery with portrait of a prince (ca. 1700); fine Persian carpet with figures of animals (16th cent.); Mosul bronzes (comp. above); ancient Arabian glass; tomb-relief from Palmyra (2nd-3rd cent.). — By the exit-wall: Egyptian prayer-niche in wood with stucco mouldings. — Window-wall: Lustrated paving-tiles from Persian mosques, fayence and porcelain (partly from China or in the Chinese manner); Mosul bronzes, a large Venetian basin with Arabic inscription; Indian miniature manuscripts and a magnificently bound Koran; on the adjoining screen sketches by the Persian Riza Abassi (17th cent.). — Narrow wall on the right: lustrated and gilded glass, mosque lamps, mosaic tiles.

The door in the end-wall leads into —

ROOMS 11 AND 12, in which the *FAÇADE OF THE PALACE OF M'shatta has been erected, a gift of Sultan Abdul Hamid to Emperor William II. M'shatta ('winter-camp') lies about 30 M. to the E. of the influx of the Jordan into the Dead Sea. The palace was originally a desert-palace of Ghassanide Bedouins and dates from the 4th-6th cent. A.D. The smooth upper wall and part of the right side of the chief portal are wanting (comp. the plans and models exhibited in this room). The part of the façade which has been brought to Berlin is completely covered with beautiful ornamentation in pierced work: from vases, beside which stand animals or fabulous beings, spring vines with birds in the branches. The larger left half shows an affinity with antique and Byzantine forms, while the right half, on which are no animals, recalls the Persian art of the Sassanide period. — Similar ornamentation appears in the casts from the portals of ecclesiastical buildings in N. Syria, exhibited beside the door to the small staircase (see below).

The door opposite the palace façade leads to the rooms with casts of German sculptures (Pl. 13, 14).

The door in the end-wall opens upon the SMALL STAIRCASE (Pl. 27), from which doors lead into the Basilica (p. 96) and the Cabinet of Coins. At the sides of the staircase ascending to the picture-gallery (p. 104) are marble statues of Venus and Mercury by Jean-Baptiste Pigalle, from Sanssouci (p. 196).

We pass through the door straight opposite into the show-rooms of the CABINET OF COINS (Pl. 15, 16). The collection itself, the students' room, and the technical library are accommodated on the sunk-floor. Interested visitors may have access to particular sections of the collection by personal application to the director. The collection contains 305,000 coins, comprising 135,000 antique (100,000 Greek and 35,000 Roman) pieces.

The first room (15) affords a survey of the development of coining. Near the entrance is a large glass-case containing money-ingots, the preliminary stage before the age of coined money; to the left, by the wall, are specimens of the earliest Greek coins, and further on are Roman coins from the earliest heavy cast bronze ingots to the late imperial epoch. Other sections comprise mediæval and modern European coins, German, Brandenburg, and Prussian, Oriental coins, and coins now current.

Room 16. Medals. Nearest the door are Italian medals of the 15th century. In the show-case in the centre are medals of the Hohenzollern family; further on come those of the other German princes and of private persons, with numerous matrices in box and pearwood, lithographic stone, and slate. Among the medals of other countries, the modern French specimens are most worthy of note. In the small case by the window to the left are five gold medals (rewards of victory, 3rd cent. A.D.) found in Egypt, with portraits of Alexander the Great, his mother Olympias, and the Emp. Caracalla.

The door straight in front leads from Room 16 to the last room of Italian sculpture (Pl. 17, see p. 103), and the door to the right into the German section. The latter adjoins ANTEROOM 18, containing a wall-cabinet in which are various smaller works of art. — Proceeding straight on we enter —

ROOM 20: GERMAN RENAISSANCE SCULPTURES. The windows contain admirable *Stained Glass from designs by Hans Baldung Grien (from a church near Freiburg). By the entrance-wall: Tyrolese Master (ca. 1480), Large altar of the Virgin. In the case by the window: Small carvings in mother-of-pearl and wood, e.g. 300. Westphalian School (?), Madonna (end of 15th cent.). — On the long wall: No. 1222. Meister von Schöppingen (School of Soest), Winged altar with the Crucifixion and Passion; to the left, 1235a. Master of the Glorification of Mary, Adoration of the Child; to the right, 1235. Master of the Life of the Virgin, Virgin with the Holy Women in a garden. Numerous sculptures from the Lower Rhine. On the end-wall: 1205, 1206. Middle Rhenish Master, Two large altar panels (ca. 1440); below them to the left, Lower Rhenish Master, Madonna and Child. In the case by the window: Ivory carvings in the baroque style and mother-of-pearl carvings. — In the middle of the room, Bronze fountain from the workshop of Peter Vischer. The adjoining glass-cabinets contain plaquettes by Peter Flötner, Peter Vischer the Younger, and others, and statuettes (632. Leygebe, The Great Elector as Bellerophon).

ROOM 21: GERMAN SCULPTURES OF THE RENAISSANCE, BAROQUE, AND ROCOCO PERIODS. Entrance-wall: 137. Hans Daucher, Altar with the Passion, in limestone; 360. Georg Labenwolf, Bust of Frederick II. of Denmark (?); 199. Peter Flötner (?), Painted wooden statuette of a boy-musician. — On the rear-wall: Nos. 372, 373. Jan de Zar, Painted terracotta busts of Willibald and Anna Imhof (Nuremberg, ca. 1570). — By the exit-wall: 384a. Jodocus Vredis (Westphalian School, ca. 1500), Madonna adored by angels. — In the glass-cabinet in the middle: unnumbered, Konrad Meit of Worms (ca. 1525), Boxwood bust of a young man; 343. Netherlandish Master (period of Jan van Eyck), Virgin and Child; 111. Heinrich Hufnagel (Augsburg, 1432), Silver-gilt figure of the Madonna; 75. Lower Rhenish Master (ca. 1430), Madonna with the grapes; 265. Bavarian Master (ca. 1525), St. Sebastian.

ROOMS 23-24: GERMAN SCULPTURES OF THE ROMANESQUE AND GOTHIC PERIODS. The chronological arrangement begins at the end of Room 24, where the west gallery from the church of Kloster-Gröningen is built into the wall: Christ among the Apostles (stucco reliefs, 12th cent.). Below, 1216a. Westphalian School (ca. 1225), Triptych representing Christ before Caiaphas, the Crucifixion, and the Holy Women at the Sepulchre. — On the long wall: at the top, 1216b. Westphalian School (after 1250), Triptych of the Trinity between the Virgin and St. John. Lower: 53. Three heads from the Schöne Brunnen at Nuremberg (end of 14th cent.); 1627. Dip-tych from Cologne (ca. 1350), Madonna and Crucifixion. In the middle of the long wall: unnumbered, Altar-top in the shape of a clover-leaf, with scenes from the Passion, from Quedlinburg; below, 55. Mary with the body of Christ (South German, ca. 1400), in limestone, and several terracotta works from Nuremberg. Further to the left, *1624. Bohemian School (ca. 1350), Madonna enthroned, from Glatz. Beside it on the right, 54. Nuremberg Master (end of the 14th cent.), Emp. Charles IV., in sandstone. To the left, 48. St. Catharine (end of the 14th cent.). — In the central stained-glass window (French, 13th cent.), Female saint; to the left and right, German medallions of the 12th cent., Expulsion from the Temple, and Mary Magdalen anointing the feet of Christ. In front of the middle window, Processional ass (South-German, 13th cent.; the oldest example known of these figures). The glass-case by the window contains mostly Romanesque ivory carvings, those on the right dating from the Carolingian period and the time of the Saxon emperors, those on the left French-Romanesque works; above, 64. Reliquary (beginning of the 11th cent.).

Room 23 contains sculptures and pictures mostly of the early 15th century. In the middle, Shrine of St. Patroclus, by Meister Sigefrid of Soest (1313). To the left, 1207-1210. Meister Bertold, Four pictures from the altar of the Deichsler family at Nuremberg (SS. Elizabeth, Mary, Peter Martyr, and John the Baptist). Between them, 49. Wooden statue of the Madonna (South German). To the left, below, 1238. Cologne School (manner of Meister Wilhelm), Virgin surrounded by female saints. — On the other partition-wall, 562. School of Martin Schongauer, Winged altar with the Crucifixion and four saints. Farther back, 100. Master of the Altar of Blaubeuren, Large wooden statue of the Mother of Mercy.

In the portion of Room 23 leading to the Basilica, the arrangement begins at the marble portal. To the left and right of it are 273, 274. School of Michael Pacher, Statues of saints, richly gilded; *1621-1621 c. Hans Multscher, Eight altar-panels with scenes from the life of the Virgin and the Passion (1437). On the partition-walls opposite, to the right, 248. Bavarian Master (1516), Winged altar with the Adoration of the Magi; to the left, *106. Master of the Ulm Reredos, Painted high-relief of the relatives of Christ; adjoining, 249, 250. Bavarian Master (ca. 1530), SS. Peter and George; above (and farther on), Adolf Daucher, Twelve wooden busts from the Fugger Chapel at Augsburg (ca. 1510). — In the second compartment, back-wall to the right: 182, Veit Stoss, Coronation of the Virgin; 173-178. Six high reliefs from the Rosary by the same master in the Germanic Museum at Nuremberg; front-wall: 563 b, 563 c. Bernhard Strigel, Four saints; *330. Swabian School (ca. 1500), Madonna della Misericordia, remarkable for its spiritual and chaste expression. Left front-wall, 563 d. and 563 a. Strigel, Four saints. Back wall: 149. Swabian School, Coronation of the Virgin (ca. 1500); 160. Swabian School, Birth of the Virgin (ca. 1510). — In the third compartment, right back-wall: 334. Swabian School (ca. 1500), Winged altar with the Adoration of the Magi (ca. 1500). On the front walls, works by Tilman Riemenschneider: to the right, 200. Christ appearing to Mary Magdalen (early work); 206. God the Father with the body of Christ; 207. Angels' concert; 211-214. Four saints; on the left wall: 208. Madonna; 202-5. The four Evangelists; 210. Mourning women (from a Passion scene). On the margin of the right front-wall: 151. Swabian School, Madonna.

The two doors at the end of the room lead into the section of *ITALIAN RENAISSANCE SCULPTURE, containing mainly works in painted terracotta and stucco, the works in marble and in glazed terracotta being on the upper floor. The arrangement begins at the right end of the suite of rooms with —

Room 26: German Sculptures, recently acquired.

Room 25 contains chiefly works by DONATELLO and LUCA DELLA ROBBIA and their pupils. On a stand: No. 141. Painted terracotta bust of Giov. Rucellai. In the middle, Chimney-piece by Francesco di Simone; to the left of it, 148. Terracotta bust of Lorenzo de' Medici, surnamed il Magnifico. Above the chimney-piece, *39a. Donatello, Madonna and Child, painted and gilded, in an old frame. — Towards the exit are works by Luca della Robbia and his pupils: 115, 113. Lunettes, Madonna between angels; 114. Madonna with angels and saints. — In the centre, a glass-case with small sculptures: 94. Andrea Verrocchio, Model of a kneeling Mary Magdalen; 639r. Venetian School, St. Sebastian in boxwood; 648. Giovanni della Robbia, Savonarola.

Room 22, chiefly works by VERROCCHIO. Above a chest: *97a. Model of a relief of the Entombment; 103. Bust of a youth; 96, 97. Recumbent nude boys. To the right of the door: *93. Sleeping youth; 150f. Matteo Civitale, Model of a small altar.

Room 19: FLORENTINE AND PADUAN TERRACOTTA WORKS OF THE LATE 15TH CENTURY. On the long wall, Benedetto da Maiano, no number, Vision of Innocent III., 149, 85. Busts of St. Catharine of Siena and of Filippo Strozzi. Between these, Antonio Rossellino, 64. Adoration of the Child, unpainted terracotta, and several reliefs of the Madonna. — Farther on: 191. Franc. Francia, Portrait; above, 156b. School of Donatello, Madonna; 192b. Guido Mazzoni, Portrait. — 199. Lombard School (ca. 1500), SS. Francis and Dominic; 191d. Sperandio, Bust of a Bolognese jurist.

Room 17 contains SCULPTURES OF THE RENAISSANCE AT ITS ZENITH. To the left of the entrance, No. 218. Baccio Bandinelli, Model of a portrait of himself. On the wall opposite the window chiefly works by Jacopo Sansovino: to the left, 231. Madonna enthroned with saints; to the right, 232. Madonna and Child. 249. Alessandro Vittoria, Terracotta bust of Admiral Contarini; Spanish Masters (17th cent.), 276. Mater Dolorosa, Angels playing music. In front of the curtain, *86. Benedetto da Maiano, Madonna and Child, life-size painted terracotta group. By the window: 225. Cristoforo Romano (?), Bust of Teodorina Cibó. In the glass-case, small Italian carvings (271a. L. Bernini, Battle of Tritons, model of a well) and Spanish works, chiefly in ivory. — On the walls above are frescoes by B. Luini from the myth of Europa.

B. UPPER FLOOR.

Returning to the entrance-hall (p. 96), we ascend the stairs or take the lift (10 pf.) to the upper floor, which contains the picture gallery and most of the Italian Renaissance sculptures. In the corridor adjoining the landing are busts of Voltaire and Gluck by Houdon, etc.

The nucleus of the *Picture Gallery consists of the pictures of the Giustiniani Collection purchased in 1815 at Paris, of the collection of Mr. Solly, an Englishman, purchased in 1821, and of a selection made in 1829 of Pictures from the Royal Palaces. The present importance, however, of the Berlin Gallery is due to the acquisitions of the last few decades. The purchase of the celebrated Suermondt Collection in 1874 (for about 50,000*l.*), particularly rich in excellent Dutch works, was followed by numerous separate purchases in Italy, England (from the Blenheim and Dudley galleries, etc.), France, and Germany, whereby many prominent works were brought to Berlin. Though it has fewer masterpieces by the great painters than the collections of Florence, Paris, Dresden, and Madrid, the Berlin Gallery is rivalled by the National Gallery at London alone in the historical completeness with which the artists of the various schools and periods are represented.

The EARLY ITALIAN MASTERS are particularly well represented in the Berlin Gallery. Among painters of the 14th cent. we meet with Duccio, Giotto, the Gaddi, and others. The Last Judgment by Fra Angelico, the Madonna with the two SS. John by Sandro Botticelli, the Madonna enthroned and Saints by Cosimo Tura and Carlo Crivelli, the Portrait of a Woman by Domenico Veneziano, Pan among the Shepherds and Nymphs, and also the Portrait of an Old Man, by Luca Signorelli, the large altar-piece by L. Vivarini, the Adoration of the Magi by A. Vivarini, and the small portrait by Antonello da Messina rank among the finest creations of these leading masters of the 15th century. The Annunciation of Piero Pollaiuolo, the two allegorical pieces by Melozzo da Forlì, three small panels by Masaccio, and the Adoration of the Magi by Vittore Pisano are among the greatest treasures of the Gallery. — The GOLDEN PERIOD OF ITALIAN ART is neither so fully nor so well illustrated. Of the four works by Raphael three belong to his earliest period, and the fourth, the Madonna della Casa Colonna, is unfinished. The rare Sebastiano del Piombo is represented by several works, one of which is the so-called 'Fornarina' from the Blenheim collection. Among the works of Raphael's Florentine contemporaries, the admirable altar-piece by Andrea del Sarto is a masterpiece. The Assumption of Fra Bartolomeo belongs to the period of his co-operation with Albertinelli. Angelo Bronzino, the best-known portrait-painter of Florence, is illustrated by a masterly portrait of Ugolino Martelli. — Among the MASTERS OF CHIAR-OSCURO Leonardo da Vinci is represented by a highly interesting altar-piece of the Ascension, and Correggio by the Leda, a work which, in spite of varied fortunes, still retains its attractiveness. — Titian, the chief of the VENETIAN SCHOOL, is represented by a few portraits only, among which are the unfinished portrait of himself, the Lavinia, and the charming little daughter of Roberto Strozzi; Giorgione by an attractive portrait. The Gallery also contains altar-pieces and ceiling-paintings by Bordone, Francesco Vecellio, Tintoretto, Paolo Veronese, and Lor. Lotto, all of which, however, are excelled by several admirable portraits by Lotto. — The BRES-CIAN SCHOOL is well represented by works of Savoldo, Moroni, and Moretto.

ITALIAN ART IN THE 17TH CENTURY is abundantly and well exemplified by a number of the naturalistic works in which it was most successful. Caravaggio, in particular, is represented by works of every size and description, while Guido Reni is seen to advantage in a fine altar-piece of his early period. Carlo Maratti contributes an admirable Portrait of a Young Man, which was formerly in the Suermondt Collection. — The second short revival of the Venetian school is represented by good works by Tiepolo and several town views by Belotto.

Among works of the EARLY NETHERLANDISH SCHOOL the Gallery possesses the wings of the large altar-piece at Ghent by the brothers Hubert and Jan van Eyck, the finest work of the school, and six small pictures by Jan van Eyck, including his finest portrait. Rogier van der Weyden, the best of the followers of the Van Eycks, is represented by two admirable altar-pieces. Petrus Cristus, Dierick Bouts, Hugo van der Goes, and the Master of Flémalle are also well represented, the last by a Crucifixion and two portraits; by Hans Memling are two Madonnas and an excellent portrait. The Virgin and Child of Quinten Matsys, who forms a link between the early-Flemish school and the Renaissance, is one of that master's best efforts. — The contemporary OLD FRENCH SCHOOL is represented by an admirable devotional portrait by Jean Fouquet and the Bertinus Altar by Simon Marmion.

The gem of the EARLY GERMAN SCHOOL is Holbein's portrait of the merchant Gisze, which formed part of the Solly collection, and is justly regarded as one of the very finest works by this master. Two other admirable portraits by Holbein belonged to the Suermondt Cabinet, a third, superior to both, belonged to the late Sir John Millais. The gallery has recently been enriched by seven genuine specimens of Albrecht Dürer: a portrait of Elector Frederick the Wise (of his early period), the admirable portrait of Muffel (1526), the celebrated Holzschuher portrait, considered the finest he ever painted (1526; bought in 1884 for 17,500*l.*), the Madonna with the siskin, two portraits of ladies (both painted in Venice), and lastly a Mater Dolorosa. The collection also contains masterpieces of two of his best pupils, Hans von Kulmbach and Albrecht Altdorfer: a large Adoration of the Magi by the former, the Rest on the Flight into Egypt by the latter. The examples of Lucas Cranach the Elder are numerous. Georg Pencz, Christoph Amberger, and Bartholomaeus Bruyn are represented by characteristic examples.

THE NETHERLANDISH ART OF THE 16-17TH CENTURIES, the period of the development of the two great national schools of the Flemings and the Dutch, and the gradual development of the arts of painting in miniature, landscape and genre painting, and painting from still life, may be studied here to great advantage in numerous works by the leading masters. Of the works of Peter Paul Rubens, the versatile chief of the FLEMISH SCHOOL, the gallery possesses a small collection only compared with those of Munich, St. Petersburg, Paris, Vienna, and Madrid, but on the other hand its specimens were nearly all executed without the co-operation of pupils. The Raising of Lazarus is one of his best altar-pieces, the Rescue of Andromeda, the Bacchanal, and Diana at the Chase are charming examples of his mythological style, the St. Cecilia and the larger Andromeda are delightful in their bloom of colour. The Portrait of his first wife delights by its rare harmony of colour. The unfinished Capture of Tunis affords an instructive insight into the technical method pursued by the great master. The St. Sebastian and the Neptune and Amphitrite are characteristic specimens of his early period. The talents of Van Dyck are exhibited in a Mocking of Christ, bearing the stamp of Rubens' influence, and perfect in its colouring and treatment, two admirable portraits of the Genoese period, and finally a Pietà from the period of his return from Italy. The collection also contains good examples of Snyders and Fyt. The best works by Teniers the Younger are the Backgammon Players, the Temptation of St. Anthony, and a Rural Feast. A large landscape by Adriaen Brouwer is remarkable for its idealised fidelity to nature.

THE DUTCH SCHOOL is also well represented. Frans Hals, the chief master of the earlier period, is nowhere else studied to so great advantage, except in the museum of his native town of Haarlem, the best examples of his skill being the Nurse and the Hille Bobbe. The collection of paintings by Rembrandt is one of the finest of its kind and includes characteristic specimens in both his earlier and later manner. The two small Biblical scenes, the large painting of Pastor Anslo (acquired in 1894), the Preaching of John the Baptist, the portraits of his wife Saskia and of his servant Hendrickje Stoffels, the Vision of Daniel, the Joseph and Potiphar, and the Susannah are in his most mature style. Among the ten landscapes by Jacob van Ruysdael are two Views of the Dunes near Overveen, the great Oak Forest, and a large sea-piece. The Violoncello Player of Terburg is perhaps his most finished work; his so-called Paternal Admonition is mentioned by Goethe. Among the genre-painters of Rembrandt's time, Pieter de Hooch contributes an excellent interior, Nicolaas Maes a portrait of an Old Woman, and Jan van der Meer of Delft two works, while Ph. de Koninck, A. van de Velde, and Ph. Wouverman are also admirably represented. The gallery contains excellent examples of De Heem, Huysum, Hondecoeter, Weenix, Kalf, and other depicitors of still-life.

The pictures are hung in historical order (but comp. p. 96), the Netherlandish and German schools occupying the S.W. side of the building (to the left), the Italian schools the N. and N.E. sides (to the right). We begin our enumeration of the most important works with the small Room 73, entered from the landing to the left.

ROOM 73, where new acquisitions are exhibited. Here at present stands the well-known Flora, a half-figure in painted wax, ascribed to the school of Leonardo da Vinci, or by others to Richard C. Lucas (d. 1883), and bought in England in 1909 for 8000 l.

CABINET 72. The main wall is occupied by six Panels (Nos. 512-523) of the famous Altar-piece of the Lamb, by Hubert and Jan van Eyck, painted for the church of St. Bavon at Ghent and finished in 1432, the first painting executed wholly in oils. The central portion of the altar-piece, representing the Adoration of the Mystic Lamb, surmounted by figures of God the Father, the Virgin Mary, and John the Baptist, is still in St. Bavon; two other panels (Adam and Eve) are in the Museum at Brussels. The remaining six panels were purchased by Mr. Solly for 4000 l. The panels which had paintings on both sides have lately been divided into two slabs, which are now exhibited side by side; comp. the survey at the entrance. The four lower panels (at the back, 512, 513, 516, 517) depict judges, crusaders, hermits, and pilgrims moving in procession to the Fountain of Life (central panel, a copy by Coxie, No. 524); the former backs of these panels (left wall) bear portraits of Jodocus Vydt and his wife (519, 522) and their patron saints, SS. John the Evangelist and John the Baptist (518, 523; in stone colour). Two other panels (514, 515) represent respectively a group of singing angels and St. Cecilia attended by angelic musicians; on the former backs (right wall, 520, 521) the Archangel Gabriel and the Madonna.

'There is not to be found', say Crowe and Cavalcaselle, 'in the whole Flemish school a picture in which human figures are grouped, designed, or painted with so much perfection as in this of the mystic Lamb. Nor is it possible to find a more complete or better distributed composition, more natural attitudes, or more dignified expression'. The beholder is charmed both by the naïve and careful realism and by the brilliancy of the colouring. A photographic reproduction of the whole altar in its original condition is exhibited on the window wall.

CABINET 70. EARLY NETHERLANDISH SCHOOLS OF THE 15TH CEN-

ROOM 64. The walls are hung with the celebrated *TAPESTRY, woven for Henry VIII. of England from designs (now in the South Kensington Museum) drawn by Raphael in 1515-16 for the Sistine Chapel of the Vatican. This tapestry, like the original set, of which it was the first replica, was executed at Brussels in fine wools, silks, and gold thread, but like both the original and the later repetitions (Loreto, Dresden, Paris) has sadly faded. It was once in the possession of Charles I., then in that of the Dukes of Alva, and was purchased by Frederick William IV. in 1844. To the left: Paul preaching at Athens; Elymas the sorcerer struck with blindness;

Paul and Barnabas at Lystra; Stoning of St. Stephen; back-wall, Conversion of St. Paul; to the right, Death of Ananias; Peter and Paul healing the lame man; Christ giving Peter the keys of heaven; Miraculous draught of fishes.

4. Southern Friedrich-Strasse. Gendarmen-Markt. Wilhelm-Strasse. Leipziger-Strasse.

To the S. of the Linden lies the FRIEDRICH-STADT (p. 47), the most regularly built quarter of Berlin. It is intersected from N. to S. by the Friedrich-Strasse, by the Wilhelm-Strasse farther to the W., and by the Charlotten-Strasse and Markgrafen-Strasse farther to the E.

The Friedrich-Strasse (Pl. R, 24-22, G, 22) is the longest street in the inner town. Including the section to the N. of the Linden (p. 144), it measures 2 M. from the former Oranienburg Gate to the former Halle Gate, which lies $1\frac{1}{4}$ M. to the S. of the Linden. The central portion, near the Linden, is flanked on both sides with handsome and substantial business-houses, including the retail premises of several large breweries (comp. p. 9).

At the corner of the Friedrich-Str. and the Behren-Str., and opposite the S. entrance to the Kaiser-Galerie (p. 56), is the building of the Pschorr Brewery, built by Kayser & Von Groszheim; on the upper floor is Castan's Panopticum (p. 39).

The BEHREN-STRASSE (Pl. R, 22), the first cross-street (running E. and W.), contains many handsome modern buildings, several of which were erected by large banking companies. To the E. of the Friedrich-Strasse, on the S. side, are Nos. 38-39, the Dresdner Bank (p. 34); No. 32, the Berliner Handels-Gesellschaft, built by Messel; No. 48, the Café Kerkau (p. 11), by K. Berndt (1910); No. 47, the Haus Trarbach (wine restaurant, see p. 8), built by Walther in a modern Romanesque style. On the opposite side are Nos. 43-44, the Diskonto-Gesellschaft (comp. p. 34), built by Heim; and No. 46, the Berliner Bank. To the W. of the Friedrich-Strasse, Nos. 55-57, on the N. side, is the Metropol Theatre (p. 28), built by Fellner & Helmer (passage to the Linden, see p. 56). On the S. side are Nos. 13-8, the Deutsche Bank, a huge building occupying an entire block; No. 66, the Imperial Militär-Kabinett, built under Frederick the Great by W. Titel; Nos. 68, 69, the National Bank for Germany, by Messel.

Continuing to follow the Friedrich-Str. we come (on the left) to No. 80, the Restaurant zum Rüdesheimer (p. 8); No. 79, at the corner of the Französische-Str., a Renaissance building by Grisebach, the property of the Baroness von Faber; and No. 78, the office of the Germania Life Insurance Co., designed by Kayser & Von Groszheim. On the opposite (right) side of the street is

No. 172, the retail premises of the Munich Spaten Brewery (p. 9), built by G. von Seidl. The Kaiser-Hotel, Nos. 176-178, at the corner of the Jäger-Str., contains a café, the wine-rooms of the Kaiser-Keller (p. 8), and the Weihenstephan Restaurant (p. 9). — At No. 180, on the right, at the corner of the Tauben-Str., are the retail premises of the Tucher Brewery (p. 9), by Walther, with mural paintings by Wanderer. Farther on we cross the Mohren-Strasse (access to the Underground Railway, p. 13) and the Leipziger-Strasse (p. 124).

To the W. of the Friedrich-Str., at Tauben-Str. Nos. 48-49, is the Urania (Pl. R, 22), a popular scientific institution, founded in 1889, with a lecture-theatre (adm., see p. 42). Observatory, see p. 141.

To the E. of the Friedrich-Strasse, a few hundred paces from the square by the Opera House (p. 59) and the Linden, is the Gendarmen-Markt (Pl. R, 22), with the Schauspielhaus, the French Church, and the New Church. Though the general effect of the square is somewhat marred by the height of some of the more modern buildings, the three just named form an admirable architectural group, the outline of which is very effective.

TRAMWAYS (see p. 16-21) from the crossing of the Französische-Str. and Charlotten-Str. (N.W. corner of the square) to Alexander-Platz (Nos. 60, 61, 70, 73, 75), Friedrich-Str. Station and Gesundbrunnen (34, 43), Dönhofs-Platz (83), Hackescher Markt and Museum Island (33, 40, 53, 54, 55, III), Halle Gate (34, 43, 53, 55, 73, 75), Kreuzberg (34, 43, 70, 73), Rathaus (60, 61, 70, 73, 75, 81), Rixdorf (53, 55), Silesian Station (80), Schloss-Platz (60, 61, 70, 73, 75, 80, 81), Stettin Station (34, 43). — To Charlottenburg, Nollendorf-Platz (and Lützow-Platz), Potsdam Station, Schöneberg, Spittelmarkt, and Zoological Garden a shorter route is afforded by the Underground Railway (entrance at the S.W. corner of the square; comp. p. 14).

The Schauspielhaus, or Royal Theatre (Pl. R, 22), was erected by Schinkel in 1819-21, to replace the original building which was burned down in 1817. It is 250 ft. in length, 164 ft. in breadth, and 125 ft. in height and is seated for 1120 persons. The skilful application of Greek forms to a modern edifice of several stories and its vigorous articulation render it one of Schinkel's finest works; some defects (such as the entrance) are due to the cramping nature of his instructions and to the necessity of using the old walls. Between 1890 and 1893 the building was entirely restored, and the exterior, originally of plaster, was faced with freestone. The E. or principal façade is embellished with a portico with six Ionian columns, approached by a flight of steps, which are flanked by two groups in bronze by F. Tieck, representing genii riding on a panther and a lion. The tympanum of the portico contains a group of the Children of Niobe in sandstone, by the same sculptor. The principal part of the building is crowned with an Apollo in a chariot drawn by two griffins, a group in bronze by Rauch and Tieck, in the tympanum beneath which are Melpomene and Polyhymnia. On the W. summit of the building, corresponding to the Apollo, is a Pegasus in copper. The large N. tympanum contains the *Triumphal Procession of Bacchus with Ariadne; in the S. tympanum, Orpheus bringing back Eurydice, both by F. Tieck. The interior was entirely remodelled in 1904-5, except the fine foyer, which serves also as a concert-room. The decorations of the auditory are by Lessing, the ceiling-paintings by Koberstein. Performances, see p. 27.

In front of the steps of the theatre a marble Monument of Schiller, 19 ft. in height, by R. Begas, was unveiled in 1871. The pedestal is adorned with allegorical figures of lyric and dramatic poetry, history, and philosophy.

To the N. of the theatre is the French Church, or French Cathedral, in which a French sermon is still preached every second Sunday. Built between 1701 and 1705, it was restored in 1905, but still retains its original insignificant appearance. The New Church, to the S., dating from the same period (1701-8), and restored in 1881-82, is interesting on account of its pentagonal form. The handsome detached towers covered with domes (230 ft. in height) were added in 1780-85 by Gontard, and still hold their place as one of the most effective architectural designs in the city.

Opposite the Schauspielhaus (to the E.), at No. 21 Jäger-Str., is the new building (1901) of the Königliche Seehandlung, founded in 1772, and now carrying on a banking business. The building at the other corner of the Jäger-Str. (No. 47, Markgrafen-Str.), was built in 1781 (probably by Gontard) by order of Frederick the Great. — At the N.W. corner, Charlotten-Str. 49, is the old wine-house of Lutter (p. 9), with memorial-tablets to the actor L. Devrient (d. 1832) and the poet E. Th. A. Hoffmann (d. 1822), who used to resort hither. Hoffmann's and Heinrich Heine's (1823) residences, at Nos. 31 and 32 Tauben-Str., to the W. of the square, are marked by inscriptions and relief-portraits.

The Wilhelm-Strasse (Pl. R, 19, 22, G, 22) forms the W. boundary of the Friedrich-Stadt, and is about $1\frac{1}{4}$ M. long. The N. half of this street is considered the most aristocratic quarter of the city. No. 70, on the right, close to the Linden, is the British Embassy. No. 72, on the right, is the Palace of the late Prince George of Prussia, built by Gerlach in the reign of Frederick William I., the new façade dating from 1852. Opposite, to the left, No. 67, is Herr Pringsheim's House, built by Ebe & Benda in 1873, with a mosaic frieze from designs by Anton von Werner. No. 73, on the right, is the house of the Minister of the Household, erected in 1734-37 for Count Schwerin. No. 74 is the Reichsamt des Innern, or Imperial Home Office, where the German Federal Council meets. No. 65, opposite, to the left, is the office of the Minister of Justice; No. 64, the Privy Office for Civil Affairs, erected by Vohl; and No. 63, the State Ministry, the Offices of the State Lottery, and the General-Ordens-Commission. Then on the right, Nos. 75-76, the Foreign Office. No. 77 is the Imperial Chancellery and the Residence of the Chancellor, originally built about 1738, rebuilt in 1875-76, and occupied by Prince Bismarck till March, 1890. (The Congress of European Powers for the settlement of the Eastern Question in 1878 took place in the large hall in front.) No. 78 is the Palace of Prince Pless, designed by the French architect Destailleur in 1872-75 in the style of the period of Louis XIII.

The WILHELM-PLATZ (Pl. R, 19, 22) is adorned with flower-beds and with Statues of six heroes of the three Silesian wars of Frederick the Great: Schwerin, who fell, grasping the colours, at Prague in 1757; Winterfeldt, Frederick's favourite, who fell at Moys, near Görlitz, in 1757, both by Kiss; Seydlitz, the hero of Rossbach, who died in 1773; Keith, who fell at Hochkirch in 1758, both by Tassaert (d. 1788); the gallant Zieten, who died in 1786; and Prince Leopold of Anhalt-Dessau, the victor at Kesselsdorf, who died in 1747, the last two by G. Schadow. The former marble statues were replaced in 1862 by bronze statues copied from the original figures, with the exception of those of Schwerin and Winterfeldt, who had been inappropriately represented in Roman costume, and are now in the Emperor Frederick Museum (p. 120).

On the N. side of the Wilhelm-Platz, Nos. 8-9, is the Palace of Prince Frederick Leopold, erected in 1737 and remodelled by Schinkel in 1827-28. — On the E. side lie the Kur & Neumärkische Haupt-Ritterschafts-Direktion (No. 6) and the Kaiserhof (p. 3), built in 1873-75 by Von der Hude & Henricke. Behind the latter is the Church of the Trinity (Dreifaltigkeits-Kirche), erected in 1737-39 and enlarged in 1885-86; in front of the portal is a bust, by Schaper, of Schleiermacher (p. 173), the eminent preacher and theologian, who was pastor here from 1809 until his death in 1834. — On the S. side of the Wilhelm-Platz (No. 1) is the Imperial Treasury (Reichs-Schatzamt).

In the Wilhelm-Str., farther to the S., beyond the Leipziger-Str. (Nos. 92-93), is the Architekten-Haus ('Architects' Union'; Pl. R, G, 22), built by Ende & Böckmann in 1875-76, with frescoes by Prell in the central hall (restaurant, see p. 9). — Beyond the Prinz-Albrecht-Str. (p. 135), and separated from the street by an arcade, is the Palace of Prince Frederick Henry of Prussia, erected in 1737-39, and remodelled by Schinkel in 1833.

From the Wilhelm-Platz the VOSS-STRASSE (Pl. R, 19) diverges to the W. At the corner (No. 1) stands the Preussische Pfandbrief-bank ('mortgage bank'), a noble structure in the Italian style by Lucae, originally erected for Borsig, the engineer (p. 167). The statues on the exterior, by R. Begas, Encke, Hundrieser, and Lessing, represent Beuth, Borsig, and Schinkel (on the Wilhelm-Str. side), Archimedes, Leonardo da Vinci, James Watt, and Stephenson (on the Voss-Str. side). The extensive block at the opposite corner (No. 35) is the Ministry of Public Works, including the Imperial Office of Railways. At Nos. 4 & 5 in the Voss-Str. is the Reichs-Justizamt ('Imperial Justice Office'), and there are also many handsome private residences in this street.

A little to the S. of the W. end of the Voss-Str. lies the Potsdamer-Platz (p. 127), adjoined on the E. by the site of the old Potsdam Gate and the octagonal LEIPZIGER-PLATZ (Pl. R, 19), which is adorned with gardens and the statues of Count Brandenburg (to the left; d. 1850), the general and statesman, by Hagen, and Field-Marshal Count Wrangel (to the right; d. 1877), by Keil. The former was erected in 1862, the latter in 1880. At Nos. 6-10 in this Platz is the Ministry of Agriculture, Domains, and Forests; No. 13, on the N. side, is the Admiralty (Reichs-Marine-Amt); No. 14 the offices of the Berlin Tramway Co. (p. 14); No. 15 Herr Mosse's House, by Ebe and Benda, with a sandstone frieze by Max Klein representing the development of the German genius; and No. 16 the House of the Imperial Automobile Club, designed by Ihne.

From the Leipziger-Platz the busy Leipziger-Strasse* (Pl. R, 19, 22), about 1 M. in length, crosses the Friedrich-Str. and runs E. to the Spittel-Markt. It is now the chief artery of traffic in Berlin (numerous tramways to the West End; see p. 127), and surpasses even the Friedrich-Strasse in the number of its handsome buildings. Some of these show that the Renaissance style is being succeeded by more modern forms.

On the right Nos. 1, 2, is the Ministry of Trade and Industry; on the groundfloor is the attractive depôt of the Royal Porcelain Manufactory (p. 181), which may be visited at any hour. — Adjacent (Nos. 3-4) are the Herrenhaus and (No. 5) the War Office.

The Herrenhaus, or Upper Chamber of the Prussian Diet, a handsome edifice in the Italian style by F. Schulze, was opened in 1904. It is connected with the House of Representatives (p. 135; passage on the E. side), and encloses a spacious fore-court, on either side of which are dwellings for the presidents of the two chambers. The sandstone façade is decorated with sculptures, for which O. Lessing supplied the models; the pediment, supported by six columns, contains a representation of Borussia with the various ministries; on the attic are figures of the working and military classes. The ten allegorical figures on the wings are from designs by Pfannschmidt, Dennert, Meisen, Uechtritz, and Calandrelli. The house has seats for 218 members. Admission, see p. 38.

At Nos. 132-135, on the left side of the street, is Wertheim's Emporium, erected by Messel in 1897-1904, an excellent type of a modern German warehouse (comp. p. 51). The façade of the building, which covers about 18,000 sq. yds., is 590 ft. long and consists of granite pillars ornamented with metal work, from which projects a limestone colonnade on the Leipziger-Platz, with the bear-fountain by Gaul. The interior well repays a visit; visitors need not make any purchase. The E. glass-covered hall contains a statue of Industry by Manzel. Refreshment Bar.—At No. 124, at the corner of the Wilhelm-Str., is the office of the New York Mutual Insurance Co., built in 1885-86 by Kayser & Von Groszheim, with mosaics of six great cities.

At the corner of the Mauer-Str. is the Reichs-Postamt, or Office of the Postmaster General (Pl. R, 22), a handsome edifice in the Italian style, erected in 1871-73 and enlarged in 1893-98. — In the corner-wing, above which rises a group of giants holding aloft the terrestrial globe, is the —

Imperial Postal Museum, containing a collection of objects illustrating the development of postal and other means of communication. In the centre of the covered court is a marble statue of H. von Stephan, the postmaster-general (d. 1897; comp. p. 172). Adm., see p. 39. A label is attached to each exhibit.

GROUND FLOOR. In the rooms round the inner court are models of German Post Offices. Rooms 4 and 5, on the left, contain letter-boxes, signs, etc. Traversing these, we reach the Historical Department, containing pictures, casts, and models representing the systems of communication adopted by the ancients and in the middle ages, as well as the postal system of the 16th-18th centuries. The entrance-wall of Room 6 is devoted to the ancients. Room 7. German and Scandinavian objects, including Germanic bronze chariots, reconstruction of a Scandinavian chariot copied from fragments found in the Dejberg morass, viking's ship, plank roads, etc. Model of the Santa Maria, the vessel in which Columbus made his voyage of 1492. On the walls are miniatures illustrating the methods of writing and forwarding messages and letters during the middle ages; by the window, writing materials, wax tablets, and 15th cent. letters. On the window-wall of Room 6 are letters, guidebooks, MS. news-sheets of the 16th cent., and pictures of the 16th-18th centuries; postman's bag of the time of the Thirty Years' War; autograph postal decrees of Frederick William I. and Frederick the Great; models of travelling carriages.—The remaining rooms illustrate the German Postal System of the 19th Century. Models of vehicles, (beyond the staircase) model of the locomotive 'Feuer-Ross' of the Fürth-Nuremberg railway, the first opened (1835) in Germany, postman of the Spreewald, railway postal service. Room 14. Military post. Room 15. Selections from the collection of Postage Stamps, one of the largest in the world.

FIRST FLOOR. Adjoining the staircase are memorials of Stephan (see above). To the left is the interesting series of exhibits illustrating Foreign Postal Systems. The following may be mentioned: apparatus for collecting the mail-bags in transit by British trains, models and figures from Russia. Beyond the central room (adorned with stained glass), to the right, models of steamboats; to the left, the very complete Telegraphic Collection, beginning with optical telegraphs.

SECOND FLOOR. To the left of the staircase: Submarine Telegraphy (cable-laying steamers), and lastly the construction of telegraph and telephone lines (destruction of the poles by animals; effect of lightning on the apparatus, etc.). In the Record Office copies and originals of old maps and atlases are at present on view.—We now return to the staircase, to the right of which is the Telephonic Collection (including various devices for changing or reversing the current). In the end room are exhibits connected with the pneumatic post, phonography, Röntgen rays, wireless telegraphy, etc.

The Bethlehems-Kirche, to the right in the Mauer-Str., was built in 1735-37 by order of Frederick William I. for exiled Bohemian Lutherans.

Continuing eastwards along the Leipziger-Str., we come to the office of the New York Equitable Insurance Co., a building by Schäfer, standing at the corner of the Friedrich-Str. The traffic at this point is very great, especially from 5 to 8 p.m.—The intersection of the Leipziger-Str. and Charlotten-Str. is one of the centres of the tramway system.

TRAMWAYS (pp. 14-22): Nos. 6, 8, 9, 34, 43, 53, 54, 55, 66, 67, 69, 71-79, 83, 87, 88, 91, 92, 95.

At No. 43, on the right side of the Leipziger-Str. and at the corner of the Markgrafen-Str., is the silk warehouse of Michels & Co., a brick building by Grisebach, with ornaments on a gold ground.—Nos. 46-49 form Tietz's Warehouse, erected in 1900 from designs by Sehring and Lachmann, covering over 6500 sq. yds. of ground, and extending to the Krausen-Str. (comp. p. 31).—Beyond the Jerusalem-Str. the Leipziger-Str. traverses the Dönhoff-Platz and, passing through the Leipziger Kolonnaden (built in 1776 by Gontard), ends at the Spittel-Markt (p. 160).

In the grounds of the DÖNHÖFF-PLATZ (Pl. R, 22, 25) are the bronze statues of two statesmen: on the N. side Baron vom Stein (d. 1831), by Schiesselbein and Hagen (1875); on the S. side Prince Hardenberg (d. 1822), by Götze (1907).

TRAMWAYS (pp. 14-22) run from the Dönhoff-Platz (94, P, R) to the Brandenburg Gate (6, 9, 13), the Lehrte Station, Moabit (9, 12, 13, 18, 20), the Friedrich-Str. Station (12, 13, 18, 20), Gesundbrunnen (38, 39, 42, 99), the Alexander-Platz (17, 59, 62, 64, 66, 67, 69, 71, 72, 74), the Silesian Station (6, 9, 76, 78), the Görlitz Station (12, 13, 18, 91, 92, 94), Rixdorf (20, 94), the Halle Gate (38, 39, 42, 64, 99), the Kreuzberg (38), the Anhalt Station (17, 59, 62), the Gendarmen-Markt (83), the Hackescher Markt (38, 39, 42, 99), the Museum Island (39, 42), the Opern-Platz (12, 13, 18, 20, 39, 42), the Potsdam Station (6, 8, 9, 66, 67, 69, 71, 72, 74, 76, 78, 79, 87, 88, 91, 92, P, R), the Rathaus (8, 17, 38, 59, 62, 64, 66, 67, 69, 71, 72, 74, 99), and the Schloss-Platz (17).—To Charlottenburg, Nollendorf-Platz (and Lützow-Platz), Schöneberg, and Zoological Garden a shorter route is by the Underground Railway (p. 13); entrances to the E. at the Spittelmarkt, to the N. in the Hausvogtei-Platz.

5. Ethnographical Museum and Museum of Industrial Art.

The somewhat contracted Potsdamer-Platz (Pl. R, 19; comp. p. 124) is apt to be congested by the enormously increased traffic to the S.W. quarters of the city.

TRAMWAYS (pp. 14-23) run hence to the Brandenburg Gate (1, 6, 7, 9, 14, 15, 21, 23, 24, 51, 52, 56, 57), the Gesundbrunnen (8, 23), the Hackescher Markt (8, 33, 40, 52, 54, 56), the Neues Tor (51, 57), the Rathaus (8, 60, 61, 66, 67, 69, 71, 72, 74, 80, 81), the Schloss-Platz (50, 60, 61, 80), Lehrte Station, Moabit (6, 7, 9, 14, 15, 21, 23, 24), the Museum Island and the Opern-Platz (39, 40, 54, III), the Alexander-Platz (60, 61, 66, 67, 69, 71, 72, 74, 80, 81), the Silesian Station (1, 6, 9, 76, 78, 79, 80), Rixdorf (7, 15, 21), and Schöneberg (23, 24, 40, 51, 56, 57, 60, 61, 69, 71, 72, 74, 87, 88, III, B, E).—Charlottenburg, the Görlitz Station, Halle Gate, Nollendorf-Platz, Lützow-Platz, and the Zoological Garden are more conveniently reached by the Elevated Railway (p. 13), and the Gendarmen-Markt and Spittel-Markt (Dönhoff-Platz) by the Underground Railway (p. 13).—In the neighbouring Link-Str. (see below) is the terminus of the tramways to Friedenau, Grunewald, Schmargendorf, Steglitz, and Wilmersdorf (see p. 181).

The Potsdamer-Platz, on the right side of which rise the Palast-Hotel and the Hôtel Bellevue, and on the left the Hôtel Fürstenhof (p. 3), is traversed by the Königgrätzer-Strasse (see below). The shady BELLEVUE-STRASSE (p. 143), leading off to the right to the Tiergarten, contains at No. 3 the Künstler-Haus (Pl. R, 19), erected in 1898 by Hoffacker for the Society of Berlin Artists (exhibitions, see p. 37). Opposite, Nos 19-20, is the Rheingold Restaurant (p. 8), erected by Bruno Schmitz and gorgeously fitted up, adjoined by the Esplanade Hotel (p. 3). For the Potsdamer-Strasse, see p. 174.

On the S. side of the Potsdamer-Platz is the Potsdam Station (Pl. G, 19), erected in 1870-72, and combined with the Ringbahn and Wannsee Stations (comp. p. 187). Elevated Railway, see p. 13.

The district to the S.E. of the Potsdam Station, to the right of the KÖNIGGRÄTZER-STRASSE, which leads to the Halle Gate, was a favourite residential quarter, much affected by officials, about the middle of the 19th cent., when it was popularly known as the 'Privy Councillors' Quarter'. Now, however, many of the houses are let out in furnished apartments.—In the Dessauer-Str., Nos. 4-5, is the Post-Zeitungs-Amt. At No. 14 are the premises of the German Agricultural Society; in the court is a fountain commemorating the founder of the society, Max Eyth, the engineer noted for his achievements in Egypt (d. 1906), with his bronze bust and allegorical figures, by Herter (1908).—In the Bernburger-Str. (No. 22) is the Philharmonie (Pl. G, 19; p. 29), rebuilt in 1888 by Schwechten. The Beethoven-Saal, in connection with the Philharmonie, is entered from No. 32 Köthener-Strasse. The office of the Siemens-Schuckert Electric Co. (p. 184) is at Askanischer-Platz No. 3.

The Anhalt Station (Pl. G, 19), in the Askanischer-Platz, is a handsome brick building erected by Schwechten in 1875-80. The main hall is 115 ft. in height and as broad as the Linden (200 ft.).

TRAMWAYS (pp. 14-22): Nos. 1, 7, 14, 15, 17, 21, 59, 62, 93, 98; Omnibus No. 10 to Friedrich-Strasse and Stettin Stations.

At Königgrätzer-Str. 112-13, opposite the station, is the Hôtel Excelsior, built (p. 3), by Boswau & Knauer (1908); farther on, Nos. 57, 58, is the Hebbel Theatre (p. 28), by O. Kaufmann (1908).

The PRINZ-ALBRECHT-STRASSE (Pl. G, 19, 22) diverges to the E. from the Königgrätzer-Str. between the Potsdam and Anhalt Stations. At the corner on the right is the —

Ethnographical Museum (Museum für Völkerkunde; Pl. G, 19), designed by Ende and opened in 1886. On the ground-floor are the Prehistoric Collections (director, Prof. K. Schuchardt) and Schliemann's Trojan Collections; the two upper floors are devoted to the Ethnographical Collections, which rival in extent and scientific value those in the British Museum. — Adm. see p. 40; the official guide (1906; 50 pf.) is not clearly arranged. As the collections are constantly being added to and the arrangement of the exhibits altered, visitors are referred to the directing arrows and instructions on the door-posts of the rooms and to the labels attached to the various objects.

Court. — The Vestibule, the ceiling of which is adorned with a mosaic of the planets, and the adjoining glass-covered Court, which is surrounded by galleries, contain the larger objects, notably numerous sculptures in stone from Mexico and Central America. In the vestibule is a colossal Buddha from Japan. In the middle of the court, a large outriggered boat from the Bismarck Archipelago; opposite the entrance, a plaster cast, 33 ft. in height, of the E. door of the great tope of Sanchi in Central India, dating from the 3rd cent. B.C., and adorned with reliefs from Indian mythology and history; to the left and right are two Indian totem poles from Canada, and on the right the chariot of a god from Orissa in S. India, and a plaster cast of a monolithic gateway in Bolivia. In the side-corridors are large hollowed-out canoes.

Ground Floor. — To the left of the vestibule are the Prehistoric Collections from Europe. The gold and silver objects in R. II, the skeleton of a man from the middle diluvial period (Homo Aurignacensis), tombs of the later stone age, found near Merseburg, in R. III, and the objects taken from the burial-ground near Reichenhall (5th-7th cent. A.D.) in R. IV are of special interest.

Two rooms to the right of the court contain the Schliemann Collections*, presented by the distinguished discoverer (d. 1890) to the German Empire. Most of the objects were excavated in 1871-82 on the site of ancient Troy, including the famous series of gold articles, formerly called the 'Treasure of Priam' (in the 2nd Room).

Room V contains on the left antiquities from Turfan, notably wall-paintings from the ruins of a grotto-temple. On the right are antiquities from China, Japan, and Korea, of the early-Buddhistic and pre-Buddhistic periods, comprising a collection of sculptures from Shantung which date back to the beginning of the Christian era.

First Floor. — The Ambulatory contains antiquities from Southern Peru and Argentina and life-size figures and other carvings from North Cameroon. — Proceeding to the left, we enter —

Room I. Africa. Close to the door is a Collection of Bronze Objects from Benin*, being some of those obtained by the British in the West African expedition of 1897: heads of negroes; reliefs of negroes in armour; chiefs with their retainers, and white warriors (probably dating from the 16th or 17th cent.); animals of various kinds, etc. They should be compared with the ivory carvings in Cabinet 22 (to the left) and with the brass ornaments and painted wooden figures from the Slave Coast in Cabinet 263 (to the right of the entrance to R. III). In a case in front of the latter are gold ornaments brought by Wissmann from Kilwa.

Room II, with further collections from Africa, is closed.

Room III. Oceania. This collection is the most complete in existence, and contains objects from the time of Cook's (d. 1779) voyages onwards. Near the entrance: New Zealand; on the back wall are old carvings. — To the right: Polynesia (Tahiti, Hawaii, Samoa, etc.). On these islands metal vessels, bows and arrows, woven cloth, and pottery are unknown, their place being taken by clubs, plaited mats and stuffs made from the fibres of the paper mulberry-tree, and wooden utensils and calabashes made from bottle-gourds. — Micronesia (Caroline and Marshall Islands, etc.). The weapons studded with sharks' teeth (comp. R. IV) and the native armour of cocoanut fibre should be noticed. — To the left: New Holland and Melanesia (the chain of islands stretching from New Guinea to New Caledonia). In Cabs. 81, 55, and 53 are carved boards and masks, and costumes of the Duk-Duk secret society of the Bismarck Archipelago, made of tufts of leaves. Cabs. 70 & 71 contain carved clubs shaped like the old flint-muskets in use at the time of the discovery of the islands, glazed utensils (the only ones found in the South Sea), and objects used at cannibal feasts, from the Fiji Islands. — The following rooms are closed at present.

Room IV, with collections from New Guinea, is closed.

We retrace our steps and proceed through the gallery of the court to the right side of the groundfloor, where we pass through Rooms VII and VI and begin at the end of —

Room V. Central and South America. To the right: South American Indians, including curiosities from Gran Chaco (feather ornaments) and the upper Shingu, in Central Brazil. — The rest of the room is devoted to antiquities and relics of the extinct civilised nations of America, from Mexico, Yucatan (not shown), and Peru, the last being especially valuable. The table-case near the exit contains Mexican turquoise mosaics and calendar-stones.

Room VI. Large collection of Peruvian Antiquities* from the burial-ground of Ancon, to the N. of Lima; swathed mummies.

Room VII. North America. To the right are collections from the fortress-like dwellings of the Pueblo Indians in New Mexico and Arizona (comp. the models), and objects from the region of the Rio Negro (N.W. Brazil). In the corner to the left, buffalo wraps, several with paintings; some more antiquities from Central and South America. Then, objects from North-West America, collected in 1881-83 by Captain Jacobsen (including numerous dancing-masks and carved figures of the Kwakiutl tribe).

To the Second Floor we may ascend to the right or left of the court. On the right staircase are Chinese state-halberds and a Japanese standard in the shape of a carp. On the wall of the left staircase and in the adjoining corridor are imitations of Siamese carving from the temple at Angkor. — Rooms I-IV (beginning on the left) are closed at present.

Room I. Collections from Hindustan: models of buildings and native types; technical groups; to the right, Cingalese masks for conjurations. To the left, theatrical costumes, wood and ivory carvings (Cab. 12 and by Cab. 10a). In an anteroom (adjacent, to the left) are objects from Turkestan. — Room II. Himalaya and Brahmapootra Districts.

Room III. Indo-China: in front and to the right, Burma, to the right the Nicobar and Andaman Islands, at the back Malacca, and to the left, Siam and the Eastern Islands. Front wall: tiles with reliefs of mythological scenes, from Pagan, the capital of the early Burmese kings, destroyed in the 13th century. On the right, objects relating to the cult of Buddhism as practised in S. Asia. On the left by the windows, figures for shadow-pantomimes from Siam.

Room IV. Indonesia, or Malay Archipelago, originally affected by the civilization of Hindustan. To the left, Sumatra and Borneo; behind, Java, which was the chief centre of the Indian influence until 1500 when Islam was introduced. To the right are the E. Malay Islands. — To the left, costume-figures of head-hunters of Borneo (Cab. 69 & 71); old Javanese carvings; Javanese shadow-plays (scenes from the ancient heroic myths) and puppet shows. Tutelary deities of villages; ancestral figures, and matauka-figures or magic amulets against thieves (Cab. 88).

Room V. Indonesia (continued). Most of the exhibits here have been collected from Timor, the Moluccas, Celebes, the Sulu Islands, and the Philippine Islands. — In a space partitioned off, Lamaism as practised in Tibet, the chief seat of this northern form of Buddhism, and China. Masks for the representation of religious dramas (Cab. 123); Chinese shrine and altar of the goddess of small-pox and (in the passage to R. VII) model of the temple of a town-god.

Room VI. Fishery in China and Japan (closed).

Room VII. China (in the first part of the room). Numerous model figures. Fine collection of objects illustrating the Chinese religion (Lamaism and Foism practised in the S. and centre of the country, but more especially Taoism, the religion of the people); figures of gods and genii (to the left, large Taoistic collection), paintings from temples, altar utensils, reliquaries. Wearing apparel, pottery and porcelain, and valuable carvings in jade, agate, etc. — Japan (second half of the room). Numerous idols. To the right, gala-costumes; interesting paintings; those in Desk-Case 181 (by the window) relate to foreign countries; gigantic drum for religious dances.—Room VIII, with further collections from Japan and Korea, is closed.—On the staircase are Japanese porcelain and paintings on folding-screens.

Several rooms on the THIRD FLOOR (not yet open) contain objects from Africa, China (burial-customs), North America (negro races), and Græco-Buddhist carvings from India.

In the Prinz Albrecht-Str., farther on, to the right, is the—

*Museum of Industrial Art (Pl. G, 19), founded in 1867, a very extensive and valuable collection of the products of many different countries, both ancient and modern. The handsome building was erected in 1877-81 in the Renaissance style by Gropius & Schmieden, with effective façades in hewn stone and terracotta. The mosaics below the cornice, executed in Venice from designs by Ewald and Geselschap, represent the epochs in the history of civilisation typified by single figures. At the sides of the flight of steps ascending to the door are sandstone statues of Peter Vischer and Holbein, by Sussmann-Hellborn.—Admission, see p. 40. Director, Prof. von Falke. Official catalogue (1910), 50 pf.

Ground Floor.—In the VESTIBULE (Pl. 1) is a high-altar from a Mannheim church (ca. 1760), and the bow of a Venetian state-galley (16th cent.).—We pass hence through a second Hall (Pl. 2) and enter the glass-covered COURT (Pl. 3), which is used for exhibition purposes. Above, under the glass-roof, is a rich frieze by Geyer and Hundrieser, representing a procession of the nations most distinguished in industrial art, saluting Borussia. The lower arcade (Pl. 4-7) contains objects in wrought iron and Renaissance furniture (cabinets, chests, caskets, etc.).

The rooms round the court contain furniture and domestic equipments arranged in chronological order. Nearly all the rooms contain fine stained-glass windows of the 13th-16th centuries. The rooms at the N.W. corner are used for temporary exhibitions. The entrance-room (9) contains copies of mediæval church-utensils.

W. Side. Rooms 11-13: Domestic and ecclesiastical furniture in the Gothic style, chiefly cabinets and chests, adorned with carving and metal work. Works in metal (chiefly ecclesiastical), crosses, censers, and ewers. Room 11: Enamels from the Lower Rhine and Limoges (12-13th cent.); in Cab. 15, *Church-plate from the abbey of St. Dionysius at Enger, the earliest pieces dating from the time of Charlemagne; silk stuffs and embroideries of the 7th-14th cent.—Room 12: *Flemish tapestry with gold threads (15th cent.).—Room 13: South German furniture and tapestry in the Gothic style; guild's-tankard in pewter, from Breslau (ca. 1500).—Room 14: Furniture of the German Renaissance; *carved chamber-organ (Flemish, ca. 1530).—Rooms 15-17: Italian and French Renaissance works. Room 15: Italian stone carvings; Christ bearing the cross, German stained glass (ca. 1540). Room 16: Fine coffered ceiling and leather hangings from Florence (ca. 1500). Room 17: Small Florentine chamber, painted about 1580 in the style of Poccetti.

S. Side. Room 18: Italian Renaissance works of the 16th cent. Large coffered ceiling from Venice; furniture, frames, candelabra; seat from the synagogue of Siena. Chests with representations of Neptune and the Niobides (Italian, 16th cent.); *Bridal chest from the Palazzo Strozzi.—Rooms 19 and 21, beyond the staircase, contain the *Panelling of two early-German rooms of the 16th century (the original furniture was different). The richer of the two, elaborately adorned with intarsia and containing an old stove, is from the château of Haldenstein, near Coire, and dates from 1548. The other, from the château of Höllrich, near Würzburg, was made about 1570, and comprises a fine ceiling with armorial bearings.—CORNER ROOM 23: German furniture of the Renaissance, mainly from Southern Germany. Admirable collection of boxwood carvings, mostly goldsmiths' models. *Ribbon-weavers' loom carved in boxwood (Nuremberg; ca. 1550). *Stained glass from the Landauer Monastery at Nuremberg, probably after Albert Dürer's designs (comp. Room 67).

E. Side. Rooms 24-26: Late Renaissance and baroque works of the 16th and 17th cent.; in Room 24, French cabinets; spinets, comprising that of Duke Alfonso II. of Ferrara. Room 25: German baroque furniture of the 17th and 18th cent.; carvings and turner's work in amber (chiefly from Dantsic); picture-frames. Room 26: Dutch furniture; carvings on ivory, mother-of-pearl, and shells. Rooms 27-29: Rococo furniture. Room 27: Carved and gilded panels from the palace chapel at Versailles (ca. 1720); Clock and cabinets from Liège (ca. 1750). Room 28: Chamber with carved panelling and paintings from Paris, ca. 1720; French pedestal table of boxwood, ca. 1720.—Room 29: *Panelled reception-room from the Hôtel Sillery at Paris, ca. 1730; in the centre: French writing-table with bronze mounts.—Room 30: French works of the end of the 18th century; objects in the German rococo style. In glass-cases, Furniture from the boudoir of Queen Marie Antoinette at Versailles; opposite, *Commode by Riesener.—Room 31: Furniture of the early 19th cent.

The STAIRCASE is adorned with stained-glass windows representing the Emperor and Empress Frederick, who founded the museum, from designs by E. Ewald. We ascend by the staircase on the N. side.

First Floor.—Collections arranged in technical groups, including pottery, glass, metal-work, and leather. Between the pilasters of the GALLERY: on the left, instrument-cases; farther back, large Chinese vessels in enamelled copper; boxes, fans, etc.; painted table by H. S. Beham, 1534 (original in the Louvre).—Modern French medallions and plaquettes by Roty and others.—On the W. side: Reproductions of gold and silver works (in Cab. 622, works by the Westphalian goldsmith Eisenhoit).—By the E. wall: Stoves and tiles.—At the back (S. side): to the left, a selection of textile fabrics (stairs to the 2nd floor, see p. 135); in front of the staircase, copy of the centre-piece of a table-service presented in 1772 by Frederick the Great to Empress Catherine of Russia.

S. E. Corner. Room 48: Modern glass, porcelain, and metal work.—Room 49: Bookbindings; leather-work, e.g. an octagonal box with love-scenes from Bâle, 14th cent.

E. Side. Here and on the N. side is exhibited the highly important collection of artistic pottery. Room 50: Persian tapestry, metal works, and tiles. Hispano-Moorish majolicas, several with gold lustre.—LARGE CUPOLA ROOM 51: Collection of Italian majolica, one of the most extensive of the kind in the world. The art of majolica-painting attained its highest development in 1480-1540, and also flourished at Urbino in the reign of Duke Guidobaldo II. (1538-74). Engravings and woodcuts were the favourite patterns of the painters. The chief manufactories were at Gubbio (celebrated for its gold and ruby tints; Cab. 252), Urbino (Cab. 255, 260, 263, 265), Faenza, and Caffagiolo near Florence. At a later period majolica was also made at Castelli, at Deruta in Umbria, with an opalescent sheen like mother-of-pearl (Cab. 253, 259), and in Northern Italy.—Rooms 52-54: Oriental, *Delft, and German fayence.

N. Side. Room 55: German stoneware. Palissy and 'Hirsvogel' ware; Franconian, Rhenish, Nassau, and *Siegburg stoneware.—Room 56: French (Moustiers, Rouen, Strassburg, etc.), Spanish, and Italian fayence; Wedgwood (Cab. 333).—Rooms 57-59: European porcelain. Room 57: Berlin; R. 58: Dresden (in Cab. 355, to the left, specimens of Böttger's first efforts in 1710); pieces of the celebrated Swan service of Count Brühl (Cab. 364); three monuments to Gellert (Cab. 359). Room 59 contains examples of other German and foreign fabrics.

North West Corner. Rooms 60-62. Porcelain, lacquer work, and metal-work from China, Japan, and India.

West Side. Works in metal. Room 63: *Painted enamels from Limoges (15th-17th cent.), an excellent collection, including several specimens of great beauty and rarity. German and foreign ornaments. Beautiful Swiss stained glass (16th cent.). The ceiling is by Schlüter.—Room 64. Artistic cabinets; the *'Pommersche Kunstschrank', an exquisite cabinet made in 1617 for Philip II., Duke of Pomerania.—CENTRAL CUPOLA ROOM 65: Objects in the precious metals. 'Lüneburger Ratssilberzeug', a fine service of 36 pieces of plate of the 15th-16th cent., purchased in 1874 for 33,000*l.* *German silver ware of the Renaissance, including specimens by the celebrated goldsmiths Chr. Jamnitzer, J. Silber, H. Petzold, and P. Göttlich. German plate of the 17th and 18th cent. (Mossner bequest). Cab. 481: Eglomisé work (paintings under glass); Pax tablet from Monte Cassino (16th cent.). Cab. 482: Large vessel in rock-crystal, Italian (16th cent.); small jug in rock-crystal after Holbein. — Room 66. Magnificent carved wood ceiling (ca. 1560), from a palace in Fano. Italian bronze-works. *Door-knockers. German ornaments. — CORNER ROOM 67: Works in copper, tin, and brass; German plaquettes in lead and bronze. Pewter platters by Briot and Enderlein. *Stained-glass window from Nuremberg, probably designed by Albrecht Dürer (1508). — Room 68: Collection of glass, one of the most complete departments in the museum. Venetian glass. Cab. 538: *Two enamelled glasses of the end of the 15th cent. (Venice). Among the German glass may be specified the so-called *‘Schaper Glasses’, with black enamel paintings. Bohemian glass; Ruby and spun glass. *Chinese glass. Antique Roman glass; Persian glass; German glass vessels with enamel painting.

Second Floor: ascent in the S.E. corner of the gallery (p. 134). — Rooms 72-76: *Collection of Textile Fabrics, the most complete in existence, especially as regards the extremely rare mediæval fabrics, which, however, are only of technical interest. Needlework of every kind, period, and country is here represented, as also tapestry and wall-papers. — The adjoining GALLERY contains a collection of Italian, Spanish and Netherlandish leather hangings. — Collection of decorative plaster-casts, extending from antiquity to the 18th century.

Adjoining the Museum, an Art-Industrial School (director, Prof. Bruno Paul) was erected in 1901-5.

The Museum possesses a Library and Collection of Ornamental Engravings (director, Dr. Jessen), of which special catalogues are issued. — In the basement is the valuable Library of Costumes (30,000 plates and 10,000 vols.), collected by Baron von Lipperheide (p. 75) and presented to the state in 1898 (varying exhibitions).

Opposite the Museum on the left side of the Prinz-Albrecht-Strasse rises the — Abgeordnetenhaus, or Prussian Chamber of Deputies (Pl. G, 19), a handsome Renaissance edifice by F. Schulze, erected in 1893-98, with allegorical statues on the exterior by O. Lessing. In the entrance hall are four bronze figures by Stark. The large session hall, the walls of which are adorned with views of twelve towns by M. Koch, K. Lessing, Günther-Naumburg, and Schirm, contains seats for 433 deputies. Adm., see p. 36. — The building is connected with the Herrenhaus or Upper Chamber of the Diet (see p. 124) by means of a passage at the back, which leads through an intermediate building for government representatives (containing a handsome chamber for cabinet meetings, by Messel).

6. Königs-Platz. Ausstellungs-Park. Sieges-Allée.

THE PLATZ VOR DEM BRANDENBURGER TOR (Pl. R, 20, 19) was remodelled in 1903 after Inne's designs. It is bounded by semi-circular balustrades in white marble. In front of these, at each end, is a fountain. In the centre, on the right and left of the Charlottenburg road, are marble statues: on the right, that of Emperor Frederick III., with the busts of Helmholtz, the physicist, and General Blumenthal, by Brütt; on the left, that of Empress Victoria, with busts of Zeller, the philosopher, and W. von Hofmann, the chemist, by Gerth. — Tiergarten, see p. 177; Königgrätzer-Strasse, p. 127.

The Friedens-Allée, bearing to the right, leads from the Brandenburg Gate to the *KÖNIGS-PLATZ (Pl. R, 20), which with its environs forms one of the most imposing parts of the city. Originally laid out as a drill-ground by Frederick William I., it received its present name in 1864.

The Column of Victory (Sieges-Säule; Pl. R, 20), 200 ft. in height, designed by Strack, and inaugurated on 2nd Sept., 1873, rises in the centre of the Platz, on a circular terrace approached by eight steps of granite. This massive column, built of dark red granite, sandstone, and bronze, is perhaps the most imposing of its kind in existence. The square pedestal, 22 ft. in height, is adorned with reliefs in bronze: on the E. side is the Danish War of 1864, by A. Calandrelli; on the N. the Battle of Königgrätz, 1866, by M. Schulz; on the W. the Battle of Sedan, 1870, and the Entry into Paris, 1871, by K. Keil; on the S. the Return of the troops to Berlin, 1871, by A. Wolff. The base of the column is surrounded by an open colonnade, and embellished with Venetian mosaics designed by Anton von Werner, illustrating the war of 1870 and the restoration of the German empire. Above, in the flutings of the column, are placed three rows of captured Danish, Austrian, and French cannon (60 in all). The capital, formed of eagles, is crowned with a gilded figure of Victory (by Drake), holding a laurel-wreath in the right hand and an ensign with the iron cross in the left. The proportions of the monument are so calculated that this figure, 48 ft. in height, bulks as the principal feature. Fine view from the platform of the capital, 151 ft. high (adm., see p. 37).

The Königs-Platz is bounded on the E. by the Reichstags-Gebäude (Hall of the Imperial Diet; Pl. R, 20), built in 1884-94 from the designs of Paul Wallot. The building, in the florid Italian Renaissance style, which cost 22,000,000 marks (1,100,000*l.*), is 430 ft. in length, 290 ft. in breadth, 88 ft. in height to the main cornice, and 225 ft. to the imperial crown. The external material is Silesian sandstone. Rising above the square central structure is a huge glass dome, with gilded copper girders, bearing a lantern encircled with columns and terminating in an imperial crown. At the corners are four boldly designed towers, 195 ft. high.

The chief (W.) FAÇADE, turned towards the Königs-Platz, with a portico borne by six columns, is the richest in plastic adornment. To the right and left of the door are reliefs, by O. Lessing, of the Rhine and the Vistula, leaning respectively against an oak-tree and a pine-tree, in the branches of which hang the arms of the German states; above the door is a figure of St. George (with the features of Bismarck), bearing the imperial banner, designed by Siemering; in the pediment is a relief by Schaper, representing Art and Industry protected by Germanic warriors; on the apex of the pediment is a colossal Germania on horseback, bearing shield and banner and escorted by two genii, by R. Begas (in copper).— Over the door of the S. façade is a lion guarding the regalia, by Klein; over the door of the N. front a figure of Truth, by Brütt.— On the E. side is a portico, under which runs the carriage-entrance. At the sides are huge representations of the imperial coat-of-arms protected by two knights, and at the foot of the approach on each side are bronze candelabra, surmounted by figures of Victory dispensing laurels, by A. Vogel. Above are two mounted heralds (in copper), by Maison.

The exterior of the corner-towers also deserves notice. Above the architrave supported by columns rising from the basement story are 16 figures typifying the different industries and occupations of the German people, by Behrens, Diez, Eberle, Eberlein, Lessing, Maison, Schlierholz, and Volz. Between these are the names of the German princes reigning in 1871.— The windows of the principal floor show the arms of the federal states and free cities.

The INTERIOR (adm., see p. 39), the decoration of which is still incomplete, is entered by Portal V, on the N. side. The Vestibule is adjoined on the right by a Waiting Room, whence we ascend to the principal floor. Here we enter the *WANDEL-HALLE, or Promenade Hall, which rises through two stories and runs N. and S., to a length of 315 ft. The floor is inlaid with coloured marble. At the sides, above, are galleries. The central portion consists of an octagon (82 ft. high, and 75 ft. in diameter), surmounted by a dome and separated from the side-halls by galleries and rows of columns. In the centre is a marble monument to Emp. William I. by Pfuhl (1905). Above hangs a huge bronze chandelier (25 ft. in diameter) by Riedinger of Augsburg. The decorative figures above the four angle-recesses of the dome are by O. Lessing. The doors on the E. of the octagon lead into the Hall of the Diet (see p. 138), while to the W. is the main entrance (from the Königs-Platz), which is used on ceremonial occasions only. The general effect of this hall will be greatly enhanced when its colour-decoration is completed by ceiling-paintings and stained-glass windows.

To the W. of the Wandel-Halle is the READING ROOM, with panelled walls and ceiling. About 400 newspapers are laid out here. The frieze of putti is by M. Koch; the wall-paintings, representing the Marienburg, the Wartburg, the Harbour of Hamburg, Arcona, the Frauen-Kirche at Dresden, Speyer Cathedral, and Tangermünde, are by Ludwig, Kühl, Preller, Dill, Hertel, and Bracht. — The adjacent WRITING ROOM, in the N.W. tower, is also finished throughout in wood. In the corners are wooden statues of Vulcan, Neptune, Mercury, and Ceres. The wall-paintings (Strassburg, the Wendelstein, the Teufels-Schlucht, the Chiemsee, and the Bastei) are by Schönleber, Ludwig, Bracht, and Raupp.

The central space under the great glass dome is occupied by the HALL OF THE DIET, 95 ft. long, 69 ft. wide, and 43 ft. high. The walls are panelled in light oak and adorned with ornamental designs, coats-of-arms, and figures. Beneath the glass roof runs a circular vaulting, embellished with coats-of-arms. In the middle of the E. side is the seat of the president, beside which is the secretaries' desk. In front is the tribune, whence members address the house, flanked by the places for the ministers and members of the Federal Council. Immediately in front of the tribune are the seats of the shorthand-writers, and beyond these, the table of the house. The seats for the 397 deputies are arranged amphitheatrically, facing the president, to whose 'right' and 'left' sit the political parties grouped under these names. The doors on the N. and S., leading to the division lobbies, are embellished with intarsia designs representing Ulysses escaping from Polyphemos and Rubezahl ('Number Nip'). — The hall is surrounded by a broad panelled corridor, the beams of which are supported by small half-figures, each bearing a gilded letter of the motto 'Erst das Vaterland, dann die Partei' ('country before party').

To the W. of the S. end of the Wandel-Halle are the REFRESHMENT ROOMS. The main room has a barrel-vault, embellished by Hupp with coats-of-arms and festoons of thistles, amid which are sportive putti with the imperial insignia. — The ceiling of the corner-room displays the phases of the moon in metal; in the angles of the vaulting are low reliefs of the four elements.

We now descend to the S. VESTIBULE, with rich Renaissance portals in sandstone, by Vogel. Above that to the E. are the arms of Prussia supported by Wisdom and Strength; above that to the W. the arms of Bavaria, with Justice and Unity. The stained-glass windows are both by Linnemann: to the N. is seen the imperial eagle, bearing the arms of the federal states on its wings; over the S. portal is Germania. — In front of the columns are it colossal bronze statues of early emperors, viz. Charlemagne by Breuer, Henry I. by Brütt, Otho I. by Maison, Henry III. by Manzel, Frederick Barbarossa by Baumbach, Rudolf of Hapsburg by Vogel, Charles IV. by Diez, and Maximilian I. by Widemann.

The S.E. part of the main floor contains the rooms of the Government and of the Federal Council. The VORSAAL DES BUNDESRATS, or Waiting Room of the Federal Council, is adorned with sculpture in Istrian limestone, with which also the walls are lined. The pillars dividing off the back part of the hall are adorned with beautiful bas-reliefs by O. Lessing. Along the walls run carved benches, upholstered in stamped leather. A hermes-bust of Bismarck, by Rümann, was placed here in 1903.—The HALL OF THE FEDERAL COUNCIL, in the S.E. tower, contains seats for the 50 members round a table. The gilded wooden ceiling is adorned with allegorical paintings by Schuster-Woldan. The huge chimney-piece, reaching to the ceiling, is adorned with a relief of Emp. William I. by Vogel.—After inspecting the Royal Box, the anteroom of which is adorned with stucco and bronze, we lastly enter the E. VESTIBULE, with portals by O. Lessing. In the spandrels of the staircase are tasteful ornamentations, by Widemann, representing warlike trophies on the left, and peaceful tools on the right.

The N.E. part of the main floor is occupied by the rooms of the President of the Reichstag and by a Reference Library. In the antechamber of the former is a bust of Moltke, by Rümann.—On the second floor are the assembly-rooms of the various 'fractions' or parties, and the large library.

At the corner of the Sommer-Str. and Reichstags-Ufer is the official residence of the President of the Reichstag, designed by Wallot.

Opposite the W. façade of the Reichstags-Gebäude rises the National Monument to Prince Bismarck, by Reinhold Begas, erected in 1901. The principal figure is impressive and the general effect is fine; but the somewhat unintelligible allegorical details, and the sketchy and uninteresting reliefs have been unfavorably criticised. The monument proper, 80 ft. in height, rises from a sandstone platform, bounded at each end by a spacious fountain-basin. By the basin to the right is a graceful sandstone group of two fishermen with a mermaid in their net; by that to the left are a triton and nymph feeding a seal. The base and pedestal of the monument are of red granite. The figure of Bismarck, 20 ft. in height, expresses by attitude and gesture a proud self-reliance; his left hand holds the sword firmly against his side, while his right hand is spread upon the charter of the foundation of the empire. The chancellor is represented in the uniform usually worn by him in the old Reichstag (he never entered the new building). The reliefs on the pedestal represent, on the right, ravens hovering round an owl, and, on the left, genii beside a hermes of Bismarck. Four groups surround the base of the pedestal: in front Atlas bearing the globe; behind, Siegfried forging the imperial sword; to the right, an armed woman treading a panther underfoot (Constitutional Power suppressing Revolt?); to the left, a sphinx supporting a woman encrossed in a document (Statecraft?). The front and rear of the base each bear three reliefs: in front, the German Michael in leading-strings, stirred up to fight, and victorious in combat; behind, Germania in the chariot of victory, the ally of Labour and Art, and hailed as the Bringer of Peace.

On the W. side of the Königs-Platz is Kroll's Establishment, founded in 1842, built in 1852 by Titz. It is now leased by the management of the royal theatres and used as the New Opera House (p. 27; garden-concerts see p. 30).

In front of it, as a counterpart to the Bismarck Monument, a Monument to Count Moltke (Pl. R, 17, 20), by Uphues, was erected in 1905. On a large platform enclosed by a parapet rises a pedestal 20 ft. in height, bearing the marble statue (18 ft. high) of the field-marshal, 'the right man in the right war', in a slightly leaning position.

To the N. of the Königs-Platz lies the ALSEN-PLATZ, adorned in 1904 with a bronze statue of Field-Marshal Count Roon (d. 1879), by Magnussen, on a granite pedestal. To the W. are the offices of the General Staff (Pl. R, 20), where Moltke worked, and where he died in 1901. Opposite its N.E. side, Moltke Str. 3, is the Austrian Embassy.—From the Kronprinzen-Ufer, on the Spree, the Moltke-Brücke leads N.W. to the street known as ALT-MOABIT, on the left in which, close to the Spree, is the Provinzial-Steuergebäude (Pl. R, 17), or Office of the Local Tax Commissioners, with bronze statues, by Herter and Hundrieser, of the finance-ministers Motz (d. 1830) and Maassen (d. 1834), who took an active part in the foundation of the German Zollverein or Customs Union. Opposite, at a little distance, rises the handsome Lehrte Station (Pl. R, 18, 21), connected with a station of the Stadtbahn and a postal station (both in the Invaliden-Str., p. 141); tramways see p. 141, by the Exhibition Park.

Opposite the Lehrte Station is the German Colonial Museum (Pl. R, 17; adm., see p. 40). Besides ethnographic collections and specimens of produce, it contains a number of dioramic views from the German colonies, reproductions of the dwellings and types of the natives, etc.

Five paintings, by Hellgreve, in the restaurant, illustrate the occupation of German colonies. To the right is a lecture-room. Below are dioramas of the Cameroons and the Naukluft (S.W. Africa); native huts from the Cameroons and Togo; a camp of Hereros; Chinese tavern.—Above (to the left): Ivory-traders on the Victoria Nyanza; Arab dwelling at Dar-es-Salâm, with diorama of the harbour; Hindoo shop; street and temple in Kiowchow, with diorama of the bay; panorama of Blanche Bay in the Bismarck Archipelago; native huts from the Bismarck Archipelago; houses from New Guinea, with a diorama of Stephansort.

Beyond the Museum in Alt-Moabit lies the Ausstellungs-Park (Pl. R, 17), or Exhibition Park, which is intersected by the Stadtbahn. It is accessible also from the Invaliden-Str. and from the Lehrte Station of the Stadtbahn (tramways, see below). An annual exhibition called the Grosse Berliner Kunstausstellung is held here in summer (adm., see p. 37; catalogue 1 M, with illustrations 2 M; concerts, see p. 37). The Domed Hall in which the exhibitions take place is a sumptuous baroque erection, with sculptured groups at the corners, by Hundrieser, Eberlein, Geiger, and Kaffsack. The ceiling-paintings are by W. Friedrich.—In the W. part of the park (main entrance at Invaliden-Str. 57) are a restaurant and the Urania Observatory (adm., see p. 42; comp. p. 121).

Tramways (pp. 14-22): Nos. 4, 6, 7, 9, 12-15, 18, 20, 21, 23, 24 (Alt-Moabit), and Nos. 2, 10, 11, 16, 19, Q, V (Invaliden-Str.).

To the S. of the Königs-Platz the broad Siegcs-Allée (Pl. R, 20, 19), or Avenue of Victory, intersects the E. part of the Tiergarten. It was adorned in 1898-1901, at the expense of the Emperor, with 32 marble Statues of Prussian Rulers. Behind each monarch is a semicircular marble bench, adorned in the style prevalent during his reign, and bearing hermes-busts of two eminent contemporaries. The statues of the E. row only are portraits.

We have now reached the KEMPER-PLATZ (Pl. R. 19), in which a Gothic fountain (36 ft. high) in granite of different colours, with a figure of Roland, by O. Lessing, was erected in 1902. On the main basin are coats-of-arms of Berlin families; and on the pedestal are representatives of the different classes, and (in front) the sister-towns Berlin and Kölln quarrelling. — The Bellevue-Str. (see p. 127) leads hence to the Potsdamer-Platz, while the Viktoria-Str. runs to the Potsdamer-Brücke (p. 175).

Beside the Goldfisch-Teich (Pl. R. 19), behind the W. row of statues, a marble Monument to Haydn, Mozart, and Beethoven, by Siemering, was erected in 1904. The triangular baroque edifice shows half-length figures of the composers in niches, with symbols of their art below and genii bearing garlands above. — In the neighbouring Flora-Platz, to the W., stands an enlarged replica of the Amazon by Tuaillon (p. 86).

The E. side of the Tiergarten is skirted by the Königgrätzer-Strasse (p. 127), leading from the Brandenburg Gate to the Potsdamer-Platz (p. 127) on the S. At the entrance to the Lenné-Str., near the Königgrätzer-Str., is the Monument to Lessing (Pl. R. 19), by O. Lessing (1890); on the granite pedestal are portraits of Moses Mendelssohn, Ewald von Kleist, and Friedr. Nicolai (p. 158), and at the base are allegorical figures of Humanity and Criticism. — At the corner of the streets mentioned above a marble Statue of the Great Elector when a youth (after his statue by Janensch at Küstrin) was erected in 1904. In the Königgrätzer-Str. is the Monument to Goethe (Pl. R, 19), by F. Schaper (1880); the marble figure of the poet stands on a pedestal, on the base of which are figures of Lyric and Tragic Poetry and Scientific Research. Near it to the S.W. of the Brandenburg Gate is a Group of Lions, by A. Wolff. — Southern margin of the Tiergarten see p. 178.

7. Oceanographical Museum. Hohenzollern Museum.

The FRIEDRICH-STRASSE (p. 120) runs in a straight direction towards the N. from the Linden (Pl. R, 23) across the Weidendamm Bridge to the former Oranienburg Gate. Its second cross-street is the Dorotheen-Strasse (for its E. part see p. 57). In the portion to the W. of the Friedrich-Str. stands the Dorotheenstadt Church (Pl. R, 23), built in 1678 and remodelled in 1861, containing the Monument of Count von der Mark (d. 1787), a natural son of Frederick William II., Schadow's first important work (sacristan, Mittel-Str. 28). — Opposite (Dorotheen-Str. 27) is the Royal York Masonic Lodge, built in 1881-83 as an addition to a house erected by Schlüter in 1712. Farther to the W. we reach the Neue Wilhelm-Strasse (p. 162).

The third cross-street of the Friedrich-Str. is the Georgen-Strasse. Here, to the right (Nos. 34-36), is the —

Oceanographical Museum (Museum für Meereskunde; Pl. R, 23), opened in 1906 in connection with the University Oceanographic Institute. Adm., see p. 40; illustrated guide, 50 pf.

The GROUND FLOOR contains the Imperial Naval Collection. I. Historic Room: Models of ships (viking's boat, Hansa vessel, etc.); fragments of the frigate Gefion, taken in 1849 near Eckernförde; reminiscences of Admiral Brommy (1804-60), of the gun-boat Iltis, lost in 1896 on the coast of Shantung, of the fight of the new Iltis with the Taku forts in 1900, etc.; 20 pictures by Petersen (glorious days of the German fleet). — We descend to the Covered Court (II): Emp. William II. as admiral, bust by Pfannschmidt (1899); models of all types of German ships of war; model of a division of ships of the line in port; to the right of the entrance a column with coats-of-arms, erected by John II. of Portugal in 1485 on Cape Cross (S.W. Afrika). — To the right of the covered court we pass through Room III to the Court; among the larger objects here is a submarine boat constructed in 1851, sunk at the trial-trip in Kiel harbour, and recovered in 1887. — Room IV., to the left of the court and a few steps lower, contains reproductions of the cabins on board the old training-ship Niobe. — Behind the covered court is the Armoury (V), containing marine artillery and torpedoes (to the left, model of a division of torpedo-boats). In the rooms adjoining on the right (VI-VIII): Signalling apparatus, rescue machines, uniformed figures. — The gallery to the left of the covered court (R. IX and X) contains models for ship-building, equipment of ships, and marine engines.

On the FIRST FLOOR the Central Room (1) contains sailing ships and life-saving service. — To the left in Anteroom 2: Construction of harbours (portions of Hamburg harbour), fuelling and marking of the water-highways, beacons, etc. — Rooms 3-10, to the left, Oceanological Collection: Nautical instruments, comprising those for deep-sea research; in Room 9, diagrams showing the saltness of the sea; samples of the sea bottom; paintings referring to the second German polar expedition in 1869-70, by Wensel; in Room 10, models of Swinemünde and Heligoland. — The following rooms contain the Biological and Fisheries Collection. Room 11: Sponge-fisheries of the Ægean Sea; animal life near the South Pole; guillemots' rock at Heligoland; animals living on reefs (coral reef from the Red Sea). Rooms 12, 13: Animal life in the North Sea. Room 14: Capture of marine animals and use of marine products (whale-bone, guano, mother-of-pearl, pearls, amber, etc.); three paintings by Salzmann (Whale-fishing, Pelicans breeding on the coast of Peru, Crab-fishing on the Oldenburg coast). Room 15: German deep-sea and longshore fishing. In the passage to the central room (see p. 144): Models of fishermen's huts in Finkenwerder and Rügen.

The Bahnhof Friedrich-Strasse (Pl. R, 23), at the corner of the Friedrich-Str. and Georgen-Str., is the main station of the Stadtbahn (pp. 1 and 12). On the S. side is a bronze bust, by Brunow, of Dircksen, the constructor of the Stadtbahn (1902).

Tramways (pp. 14-22) via the Dorotheen-Str. (Nos. 13, N, O, S, T, and U) and the Charlotten-Str. (Nos. 12, 18, 20, 25, 32, 34, 38, a) to the Brandenburg Gate (13, N, O, S, T, U), Dönhoff-Platz (12, 13, 18, 2), Gendarmen-Markt (34, 43), Gesundbrunnen (34, 43, a), Görlitz Station (12, 13, 18), Halle Gate and Kreuzberg (34, 43), Moabit (12, 13, 20), and Stettin Station (25, 32, 34, 43, a).

The Friedrich-Strasse beyond the station crosses the Spree by the Weidendamm Bridge (Pl. R, 23). Before the bridge, to the right, at the corner of the Weidendamm, is the Komische Oper (p. 27), built in 1905 by Lachmann and Zauber in a modern baroque style. In the Weidendamm and Kupfergraben are the Barracks of the Emperor Alexander Guards Regiment, opposite which rises the Emperor Frederick Museum (p. 95).

Beyond the Weidendamm Bridge, to the right of the Friedrich-Str., Nos. 5-11 Ziegel-Str., are the United Clinical Institutes of the University (for surgery and for diseases of the eye and ear; visitors admitted on Wed., Frid., & Sun. 12-1.30), connected with the Langenbeck-Haus, the meeting-house of the German Surgical Society. Farther on, at Artillerie-Str. 20, is the Midwifery Institute, and beyond it, in the Monbijou-Str., the building of the Polyclinic for Internal Diseases.

Farther on, Friedrich-Str. 110-12, is the emporium of W. Wertheim ('Passage-Kaufhaus'; Pl. R., 24), built in 1908 by F. Ahrens, with a cupola 160 ft. in height above the passage to the Oranienburger Strasse.

Beyond the Kaufhaus the Friedrich-Str. is joined (right) by the ORANIENBURGER-STRASSE, in which to the left (No. 30) is the New Synagogue (Pl. R, 24), begun in 1859 in a modified Oriental style from designs by Knoblauch, and completed in 1866 under the superintendence of Stüler. The façade, which is constructed of brick with details in granite and sandstone, is very effective in spite of its lack of width. The gilded dome attains a height of 158 ft. The *Interior (adm., see p. 39) is still finer. Passing through a vestibule, we first enter the Small Synagogue, used for the daily services, beyond which is the Chief Synagogue, 130 ft. long (not including the apse), 79 ft. broad, and $78\frac{1}{2}$ ft. high, with 3000 seats. The iron vaulted roof is supported by slender iron pillars. During the evening-service (Fridays at dusk) the 'dim religious light' from the stained glass and the cupolas produces a remarkably fine effect. The places for men are on the groundfloor, those for women in the galleries.

Near the E. end of the Oranienburger-Str. is the Monbijou-Platz, embellished with a marble bust of Chamisso (p. 173), by Moser. Tramways see p. 168 (Hackescher Markt). In this Platz is the entrance to the royal — Château of Monbijou (Pl. R, 23). The nucleus of the edifice consists of a villa erected by Eosander von Goethe in 1706 for Countess Wartenberg; the two detached buildings facing the Monbijou-Platz were added by Unger in 1789-90. In the Monbijou garden is the tasteful little English Church (St. George's), erected in 1884-85 by Raschdorff (services, see p. 36).

Since 1877 the Château has contained the Hohenzollern Museum, a collection of personal memorials of the Prussian rulers from the time of the Great Elector down to the present day. It includes a large number of objects of genuine artistic interest, and affords an excellent survey of the progress of industrial art in the last two centuries. Director, Prof. Seidel. Adm., see p. 38. Catalogue (1906), 30 pf., with illustrations 2 N.

Rooms 1-3 (comp. Plan, p. 147) are devoted to Emperor William II. and Empress Augusta Victoria. — 1. Portrait of Prince William when a boy of ten years, by F. Kaulbach. Memorials of the emperor's visit to Palestine (1898), including paintings by Ism. Gentz and a mother-of-pearl model of the Mosque of Omar at Jerusalem. Original drawings and engravings of published drawings by the emperor. — R. 2. In the first cabinet to the left, Souvenirs of the wedding (1881) and silver-wedding (1906) of the emperor. Paintings: the emperor when a prince, two drawings by Menzel (1873); obsequies of Menzel (1905), by Pape; Baptism of Crown Prince Fred. William (1882), by A. von Werner; cavalry charge under the emperor's command, by Kossak. — R. 3. Reminiscences of Prof. Hinzpeter (the emperor's tutor, d. 1907) and of the emperor's student-days at Bonn; wedding gift of the 'Borussia' corps at Bonn. Portrait of the emperor by Noster (d. 1910); paintings of ceremonials, by Pape (Audience of Prince Chung in 1901, etc.).

Room 4: Emperor Frederick (1831-88) and Empress Victoria (1840-1901). Memorials of the emperor at school and college; his first uniform; wedding garments of the emperor and empress (1858); address, painted by Menzel, on the emperor's 18th birthday; replica of his monument at Bremen by Tuillon. Painting, by E. Hildebrand, of the royal family in front of the New Palace (p. 198); above the chimney-piece, Portrait of the emperor, by G. Richter; Obsequies of Empress Victoria at Cronberg, by F. Brütt (1901).

Rooms 5-10: Emperor William I. (1797-1888) and Empress Augusta (1811-90). R. 5 contains M. Lock's marble *Group, 'No time to be tired,' the marble angels from the mausoleum of Emp. Frederick, and the bust of the latter, by Schuler. — R. 6. Addresses, the most interesting designed by Menzel after the attempt on the emperor's life in 1878 (in the right corner). By the back-wall are the emperor's coronation-robcs (1861) and uniforms appropriate to his various orders. By the window-wall is Moltke's study-table, with a cast of his death-mask and his hands. Silver Hall of Fame, by Friedberg Sons. — R. 7. By the N. wall, costumes and uniforms; sabretache (to the left of the swords) on which the emperor wrote his letter to Napoleon III. at Sedan. In the centre is the table at which Napoleon III. signed the declaration of war at St. Cloud in 1870. On the window-wall are memorials of the emperor's youth, comprising a letter from Queen Louise to her son (1806). Portraits of Bismarck and numerous generals. — R. 8. Bust of Prince William by Rauch (1833). Paintings: Unter den Linden, 22nd March, 1887, by Geissler; the emperor on his death-bed, drawing by A. von Werner; the emperor in his private room, by Bülow (1888); *Address from the city of Berlin after the campaign of 1866, by Menzel. — R. 10. Two portraits of Empress Augusta by Plockhorst. Bridal-train (1829) and coronation-robe of the empress; coronation-canopy; ornaments worn at her golden wedding.

Rooms 11 and 12: Frederick William IV. (1795-1861) and Queen Elizabeth (1801-73). — 11. Table with drawings by the king. Portraits of the king by Krüger and Otto, and portraits of contemporary savants and artists, mostly by K. Begas the Elder. — 12. Portraits of Queen Elizabeth by Stieler and by Bülow; homage at the castle of Hohenzollern, by Bürde.

Room 13: Frederick William III. (1770-1840). Portraits of generals. Entrance-wall, Napoleon's table-service captured at Waterloo; memorials of 1813, including ornaments made of iron. Window-wall: Memorials of Prince Louis Ferdinand, who fell at Saalfeld (1806). Back-wall: portrait of Princess Liegnitz, the second wife of the king (d. 1873); sketch of the king, by Th. Lawrence. — On the folding screens, views of the rooms inhabited by the royal couple in the Kronprinzen-Palais.

Rooms 14-17: Queen Louise (1776-1810). Numerous portraits and busts of the queen, memorials of her childhood, articles used by her, dresses, work done by her, and musical instruments. In R. 14 is her death-mask, adjoined by a view of the château of Hohen-Zieritz, where she died. — R. 15, fitted up in the style of Queen Louise's bedroom at Potsdam, contains the cradle of her youngest children and her painted wax-portrait after Rauch. — R. 16. Views of the château of Paretz (with the royal couple) and of the Pheasants' Island. Above a door, Portrait of Schiller, by Höflinger (1781). — 17. Memorial Hall: *Marble monument to the queen, a repetition (not a copy) of the monument in the Charlottenburg Mausoleum (p. 183), executed in 1818-27 by Rauch and purchased in 1834 by Frederick William III.; *Marble portrait of her son Prince Ferdinand (d. 1804), by G. Schadow. In the vestibule: Plaster statues of Urania, with the features of Queen Louise, by Wichmann, and of Hope, with the features of the actress Unger, by G. Schadow. Marble busts of the king, with a figure of victory on the pedestal (1815; left), and of the queen (1804-10; right), both by Rauch; to the right, her portrait by Grassi. — R. 18 contains wall-decorations brought from the Royal Palace.

Room 19: Frederick William II. (1744-97). Cabinet with coloured marquetry made at Neuwied (1791); clock of 1793.

Room 20: Queen Frederica Louisa (1751-1805), second wife of Frederick William II. Portraits of the queen and the king, by Graff.

Rooms 21-26: Frederick the Great (1712-86), with furniture from the New Palace. RR. 21, 22. Porcelain collection; the service dates from the original equipment of the palace. Fine rococo console; below, large Chinese vases. In R. 21, table with small articles used by the king: snuff-box held by the king in his hand when he died. In the middle of R. 22, *Cabinet containing jewels, e.g. thirteen snuff-boxes set with precious stones; watches and sticks of the king; snuff-box hit by a bullet at Kunersdorf in 1759; plate remaining from his golden service melted down in 1808; ornaments found in tombs of Hohenzollern princes; chain of the Order of the Swan (unique original). Adjacent, a case containing snuff-boxes in chryso-pras and jasper.—R. 23. Cedar Room. Portrait of the king when crown-prince, by Knobelsdorff; portrait of Pesne, the court-painter, by himself; collection of snuff-boxes with portraits of the king, battle-scenes, etc.; specimens of the king's handwriting.—R. 24. Alcove Room. Chinese cabinet that formerly contained the king's collection of maps; his writing-table. Terracotta bust of Prince Henry, his brother. By the windows: the king with his greyhounds, statuette by G. Schadow; a volume of the Œuvres du philosophe de Sanssouci, with annotations by Voltaire and the king; the king's first essays in writing and drawing. In the alcove (to the right of the entrance): Frederick's drawing of the Town Palace at Potsdam; ribbons recording victories; clothes and uniforms of the king from his childhood till his death, his first dress, his gala-uniform as colonel of the life-guards (when crown-prince); table-top with views of Rheinsberg; his death-mask.—R. 25. Throne Room, with upholstered furniture from the New Palace. By the back-wall are Frederick's cradle and the chair in which he died; effigies of his favourite dogs.—R. 26. Cabinet to the left: The king's flutes; the bullet by which he was wounded in 1760 at Torgau; Knobelsdorff's sketch-book; two tin cups engraved by Baron Trenck during his imprisonment at Magdeburg; porcelain group of the king and his grandson Frederick William playing shuttle-cock; porcelain bust of Voltaire ('immortalis'), presented in 1775 to the latter by the king.

Room 27: Red Gallery. Busts of members of the Hohenzollern family. On the walls, an admirable rococo service from the Berlin porcelain factory; remains of a table-service made in China as a gift for Frederick from the Frisian Trading Co. but lost in a shipwreck on the way to Europe.

Room 28: Queen Elizabeth Christina (1715-97), consort of Frederick the Great. Portrait of the queen in widow's weeds, by Graff.—Room 29 is decorated in the Chinese style.

Room 30: Memorial Room. Coloured wooden figure of the Great Elector; King Frederick I., a cast of Schlüter's statue at Königsberg; model for a statue of Frederick William I., by Bettkober. On the walls, portraits of the children of Frederick William I.

Room 31: Queen Sophia Dorothea (1687-1757), wife of Frederick William I. Her portrait by Huber; wax figures of her children.

Upholstered furniture from the New Palace. — Room 32 contains views of the château of Monbijou.

Room 33: Green Gallery. Busts of generals, statesmen, and savants (comprising six after Rauch). Views of Old Berlin; table-services; in the first cabinet, cups in memory of Queen Louise and of the year 1813; in the fifth, specimens of a fine table-service of Frederick the Great. Valuable collection of glass, including glasses ridiculing Gundling, the court-jester, from the 'Tobacco Parliament' (see below), and ruby-coloured glass made by Kunkel, the alchemist.

Room 34: Engravings. Frames with miniatures, including Frederick the Great (in 3, 4, and 5), Queen Louise (7), Blücher and Schill (9).

Room 35: Frederick William I. (1688-1740). By the back-wall are portraits of the king's family, the chair in which he died, and his turning-lathe. / By the windows: arm-chair made for Peter the Great; specimens of the king's handwriting; memorials of Lieutenant Katte, who was executed in 1730 for complicity in Frederick the Great's attempted flight (when crown-prince). In the centre are the table, chairs, and pipes used at the 'Tobacco Parliaments'.

Rooms 36-38: Frederick I. (1657-1713) and Queen Sophia Charlotte (1668-1705). — The ceiling of R. 36 is a reproduction of a contemporaneous one in the Palace at Berlin; to the right, portrait of the king, by Weidemann; in the glass-case to the left, statuette of the Great Elector as Bellerophon. — R. 37. Portrait of the queen, by Weidemann; reliefs of the royal couple from Schlüter's sarcophagi (p. 65). — R. 38, with Renaissance panelling, is a reproduction of the room in the Palace of Königsberg in which Frederick I. was born. Wax figures of the King, the Great Elector, and Frederick the Great.

Casts of the two brasses from the tomb of John Cicero, by Peter and Johannes Vischer (comp. p. 65), and of Bläser's statue of Frederick William IV. at the castle of Hohenzollern. Three colossal busts in plaster: Frederick the Great, after Rauch; the Great Elector, after Schlüter; and Emp. William I., after R. Begas. Paintings: Queen

Louise visiting an orphanage, by Schrader; Frederick William III., by Krüger; Moltke's 90th Birthday, by A. von Werner; Battle of Königgrätz, by Steffek; Frederick William IV. receiving homage, by Krüger.

8. Old Berlin.

Rathaus. Märkisches Museum. Museum of German Costumes and Industries. Ravené's Picture Gallery.

From the Kurfürsten-Brücke (p. 71) the KÖNIG-STRASSE leads to the N.E. through Old Berlin (in the narrower sense, comp. p. 47) to the Alexander-Platz (p. 152). In this street to the left, between the Heilige-Geist-Str. and Spandauer-Str., is the Central Post Office (Pl. R, 26; comp. p. 25), built in 1874-84, and officially called 'Hofpostamt' and 'Briefpostamt' (letter post-office); the latter is a brick-building in the Brandenburg Gothic style, erected in 1901 in the Heilige-Geist-Str.

In the König-Strasse to the right, at the corner of the Spandauer-Str., is N. Israel's large drapery establishment (p. 32). Opposite, with its façade towards the König-Str., stands the —

Rathaus, or Town Hall (Pl. R, 26), an imposing brick edifice with tasteful terracotta embellishments and granite facings, erected in 1861-69 from the plans of Waesemann on the site of the old Rathaus, to which the Gerichtslaube (p. 201) belonged. The structure is 325 ft. long, 288 ft. deep, and 88 ft. high to the top of the attic stage above the third story, while the tall tower rises to a height of 243 ft. (to the top of the flag-staff 318 ft.). The dial-plates of the clock measure $15\frac{1}{2}$ ft. in diameter. Like many of the other modern buildings of Berlin, the Rathaus exhibits a union of a mediæval structural system (round-arched) with Renaissance details, and resembles the edifices of North Italy. The open-work projections at the angles of the tower recall the Cathedral of Laon. — The bronze statues of Emp. William I. and Elector Frederick I., in the niches by the portal, were executed by Keil and Encke; the reliefs of the balconies represent scenes from the life in Old and New Berlin.

The architectural decoration of the principal rooms on the FIRST FLOOR (adm., see p. 39), which gave a new impetus to industrial art in Berlin, is due to Kolscher.

On the left side of the staircase, next the König-Str., is the VESTIBULE OF THE MAGISTRATES' ROOM. This contains a marble figure of the Spree, by Christensen, and a series of historical paintings: 1. (beginning on the E.) The Great Elector receiving the refugees (p. 47); 2. The Councillors of Berlin-Kölln taking the Sacrament (1539), both by Vogel; 3. Suppression of the robber barons by Elector Frederick I.; 4. The Council of Berlin-Kölln sitting in judgment on Tyle Wardenberg (ca. 1380), both by Scheurenberg; 5. Frederick William I. inspecting the buildings in the Friedrichstadt (p. 47), by Vogel; 6. Frederick the Great riding in Unter den Linden; 7. Return of Frederick William III. and Queen Luise in 1809, both by Simmler; 8. The Berliners on the battlefield of Grossbeeren (1813), by Bleibtreu; 9. Frederick William IV. at the unveiling of the statue of Frederick the Great (1851), by Simmler. — The MAGISTRATES' ROOM contains fine panelling and portraits of the Great Elector and the nine kings of Prussia.

On the right side, next the König-Str., we first enter the LIBRARY. — The MÄRCHENSAAL ('hall of legends'), the ceiling of which is adorned with figures from German legends, by L. Burger, contains the silver-plate for festivals and marble busts of honorary citizens: Bismarck, Moltke, Ranke, and Schliemann. — The large FESTSAAL, 103 ft. in length and 57 in width, is 49 ft. high, extending through three stories. The pictures of the months in the lunettes are by O. Begas. This hall also contains statues of Frederick the Great and Frederick William III., by Sussmann-Hellborn, a bust of William II., by Schott, and A. von Werner's well-known picture of the Berlin Congress of 1878. — Hence we pass through the TOWN COUNCIL CHAMBER and its vestibule, with pictures in the lunettes by Hertel (Works of charity, in a landscape setting), and regain the staircase.

Three walls of the staircase on the UPPER FLOOR are adorned with large paintings by Mühlenbruch: to the left, The German States before the Temple of Concord; in the centre, Germania bearing the imperial crown in triumph to William I.; to the right, Meritorious citizens of Berlin (75 portraits). — On the upper floor is the BÜRGERSAAL, with a frieze by A. von Heyden representing scenes of Berlin life from the earliest times to the present day.

On the groundfloor is the Ratskeller (p. 10). — The Tower commands the best Panoramic View of Berlin* (405 steps; adm., see p. 39).

Tramways (pp. 15-21) from the Rathaus: Nos. 5, 8, 16, 17, 19, 27-30, 38, 47, 48, 53-62, 64-67, 80, 81, 99; comp. below, Alexander-Platz.

The N.E. end of the König-Strasse was flanked until 1910 by the Königs-Colonnaden (comp. p. 175). On the right, a warehouse of A. Wertheim is being constructed by Kaiser & von Grossheim. To the left, the Gontard-Strasse leads to the Central Market. At the end of of the König-Strasse, to the left, is the Alexander-Platz Station (Pl. R, 26; see pp. 1, 12).

Tramways (pp. 15-21) from the station and from the Alexander-Platz (on the E.; Nos. 3, 11, 22, 31, 35, 36, 37, 41, 45, 46, 49) to: Anhalt Station (17, 59, 62), Dönhoff-Platz (17, 59, 62, 64, 66, 67, 69, 71, 72, 74), Gendarmen-Markt (60, 61, 70, 73, 75, 80, 81), Gesundbrunnen (35, 36, 41), Görlitz Station (11, 22, 46), Hackescher Markt (16, 19), Halle Gate (64, 70, 73, 75), Kreuzberg (35, 36, 37, 41), Moabit (5, 11, 16, 19), Lützow-Platz (3, 17, 63, 66, 67, 80, 81), Neues Tor (11, 16, 19), Nollendorf-Platz (3, 60, 61, 64, 75), Potsdam Station (60, 61, 66, 67, 69, 71, 72, 74, 80, 81), Rixdorf (22, 46, 49, 58), Schloss-Platz (17, 60, 61, 63, 70, 73, 75, 80, 81), Schöneberg (3, 5, 41, 60, 61, 62, 69, 71, 72, 74), Spittelmarkt (58, 59, 62, 64-67, 69-72, 74), Stettin Station (11, 16, 19, 68).

The König-Strasse passes under the Stadtbahn and ends at the spacious ALEXANDER-PLATZ (Pl. R, 29). The N.W. side of the Platz is bounded by one of Tietz's Stores (comp. p. 31), built by Cremer & Wolfenstein. In front of it stands a colossal copper figure of Berolina, by Hundrieser (1895; statue and pedestal each 25 ft. high). To the S. are the Police Headquarters (Pl. R, 29), a huge pile covering an area of about 18,870 sq. yds., erected in 1885-90. On the E. side of the Platz, Alexander-Str. 41, is the office of the Berliner Lehrerverein, with reading-room and an educational museum (entrance Kurze-Str. 3-5; adm. Mon. Frid. 4-7, Wed. 8-10 p.m.).

To the N.E. of the Alexander-Platz, between the Landsberger-Str. and the Neue König-Str., is the Church of St. George (Pl. R, 29), built in a Transition style by Otzen in 1895-98. The principal tower (340 ft.), rising high above the surrounding houses, admirably fills in the vista along the König-Strasse.

At No. 10 in the street 'Am Königsgraben', diverging from the Alexander-Platz to the N., is the Lessinghaus (Pl. R, 26), where the poet lived in 1765-67 and completed Minna von Barnhelm and the Laocoon; on the groundfloor to the left are memorials of him and materials for a history of the drama (free adm. Wed. and Sat. 11-1).

To the N. of the König-Strasse in the NEUE MARKT (Pl. R, 26) rises the Luther Monument, begun by Otto (d. 1893) and completed by Toberentz in the year of his death (1895). The figure of the great reformer, Bible in hand, stands upon a lofty granite pedestal, at the foot of which are seated figures of Jonas and Cruciger, Reuchlin and Spalatin, and standing figures of Melanchthon and Bugenhagen, while at the sides of the steps are statues of Ulrich von Hutten and Franz von Sickingen.

In the same square is the Marien-Kirche (Pl. R, 26), built in the 13th cent., rebuilt in the 14th, and restored in 1892-94. The singular Gothic spire of the tower (295 ft.) was added in 1788. In front of the W. entrance is an expiatory cross for the murder of a Prior of Bernau (1325). The exterior of the church is plain, but the interior (sacristan, Bischof-Str. 4-5) well repays a visit. In the hall below the tower is a Dance of Death, a mural painting of about 1470, with rhymes in Low German. In the choir are the brazen font and the *Monument of Count Sparr (d. 1668), a field-marshal under the Great Elector, an admirable work by A. Quellinus the Elder from Amsterdam. The curious marble pulpit is by Schlüter (1703). Concerts, see p. 30.

To the N.W. stretches the Rosen-Strasse, see p. 51.— Along the N.W. side of the Neue Markt passes the Kaiser Wilhelm-Str., which leads to the left to the Lustgarten (p. 64) and to the right to the Central Market (p. 152). Beyond it, Spandauer-Str. 1, rises the Handels-Hochschule ('commercial high-school'; Pl. R, 26), built in 1906 in the baroque style by Cremer & Wolfenstein, and maintained by the Berlin merchants (director, Prof. Jastrow; 40 lecturers and 370 students). The old Chapel of the Holy Ghost, dating from the early 14th cent., is used as a lecture-room.

The neighbouring Protestant Garrison Church (Pl. R, 26), in the Neue Friedrich-Str., erected by Gerlach in 1721-22, and rebuilt in 1900, was destroyed by fire in April, 1908. In the vaults, Marshall Keith (d. 1758), Kleist von Nollendorf (d. 1823), and many other generals are buried. — Not far off, to the W., the Friedrichs-Brücke crosses the Spree, beyond which to the left rises the Cathedral (p. 64), to the right the National Gallery (p. 85). On this side of the river, in the Burg-Str., is the — Börse, or Exchange (Pl. R, 26), erected in 1859-64 by Hitzig, and extended towards the S. in 1884-85, the first modern building in Berlin executed in stone instead of brick. The chief façade is embellished with a double colonnade, above which, in the centre, is a group in sandstone by R. Begas, representing Borussia as the protectress of agriculture and commerce. In the vestibule is a seated marble figure of Emperor William I. as lawgiver, by Siemering. The main hall is 110 yds. in length, 29 yds. in breadth, and 65 ft. in height, and is divided into three sections by two galleries supported by arches. During business-hours (12-2) more than 4000 men of business congregate here daily; best survey from the gallery (adm., see p. 37).

TO THE S. OF THE KÖNIG-STRASSE (p. 151), at the corner of the Gruner-Str. and NEUE FRIEDRICH-STR., is the District Court I. (Land- und Amtsgericht; Pl. R, 29), completed in 1904 from designs by Schmalz in a free adaptation of the S. German baroque style, presenting its main façade, flanked by two lofty turrets, to the N. towards the Gruner-Strasse. The imposing pile contains upwards of 600 rooms; the façade towards the Neue Friedrich-Str. is 240 yds. in length. Fine staircase.

The Neue Friedrich-Strasse ends to the S. at the Waisen-Brücke, which affords to the S. a survey of the channels of the Spree encircling Alt-Kölln. Near it to the left is the pier of the steamboats on the Upper Spree (p. 24) and the Jannowitz-Brücke Station of the Stadtbahn (Pl. R, 28; p. 12). Beyond the Waisen-Brücke is the MÄRKISCHE PLATZ (Pl. R, 28), with a handsome Fountain by Brunow (1897), bearing the figure of a woman washing. On the S. side in the Wall-Str. (comp. p. 47) is the municipal —

Märkische Museum erected in 1901-7 by L. Hoffmann. Borrowing suggestions from various mediæval structures (both sacred and profane) in the Mark of Brandenburg, the architect has applied them to a number of different buildings, the whole forming an irregular but highly effective group, dominated by a massive tower. Adm., see p. 40. Guide (1908) 10 pf.

On the FIRST FLOOR, we pass through a vestibule into the Great Hall (2), containing the larger ecclesiastical antiquities (Madonna from Spandau, 14th cent.).—From the back-wall of the hall steps lead to the right to the eight rooms (10-17) of the Natural History Division: Stump of a swamp-cypress of the tertiary period, from Gross-Räschchen near Senftenberg (in front of R. 11, to the right); relief-maps; biological groups.—Next follows the division referring to the History of Civilisation. Room 18: Stove-plates; products of the former royal iron-foundry (New Year's cards; statuette of the 'Eckensteher Nante', etc.).—Room 21: Berlin statistics; models of the Rudolf Virchow Hospital and of the lunatic asylum at Buch (comp. pp. 167, 206).—Room 22: Humorous lithographs by G. Schadow, Hosemann, etc.; manuscripts by Chamisso (Peter Schlemihl), E. Th. A. Hofmann, etc.—Room 23: Markish printing.—Room 24: Prints and lithographs, including specimens by R. Krüger and Hosemann.—Room 25: Manuscripts and reminiscences of Th. Fontane, the Markish poet (p. 178); portrait of Ad. Menzel, by himself (1853; above the exit).—Rooms 26 and 27: Portraits and busts of Berlin celebrities; old play-bills; letters by E. Th. A. Hoffmann.—Between R. 27 and the vestibule a staircase ascends to the—SECOND FLOOR. The ante-room (pictures from the Nikolaikirche, e. g. the Good Samaritan) is adjoined by the lecture-room and the Hall of Weapons (29). We next enter the Gallery (30) of the Great Hall, with an interesting crucifixion (beginning of the 14th cent.).—Room 31: Industrial objects; fishery (scenes from the Stralau draught of fish; comp. p. 171).—Room 32: Jurisdiction; doors of the cells of G. Kinkel (from the Spandau penitentiary) and of F. Reuter (from the Hausvogtei, p. 160).—Room 33: Spreewald Room.—Room 34: Pottery; on the walls terracotta reliefs after Schinkel.—Room 35: Berlin room of the early 19th century.—Rooms 37-39 contain ecclesiastical antiquities. Room 38: Carved altar from Fehrbellin (ca. 1500); chalice from the church of St. Nicholas at Spandau (probably used at the conversion of Elector Joachim II. to the reformed faith).—Rooms 40 and 41: Metal utensils.—Rooms 42-45 (and 48) contain maps and views of old Berlin; in R. 42, to the left, the map by Memhardt, of 1650 (the oldest), and the map by Schultz, of 1688 (Berlin as a fortress); view of the street Unter den Linden about the year 1820.—R. 43: View of the Royal Palace before its reconstruction by Schlüter; view from the former Königsbrücke, by Ed. Gärtner; sketches by Hummel of the works connected with the granite basin by the Old Museum (comp. p. 64).—R. 44: Menzel's picture of the Tempelhofer Feld (unfinished; 1847).—R. 45: Rococo room; Berlin porcelain (Wegely's experiments from 1744).—Room 46: Corporate institutes; two diplomas designed by Menzel.—Room 47: Memorials of G. Schadow.—Beyond R. 48 (see above) in Room 46: Antiquities of local importance, particularly coins.

The GROUND FLOOR, which may be entered from the Great Hall (p. 155) by a door in the back-wall, contains a selection of the Pre-historic Antiquities, including (in R. 6) the objects found in the 'royal tomb' of Seddin in the W. Prignitz (later bronze period, ca. 1000 B.C.).—Here also is the Görütz-Lübeck-Library of about 40,000 vols. (particularly original editions of German poetical works and of books relating to Berlin) and a collection of engravings.

Behind the Museum are the last two relics of the old fortified town of Berlin (comp. p. 47), viz. part of its wall, and the 'Wusterhausener Bär' (comp. the inscription), which was removed hither from its original site. Opposite the Museum to the E. are the Marinehaus of the 'Krieger-Verein' (with a café) and the Landes-Versicherungs-Anstalt (an insurance office), by Messel.—To the S. of the Museum, at the beginning of the Köpenicker-Str. (Pl. R. 28), a marble statue of Schulze-Delitzsch (d. 1883), founder of the co-operative system in Germany, by Arnoldt, was unveiled in 1899. The bronze groups on the pedestal represent the alliance of industrial and field labour, and a woman of the working-class teaching her son.

In the S. part of the Kloster-Strasse (Pl. R, 26), which still preserves its quaint appearance, on the right (No. 36), is the — Museum of German National Costumes and Domestic Industries (Pl. R, 26), an extensive and valuable collection founded in 1889 by private munificence and handed over to the government in 1904. Adm., see p. 38. Guide (1908) 30 pf.

The overcrowded rooms enclose a court. Everywhere are lifesize costume figures. — To the right in Room 1: Eastern Prussia (Lithuania), Silesia, Pomerania (objects from Mönchgut in the island of Rügen), Schleswig-Holstein, Vierlande near Hamburg. Kitchen at the end of an E. Frisian 'house-place' from the Leer district. — Corridor 2 leads to the Virchow Room (3): Objects from the 'Old Country' near Hamburg, presented on the occasion of Virchow's 70th birthday (1891). — Room 4: Hanover, Lippe, Oldenburg, Brunswick, Hesse, Saxony. — Room 5: Thüringen (Altenburg costumes), Prussian Saxony (Halleoren costume), Mark Brandenburg, Lusatia. — Room 6: Peasant's room in the Spreewald; Alsatian peasant's room. — Through Corridor 7 to Room 9: Swiss room with panelling (1644); fayence stove from Winterthur. Baden (memorial cross from the Black Forest), Württemberg. — Room 10: Bavaria. — Room 11: Chamber, kitchen, and larder from Upper Austria. — Room 12: Austria, Tyrol. — Room 13: Tyrol (Sterzing cabinet of 1478), Salzburg. — Room 14: Models of houses: Upper Bavarian house near Berchtesgaden, farm-houses from Hessen, the Kinzig valley (Black Forest), the Spreewald, the Husum district, Westphalia (Osnabrück), etc.: also Salzburg and Swiss masks; rider on a white horse. Rustic pottery. Women's caps and hats. Funeral objects (biers and painted skulls from Salzburg); votive offerings; festive utensils and cakes; peasant's ornaments. Neapolitan 'Presepe' (18th cent.).

BUILDING IN THE COURT (apply to the attendant). Vestibule. Gothic stove from Sterzing (Tyrol). Room from Hindelopen in Dutch Friesland; walls lined with Delft tiles; carved cabinets. At the back, so-called Besemer (fast) carriage. Room from Lüneburg, with handsome panelling of 1570.

On the E. side of the Kloster-Strasse, No. 76, is the Lagerhaus, now used for different purposes, built in 1706 on the site of the so-called 'Hohe Haus', the Berlin residence of the margraves and early electors before the palace was built (p. 47). Elector Frederick I. received the homage of his subjects here in 1415. Beyond rises the Royal Privy Record Office (Geheime Staats-Archiv). — Adjacent (No. 75) is the School of Art ('Kunstschule'; director, Prof. Mohn), erected in 1877-80 by Gropius & Schmieden. Behind this, in the rooms once used by Rauch as a studio, is the Rauch Museum (director, Prof. E. Hundrieser), a collection of casts and models of the works of the master, and the Rauch Archives. Adm., see p. 39; catalogue, 1 N.

Adjoining the School of Art is the Gymnasium zum Grauen Kloster, a grammar-school founded in 1574, containing the conventual and chapter-rooms (the latter dating from 1474) of the old Franciscan monastery, in good preservation. A tablet on the outer wall recalls the fact that Bismarck was a pupil here in 1830-32. — The early-Gothic Kloster-Kirche (Pl. R, 29), erected at the end of the 13th cent., is, in virtue of its fine choir, the most interesting mediæval building in Berlin (sacristan, Propst-Str. 14-16). It contains a painting in memory of Count Johann von Hohenlohe (d. 1412), a memorial stone of the poet Sam. Rodegast (d. 1708), once rector of the Gymnasium, a large beam with a crucifixion carved in wood (late-Gothic), etc. The choir-stalls date from about 1500. The church was restored in 1842-44, when the vestibule, staircase-towers, and roof spire were added.

Farther on in the Kloster-Sir., left side, is the Parochial Church (Pl. R, 29), erected in 1695-1714 from Nering's design; the tower, containing a peal of bells, was added in 1715, the interior restored in 1884 — To the right, on the area bounded by the Kloster-Str., Parochial-Str., Jüden-Str., and Stralauer-Str., is the Stadthaus, a large municipal building in the Roman baroque style, designed by L. Hoffmann and erected in 1902-10, with a massive tower 295 ft. in height in the Jüden-Str.

To the S. of the Rathaus is the MOLKEN-MARKT (Pl. R, 26, 25), the nucleus of the earliest settlement on this side of the Spree. To the S.W. of it the Mühlendamm leads to Alt-Kölln (comp. below). Before reaching it, we pass the palatial Ephraim House (to the right, at the corner of the Post-Str.), built in 1765 by Ephraim the Jew, known for his dealings with Frederick the Great. The building is now municipal property, and is occupied by public offices. — To the N., in the Post-Str., is the — Church of St. Nicholas (Pl. R, 26), the parish church of the Old Town and the oldest church in Berlin, restored in 1877-80 by Blankenstein, who added the N. tower. The lower parts of the towers, consisting of square blocks of granite, date from the beginning of the 13th cent., the choir from the 14th, and the nave from the 15th century. The interior (sacristan, Propst-Str. 14-16) deserves a visit for the sake of the picturesque general effect of its brick nave and aisles, and also for the numerous monuments, tablets, paintings, etc., in which every artistic style, from the end of the Gothic period down to the rococo era, is represented. The figure of Death, by Schlüter, at the Männlich family vault (1700, under the organ), is especially worthy of attention. The Kötteritz Chapel (under the organ-loft, to the right) is a well preserved example of late-Renaissance work. To the left in the choir is the tomb of Rufendorf, the celebrated jurist (d. 1694). Paul Gerhardt, the hymn-writer (p. 211), was pastor of this church from 1657 to 1666.

In ALT-KÖLLN (p. 45) the Brüder-Strasse and the Breite-Strasse run from the Schloss-Platz towards the S. The house No. 13 Brüder-

Str. (on the right), once the property of Friedrich Nicolai, the bookseller and friend of Lessing (d. 1811; comp. p. 153), was the temporary abode of Theodore Körner in 1811 and 1813 (tablets in memory of both). Breite-Str. 8-9, opposite the Royal Stables (p. 70), is the office of the Vossische Zeitung, the oldest newspaper in Berlin, founded under licence by Rüdiger in 1722, and carried on by Voss after 1751. The more eminent contributors to the paper, including Lessing, are represented in medallions on the façade. Almost the entire block between this point and the Brüder-Str. and Scharren-Str. belongs to the firm of Rudolf Hertzog (p. 33). The composer Lortzing (1801-51) was born at No. 12 (tablet with portrait, above, to the right). Opposite the end of the Breite-Str., in the KÖLLNISCHE FISCHMARKT (Pl. R, 25), stands a house (No. 4) with a bust of Field-Marshal Derfflinger (d. 1695), its original owner.—The Fischer-Strasse, running hence to the S.E., is considered to be the oldest existing part of Alt-Köln. At its beginning stands the municipal Testing Office for Hygienic and Industrial Purposes.

To the left, adjoining the Köllnische Fischmarkt, is the handsome Mühlendamm-Brücke (Pl. R, 25), which was remodelled in 1888-92, and fitted with new locks and flood-gates. To the left rises the castellated Dammühlen-Gebäude (containing the municipal Savings-Bank, etc.), a reconstruction of the former royal mills, from designs by Blankenstein (1892-93). Opposite, at the divergence of the Fischer-Brücke, are bronze statues (1894) of the Margraves Albert the Bear (d. 1170), by Boese, and Waldemar I. (d. 1319), by Unger.

To the right of the Köllnische Fischmarkt the GERTRAUDTEN-STRASSE runs towards the S.W., one of the chief thoroughfares of the inner town. In a square on the W. side rises the Church of St. Peter (Pl. R, 25), a Gothic brick building erected in 1847-53 by Strack, with a graceful tower 316 ft. in height.—The Gertraudten-Str. ends at the Gertraudten-Brücke, rebuilt in 1894-95, and embellished in 1896 with a bronze group by Siemering. This represents St. Gertrude (d. 659), abbess of the Franconian convent of Nivelles and patron saint of travellers, reviving an exhausted wanderer. Beyond the bridge is the Spittel-Markt (p. 160).

In the FRIEDRICH-S-WERDER (p. 47), opposite the W. front of the Royal Palace (p. 65), on the other side of the Spree, extends the SCHINKEL-PLATZ (Pl. R, 26, 25), which is adorned with bronze statues of Schinkel* (d. 1841; comp. p. 182), by Drake, erected in 1869; Thaer (d. 1828), the agriculturist, Rauch's last work, completed by Hagen in 1860; and Beuth (d. 1853; comp. p. 182), to whose efforts Prussia has been much indebted for her advance in industrial pursuits, designed by Kiss, with reliefs by Drake (1861). — At Nos. 1-2 is the Bank für Handel und Industrie (Darmstädter Bank), by Ende & Böckmann, with a façade of red sandstone. On the S. side is the old Bau-Akademie, or Academy of Architecture (Pl. R, 25), a lofty square edifice erected by Schinkel in 1832-35, 150 ft. in length, with handsome details in terracotta. The successful union of mediæval structural forms with Greek details stamps this as one of Schinkel's most interesting creations. It contains the Royal Meteorological Institute (director, Prof. Hellmann), founded by Alex. von Humboldt in 1848, where the observations made at the astronomical stations of N. Germany are collected (comp. p. 201), and the Royal Photometric Institute, with a collection of 13,000 views of interesting buildings and monuments (also on sale; shown on Tues. and Frid. 5-7 p.m.).

To the S. of the Bau-Akademie, Unterwasser-Str. 2-4, is the Royal Mint (Pl. R, 25; no admittance). The sandstone frieze, executed by Schadow in 1798 from designs by Gilly, represents the processes of 'mining and treating the metals', and was enlarged in 1871 by Siemering and Hagen.

The WERDER'SCHE MARKT, to the W. of the Bau-Akademie, contains numerous shops. On the N. side is the Friedrichs-Werder Church (Pl. R, 22), a brick structure erected by Schinkel in 1824-30. The exterior, in modified Gothic, is not happy, but the vaulted interior is more pleasing. (Sacristan, Oberwall-Str. 21.) — To the S.W. of the church, between the Französische-Str. and Jäger-Str., is the large Central Telegraph and Telephone Office (Pl. R, 22; pp. 25, 26).

In the JÄGER-STRASSE, to the S. of the Werder'sche Markt, rises (No. 34) the Deutsche Reichsbank, or Bank of the German Empire (Pl. R, 22, 25), a brick and sandstone edifice, built by Hitzig in 1869-76. The bank, which has been enlarged several times, now occupies almost an entire block; the office for securities in the Hausvogtei-Platz (S.W.; see below) was built in 1894 from designs by Emmerich and Hasak.

The HAUSVOGTEI-PLATZ (Pl. R, 25) takes its name from the 'Hausvogtei', an old house of detention, which in its time held many political prisoners and has since been replaced by the Reichsbank (see above). The remaining three sides of the 'Platz', which is a centre of the dress-making trade, are occupied by large business-houses. Underground Railway see p. 13. — From the Hausvogtei-Platz we may proceed either to the W. by the Mohren-Str. to the Gendarmen-Markt (p. 121) and Wilhelm-Platz (p. 123), or to the S. by the Jerusalem-Str. to the Dönhoff-Platz (p. 126), or to the S.E. by the Niederwall-Str. to the SPITTEL-MARKT (Pl. R, 25), a small but very busy square, surrounded by large business-houses. In the centre of the Spittel-Markt rises the Spindler-Brunnen, a fountain of red and grey granite. Near it to the N.E. is the Gertraudten-Brücke (p. 159).

TRAMWAYS (pp. 14-22) run from the Spittel-Markt to the Alexander-Platz (58, 59, 62, 64-72, 74), Anhalt Station (59, 62), Brandenburg Gate (6, 9), Gesundbrunnen (8, 38, 99), Görlitz Station (91, 92), Hackescher-Markt (8, 38, 47, 48, 49), Halle Gate (38, 64, 69), Kreuzberg (38), Lehrte Station and Moabit (6, 9), Rathaus (8, 38, 47, 48, 58, 59, 62, 64-72, 74, 79), Rixdorf (47, 48, 58), Silesian Station (6, 9, 76, 78, 79). — To the Gendarmen-Markt, Nollendorf-Platz (and Lützow-Platz), Potsdam Station, Schöneberg, and Zoological Garden a shorter route is by the Underground Railway (p. 14).

In the Wall-Str. (Nos. 5-8), to the E. of the Spittel-Markt, are the business premises of Jacques Ravené Sons, wholesale metal-merchants (founded 1775), erected in 1895-96. On the third floor (entrance, Wall-Str. 7) is —

Ravené's Picture Gallery (Pl. R, 25), a collection of about 200 works by modern German and French masters, including several choice examples of the older Berlin and Düsseldorf schools (adm., see p. 39).

ROOM I. To the left: Knaus, Mouse-trap, Woman and cats. — K. Becker, Family portraits, Morning after the ball. — Tidemand, Sunday in Norway; E. Hildebrandt, Santa Gloria near Rio de Janeiro; Saltzmann, Cape of Good Hope; Graeb, Fontana Medina in Naples; Knaus, P. L. Ravené; E. Hildebrandt, Winter pleasures; Graeb, Near Florence. — Schröder, Eulenspiegel as a baker's apprentice; P. Meyerheim, Trophies of the chase. Water-colours by Hilgers, Hosemann, Hoguet, etc.

ROOM II. Hasenclever, Jobs (a dunce) undergoing examination, Jobs as a schoolmaster; Fleury, Massacre of Jews in London, 1307.

ROOM III., with busts of the founder of the collection, Peter Louis Ravené (d. 1861), and of his son, Louis Ravené (d. 1879), by Hoffmeister. Jordan, Child's funeral in Heligoland; Stevens, Mourners; Gallait, Bohemian musicians; Henry Ritter, Drowned fisherboy. — Hasenclever, Portrait of himself; Couture, Page; Schrader, Death of Leonardo da Vinci; Graeb, Halberstadt Cathedral; Hasenclever, Hilgers the painter; E. Hildebrandt, Leisure hours; A. Achenbach, Ostend harbour. — Flamm, Italian scene; Menzel, Frederick the Great travelling; Scheuren, Landscape in storm; Lessing, Huntsmen. — Hasenclever, Jobs as a night-watchman; Tidemand, The old wolf-hunter; Biard, French custom-house; Schreyer, Hussars attacking; Tidemand, Funeral in Norway; Hasenclever, Scene in a cellar; Troyon, Cattle, Hounds; Schmitson, Hungarian broodmares; F. Krüger, Stable; K. Begas, Labour lost; C. Hübner, Gamelaw; Hoguet, Landscape.

ROOM IV. Gudin, Storm at sea; Leu, Norwegian landscape; Hilgers, Winter landscape; Willems, Picture-sale. — A. Achenbach, Norwegian coast; Hoguet, Silvan scene; Hasenclever, Preyer the painter. — E. Hildebrandt, Boa Viagem near Rio de Janeiro.

ROOM V. To the left: Warthmüller, Carnival scene; Jernberg, Return home. — Zügel, Cattle watering, Evening at the pasture; Sorolla y Bastida, Mother and child; Klaus Meyer, Card-players. — A. Kampf, The sisters; O. Achenbach, Italian landscape. — Bokelmann, Klaus Groth; G. Melchers, By the fire; Gude, Fishing off Rügen; H. Herrmann, Fish-market at Antwerp; Munthe, Autumn. — On a stand, Emp. William II., Men-of-war (sketch).

CABINET I (apply to the custodian). E. Hildebrandt, Street scenes from Rouen and Lyons; Andr. Achenbach, Landscape; Hilgers, Winter landscape; Preyer, Sparrows' breakfast; Lessing, Westphalian landscape; Knaus, Girl gathering flowers. — CABINET II. F. E. Meyerheim, Woman and girl of the Harz, The youngest born, Going to church, Morning hours; P. Meyerheim, E. Meyerheim; Dupré, Landscape; F. Krüger, Frederick William IV.; E. Hildebrandt, Fisher-girl, Children on the beach; Fleury, The report. — CABINET III. Graeb, Cloisters; Horace Vernet, Zouave acting as a nurse ('Le soldat nourrice'); E. Hildebrandt, Irish hut; Brendel, Sheep; Hosemann, Genre-scene; Meissonier, Genre-scene.

To the left of Ravené's, at Wall-Strasse 9-13, are a series of courts and buildings occupied by Spindler's dye-works (Pl. R, 25), known as the Spindlershof. In front is a large warehouse in the Romanesque style built by Kayser & Von Groszheim. — The Wall-Str. ends to the E. at the Märkische Museum (p. 153).

9. Northern and Eastern Quarters.

Natural History Museums.

The Wilhelm-Str. (p. 122) is continued to the N. of the Linden by the NEUE WILHELM-STRASSE (Pl. R, 20). In the latter, at the corner of the Dorotheen-Str. (p. 144), is the Military Academy, founded by Scharnhorst in 1810. The present building, by Bernhardt & Schwechten, dates from 1882. Opposite, to the N., are the Physiological, Second Chemical, and Physical Institutes of the University.

Beyond the Marschalls-Brücke the LUISEN-STRASSE (Pl. R, 20, 21) leads to the Neue Tor. Close to the bridge, on the left, Schiffbauer-Damm 25, is the Neue Operetten-Theater, by W. Hentschel (1908). At No. 22, to the right, is the office of the Berlin Electricity Works, which generate the power for the electric tramways, the lighting of streets, etc. At Luisen-Str. 32 is a branch of the Imperial Home Office (comp. p. 122). A tablet on No. 24a, opposite, marks the house where the historian Ranke died in 1886 (comp. p. 168). In the Karls-Platz, which is crossed by the Invaliden-Strasse, a monument, by Klimsch, was erected in 1910 to Rudolf Virchow (d. 1902; comp. below; tomb, p. 176).

Farther on, at the corner of the Schumann-Str. and the Luisen-Str., is a monument to Albrecht von Graefe, the oculist (d. 1870), with fine reliefs in terracotta, by Siemering. Near this is the Charité (Pl. R, 21), a large hospital founded in 1710, now being remodelled. It serves also as a teaching institution in connection with the University (11 clinics), and is united with the Pathological Institute, which attained its present importance under the management of Prof. Virchow (see above). Visitors are admitted to the hospital on Wed., Sat., & Sun., 2-3 p.m.

At No. 56 Luisen-Str. is the Veterinary College (Pl. R, 21; 375 students), opened in 1790. In front of the main building is a bronze statue of A. C. Gerlach (d. 1877), a former rector, by Panzner. In the garden is the Anatomie, or University Dissecting Room, built by Cremer in 1863-65 (main entrance, Karl-Str. 23a). — In the Luisen-Platz, to the left (Nos. 2-4), is the Kaiserin-Friedrich-Haus for medical instruction, containing medical collections (adm. to the collection of instruments Mon.-Frid. 10-3, free), etc. — To the E. of the Neue Tor, Hessische-Str. 1-3, is the First Chemical Institute and (No. 4) the Hygienic Institute of the University.

Outside the Neue Tor (Pl. R, 21) the Luisen-Str. joins the long INVALIDEN-STRASSE, which begins on the E. beyond the Stettin Station (p. 167) and ends on the W. in Alt-Moabit. In the latter street, nearly opposite the Neue Tor, are three important scientific institutions, in buildings by Tiede: the Agricultural Academy, to the E.; the Museum of Natural History, in the middle; and the School of Mines, to the W. (comp. annexed Plan).

TRAMWAYS (see p. 14-22) from the Neue Tor: Nos. 2, 10, 11, 16, 19, 50, 51, 57, Q, V, and (viâ the Chaussée-Str., to the E.) Nos. 25, 26, 28, 29, 32, 34, 43, and 68.

The Agricultural Academy (800 students), founded in 1810 by A. Thaer (p. 159) at Möglin near Wriezen, was removed to its present quarters in 1880. It contains the AGRICULTURAL MUSEUM (adm. see p. 36; official guide, 1908, 75 pf.). In the vestibule are models by Rau, illustrating the history of manual tools and of the plough. In the covered court, straight on, is the Machinery Department (objects changed from time to time), including a collection of models. On the groundfloor also (in front and to the left) is the Zoological Department, with a large collection of the skulls and skeletons of domestic animals. — On the first floor, on the N. side, is the Zootechnical Department, illustrating the development of stock-farming and fisheries, with models of farm-cattle, etc. The W. wing contains the Mineralogical and Geological Department: specimens of rocks and soil; mineral fertilizers; geological map of Berlin (to the depth of 1250 ft.) under glass; representations of the salt-industry at Stassfurt and of the saltpetre industry in Chili. The Vegetable Department, in the S. wing, illustrates the history of gardening, agriculture, and forestry; also the relative values of different foods, etc. On the side next the glass-covered court is a colonial section. In the E. wing is a Technological Department; also collections illustrating the biology and pathology of plants.

The Museum of Natural History (Pl. R, 21), built in 1883-89, bears on its façade portraits in sandstone of L. von Buch (d. 1853), the geologist, and Joh. Müller (d. 1858), the physiologist. Adm., see p. 38. The building accommodates three separate institutions, each with its museum, viz. the Geological & Palaeontological Institute, the Mineralogical & Petrographical Institute, and the Zoological Institute. — The 'Main Collections', on the first and second floors, are reserved for students. The 'Exhibition Collection', to which alone the public are admitted, occupies most of the groundfloor. All the objects are labelled. Numerous direction-boards assist the visitor to find his way.

To the right of the entrance are two rooms containing the GEOLOGICAL SECTION.

The PALÆONTOLOGICAL MUSEUM lies also to the right, adjoining the court. It contains fossils of the chief types of antediluvian animals, the invertebrates (large ammonites) being to the right, the vertebrates to the left. By the entrance-wall, Ichthyosauri (one with traces of the skin, another with embryo) and foot-prints of the Chirotherium; by the partition in front, to the left, marine crocodiles (Steneosaurus); by the partition wall to the right, Pleisiosaurians, one at the back being admirably preserved. By the fifth window to the left is an Archæopteryx (prehistoric bird) in Solnhofen slate, the gem of the collection. (Another specimen in the Natural History Museum in London is not so well preserved.) In the middle are skeletons of the extinct giant bird (Dinornis) of New Guinea. The last section of the room contains a sea-cow (Halitherium Schinzi), remains of extinct quadrupeds, and the skin of a giant sloth (Grypotherium Darwini) from Patagonia.

The MINERALOGICAL MUSEUM lies to the left of the entrance. The room next the street contains the petrographical collection. In the principal room opposite is a series of table-cases containing an admirable crystallographic collection, systematically arranged. The stages in the upright cases illustrate the juxtaposition of minerals and their geological sequence. In the first cabinet on the right are large specimens of amber, malachite, and topaz; in that to the left are rock-crystals and amethysts. The table-case by the last window to the left contains precious stones. The collection of meteorites in the centre of the main corridor is one of the largest in existence. The Gothic cabinets contain the finest specimens from the collection of Karl Rumpf.

The ZOOLOGICAL MUSEUM is an admirably selected collection, illustrating all the important groups of the animal world, with the fauna of Germany placed in the foreground (official guide 10 pf.). The preparations of various parts of the body should be noticed. In the glass-covered court the larger animals are exhibited, comprising the cast of the skeleton of a Diplodocus Carnegiei, 80 ft. in length, from N. America. Beyond, in the central rooms of the transverse building, are the Mammals. — A hall adjoining these on the W. is devoted to the most important Mammals and Birds of Germany, numbering respectively 69 and 440 species. — Three wings project to the N. from the above-mentioned transverse building. In the westmost is the extensive Systematic Collec- tion of Birds.—The second contains the Invertebrate Animals (sponges, corals, shells, snails, etc.). Near the entrance, on the right, is a gigantic cuttle-fish, at the end a coral-reef and an oyster-bed.—The E. portion of the transverse building is devoted to Reptiles, Amphibia, and Fishes.—The E. projecting wing, immediately adjoining, contains Insects and Crabs, with illustrations in some cases of their habits and mode of life. To the left are butterflies and bees (notably colonizing bees); to the right, beetles and spiders.

The Geological Institution and School of Mines (Pl. R, 21; plan, p. 164) was built in 1874-78. The School of Mines, which was founded in 1860 and has now about 200 students, occupies the groundfloor. In the vestibule are two paintings by L. Spangenberg (the Kurische Nehrung, and the Papenkaul near Gerolstein). The glass-covered court and the gallery of the first floor are occupied by the Museum of Mining and Smelting (adm., see p. 38). The processes of extracting and working the ore are shown in the court. We may also notice here the gigantic fossil tree-trunks and the fine examples of artistic casting from the former royal foundry at Berlin. In the gallery of the first floor is a systematic collection of minerals obtained by mining; in the N.E. corner is a room containing the mineralogical collection. — The other rooms of the first floor are occupied by the Prussian Museum of National Geology. — On the second floor (no adm.) are the offices of the Geological Institute and a valuable collection of amber from Königsberg.

In the Invaliden-Str., to the W. of the School of Mines, rises the Gnaden-Kirche (Pl. R, 21; open daily, 12-1 and 5-7), a Romanesque sandstone building by M. Spitta (d. 1902), erected in 1891-95 to the memory of the Empress Augusta. The elaborate choir has stained-glass windows by Linnemann and mosaics designed by Geselschap. In front of the church stands an obelisk commemorating the loss of the corvette Amazone in 1861. — Farther on, to the W. of the Scharnhorst-Str., is the Kaiser Wilhelm Academy for military surgeons, a baroque building by Cremer and Wolfenstein (1910). The institute, in which 350 pupils are educated, was founded in 1795.

The Invalidenhaus (Pl. R, 21), on the W. side of the Scharnhorst-Str., erected by Frederick the Great in 1748 'læso et invicto militi', is devoid of architectural interest. Opposite, in the Invaliden-Park, is the National Warriors' Monument, a Corinthian column of iron, 145 ft. high, erected in 1854 to the memory of soldiers who fell in 1848-49 (view from the top; apply to porter of Invalidenhaus; adm. 10 pf.).

The INVALIDEN-KIRCHHOF, adjoining the Invalidenhaus on the N., is the burial-place of many distinguished officers, including Scharnhorst

(d. 1813; monument by Schinkel, with reliefs by Tieck); Boyen (d. 1848), founder of the 'Landwehr'; Friesen (d. 1814); Winterfeldt (d. 1757; transferred hither in 1857); and Tauenzien von Wittenberg (d. 1824).

To the W. of the Invaliden-Park the Invaliden-Strasse crosses the Berlin and Spandau Canal, which is connected with the Spree on the S. by means of the Humboldt-Hafen (Pl. R, 21) and separates the Oranienburg suburb from the quarter of MOABIT (comp. p. 54). — In front of the old Hamburg Station is a bronze bust of Fr. Neuhaus (d. 1876), founder of the railway from Berlin to Hamburg. Since 1906 the building has contained the Royal Museum of Traffic and Engineering (Pl. R, 21; adm., see p. 38), demonstrating in a comprehensive manner the development of railway-matters by means of models and originals; smaller sections to the right are dedicated to structures above ground and under water.

Farther on, to the left, are the Lehrte Station of the Stadtbahn (p. 12), connected with the main Lehrte Station (p. 140), and the Exhibition Park (p. 141). To the right, opposite the latter, are the Zellengefängnis or Prison, a model establishment for the reception of 565 inmates, built in 1842-49; the Oberfeuerwerker-Schule, founded in 1840 for training non-commissioned officers of artillery; and the Barracks of the 2nd Ulan Guards Regiment.

Beyond the Exhibition Park, the Invaliden-Strasse joins the Alt-Moabit street (p. 140). From this point we may proceed by the Paul-Str. and across the Luther-Brücke near the château of Bellevue (p. 178) to the Tiergarten. — In Alt-Moabit, to the right, is the Criminal Court (Pl. R, 15, 18), built in 1877-81, with cells for prisoners on trial. On the façade are statues of Prussian kings. The court sits almost daily from 9.30 a.m.; visitors are admitted, but for trials of unusual public interest tickets of admission should be secured beforehand (at rooms 253, 439, and 565 respectively). In front of the building is a bronze group of a lion and a serpent, by A. Wolff.

Farther on in Alt-Moabit is the Church of St. John (Pl. R, 15), by Schinkel, with a tower added by Stüler in 1835 connecting it in one block with the parsonage and school-house. The Kirch-Str., diverging here to the left, leads to the Moabiter-Brücke, rebuilt in 1893-94 and embellished with bronze bears. Beyond the bridge is the Bellevue Station of the Stadtbahn (p. 12). — Nos. 99-103 Alt-Moabit accommodate Bolle's well-known dairy. — Alt-Moabit now skirts the S. side of a park known as the Kleine Tiergarten. Farther on, at the end of the Strom-Str., to the left, is the Lessing-Brücke, built in 1901-3 and adorned with four reliefs, by O. Lessing, of scenes from G. E. Lessing's dramas.

In the W. part of Moabit, next to the Allgemeine Elektrizitäts-Gesellschaft (p. 168), are several large manufactories: the Berlin-Anhalter Maschinenbau-Aktien-Gesellschaft (Pl. R, 9), Kaiserin-Augusta-Allée 27; the engine-tools factory of Ludwig Löwe & Co., Ltd., Hutten-Str. 17-20; the Deutsche Waffen- und Munitions-Aktien-Gesellschaft, Kaiserin-Augusta-Allée 30 (4000 hands), etc.

At Plötzensee, to the N. of Moabit, and $\frac{1}{2}$ M. from the Beussel-Str. station of the Ringbahn (p. 13; tramway No. 12), is the Penitentiary (Pl. B, 9), built in 1868-78, where executions take place.

At the N. end of the Friedrich-Strasse, short of which the Oranienburger-Strasse (p. 145) diverges to the S.E., is the former Oranienburg Gate (Pl. R, 24), beyond which begins the CHAUSSÉE-STRASSE, until 1880 the chief seat of the Berlin engine-works.

The OLD DOROTHEENSTADT CEMETERY (Pl. R, 21, 24), at the beginning of the Chaussee-Str. to the left, contains many handsome monuments and interesting graves. Near the E. wall repose the philosophers Fichte (d. 1814) and Hegel (d. 1831); to the left of the main walk are the graves of Schinkel (d. 1841; monument designed by himself), Rauch (d. 1857), Stüler (d. 1865; monument by Strack), A. Borsig (d. 1854; monument by Schadow), and G. Schadow (d. 1850); to the right of the main walk is the grave of Beuth (d. 1853).

No. 6 Chaussee-Str. is Borsig's Office, built by Reimer & Körte; the Borsig Factory, formerly Chaussee-Str. 1, afterwards in Moabit, was transferred in 1898 to Tegel (p. 203). Farther on the Chaussee-Str. intersects the Invaliden-Str., which leads to the left to the Museums mentioned on pp. 163-65, and to the right to the Stettin Railway Station (Pl. R, 24; see p. 1), with a station for suburban traffic (p. 13) on the W. side.

Tramways (pp. 14-22): Nos. 2, 10, 11, 50, 51, 57, 68, Q, V, g; also a (Garten-Str.) and Nos. 16, 19, 25, 26, 28, 29, 32, 34, and 43 (Chaussee-Str.). Omnibus 5 to Potsdam Station, 5 and 10 to Friedrich-Strasse Station, 10 the Anhalt-Station, 7 to Alexander-Platz, and 20 to Görlitz Stations.

The Chaussee-Strasse leads to the suburb of WEDDING (Pl. B, 17; station of the Nord-Ring, see p. 13). To the W., near the Putlitz-Str. Station of the Nord-Ring (p. 13), on the Spandau ship-canal, is the Institute for Infectious Diseases founded by Prof. Koch. — Here also is the municipal Rudolf Virchow Hospital (Pl. B, 14, 15; chief entrance in the Augustenburger-Platz), erected in 1899-1906 by L. Hoffmann, with 57 buildings, the tasteful simple architecture of which harmonizes admirably with the surrounding gardens. It covers an area of 63 acres; the expense including the equipment amounted to 95,000 l. (2000 beds, 54 physicians; hours of adm. Mon., Wed., & Sat. 11 a.m.). Tramways Nos. 29, 42, 68 (See-Strasse), and h (Augustenburger-Platz). — To the N.W. of the hospital is the Experimental and Teaching Brewery, with garden-restaurant.

Farther N., to the E. of the Müller-Strasse which leads to Tegel (p. 203), lies the Schiller-Park (Pl. B, 13) on the sand-hills of the Rehberge

It was laid out in 1909-10 from plans by F. R. Bauer. — About $1\frac{1}{4}$ M. to the W. of the end of the Müller-Str., by the former rifle-range on the Jungfern-Heide, are the extensive premises of the Aeronautic Department (Pl. B, 4, 7).

For the NORTHERN QUARTERS of Old Berlin the chief centre of traffic is the small Hackesche Markt (Pl. R, 26), situated near the Börse Station (p. 12) and the Monbijou-Platz (p. 146).

Tramways (pp. 14-21): Nos. 5, 8, 16, 19, 27-30, 33, 38, 39, 40, 42, 47, 48, 52-56, 99, and III.

From the Hackesche Markt the Rosenthaler-Str. runs to the former Rosenthal Gate, passing (Nos. 23-31) a large store of A. Wertheim (p. 125), built by Messel, and a Wall Fountain, with the figure of a girl drawing water, by K. von Uechtritz.

A little to the W. of the Rosenthaler-Str. rises the Sophien-Kirche (Pl. R, 27), founded by Queen Sophia Louise in 1792 and rebuilt in 1892. The churchyard contains the tombs of Zelter, the composer (d. 1832), and of Leopold von Ranke, the historian (d. 1886). — To the E. in the Kleine Rosenthaler-Str. (Pl. R, 27) is the Old Garrison Churchyard, with the graves of F. de la Motte-Fouqué, the poet (d. 1843), and of General von Lützow (d. 1834).

At Brunnen-Str. 107a is the Allgemeine Elektrizitäts-Gesellschaft (Pl. B, 23), founded in 1883 by E. Rathenau, one of the largest companies of the kind (share-capital 5,000,000 l.; 33,000 workmen and officials); comp. pp. 167, 204. — Beyond it is the — Humboldthain (Pl. B, 20, 23), a park 90 acres in area, laid out in 1869-76. Near the Brunnen-Str. is a group of large erratic boulders, dedicated to Alexander von Humboldt, and a marble bull by M. Geyger. The botanical section (adm. Wed. & Sat. 1-6; strangers at other times also) is on the S. side, near the manager's office; it contains a department in which plants are grown to be used in object-lessons at schools. Here also is a Geological Wall (explanation 10 pf.). — Beyond the park is the Gesundbrunnen Station of the Nord-Ring, the Stettin line, the Nordbahn, and the Kremmen and Wittstock line (Pl. B, 23; comp. pp. 13, 204).

Beyond the station is the suburb of Gesundbrunnen (Pl. B, 19, 22), which has its name from a mineral spring discovered in 1701.

Outside the former Schönhäusen Gate, in the Schönhäuser Allée (Pl. R, 27, 30), is a marble monument to A. Senefelder, the inventor of lithography (1771-1834), by Pohle (1892).

About 3 M. beyond the Schönhäusen Gate (tramways Nos. 5, 47, 49, 51, 57) lies the village of Pankow (Pl. B, 25, 26; Ratskeller and Linder's Restaurant), a favourite resort in summer (40,300 inhab.), with a station on the Stettin railway and on the Nordbahn (pp. 203, 206). — About $\frac{3}{4}$ M. further on is the village (18,900 inhab.) of Nieder-Schönhäusen (Rest. Liedemitz). The royal château, built by Eosander von Goethe and long occupied by the wife of Frederick the Great, has a fine park. — To the W. of Pankow lies ($1\frac{1}{4}$ M.) Schönholz, a station on the Nordbahn (p. 203), with a large park belonging to the Berlin riflemen's society and a favourite restaurant.

The E. and N.E. quarters of the old town of Berlin are of little interest to strangers. The more important points are here mentioned in their order from S. to N.; most of them are best reached by tramway (p. 14).

Near the Spree lies the Silesian Railway Station (Pl. R, 31), with which the Wriezen Station is connected on the E. side.

Tramways (pp. 14-22): Nos. 9, 31, d; also 1, 2, 3, 4, 6, 22 (Andreas-Str.), 16, 78, and 79 (Grüner-Weg).

In the Andreas-Platz (Pl. R, 31) are two bronze groups: Artizan and his son, by Haverkamp, and Woman of the working-class with her child, by Gormanski. — Near the beginning of the Grosse Frankfurter-Str. stands the Church of St. Mark (Pl. R, 32), built in the round-arched style by Stüler, in 1848-55.

The Grosse Frankfurter-Str. goes on to the Städtische Zentral-Vieh- und Schlachthof (Municipal Cattle Market and Slaughter Houses; Pl. R, 38; tramways Nos. 58, 65, 66, 67, 75, 81, and c, g, and h). The market is busiest on Wed. & Sat. till 1 p.m. (adm. free), the slaughter-houses on Mon. & Thurs. (adm. by tickets obtained at the office in the Thaer-Str.). Good restaurant. The market has a special station on the 'Nord Ring' (p. 13). — Near the market lies the town of Lichtenberg, with 78,000 inhab. (Frankfurter Allée Station on the 'Nord Ring'; tramways Nos. 66, 68, 69, 70, 71, and c). A tramway (No. 71) runs N.E. from the Frankfurter Allée Station to the municipal lunatic asylum of Herzberge. — To the S., Lichtenberg is adjoined by Boxhagen-Rummelsburg, with 50,000 inhab., the largest village near Berlin; 'Stadtbahn' station Stralau-Rummelsburg and suburban station Rummelsburg; tramways 76, 79.

Outside the old Königs-Tor extends the Friedrichshain (Pl. R, 33, 36), a park laid out in 1845 and enlarged in 1874-76 (tramways Nos. 1, 2, 4, 17, 59, 62, 64, 65, 74, 80, 81, and b, g, and h). The entrance near the Königs-Tor is to be embellished with a fountain with legendary figures by Taschner, Rauch, and Wrba. — The large municipal Hospital (Krankenhaus) am Friedrichshain, No. 159 Landsberger Allée (Pl. R, 33), was erected in 1868-74 by Gropius & Schmieden. Visitors are admitted on Sun., Wed., & Sat. 2-3. By the W. wall of the hospital, near the Landsberger Allée, is the cemetery of the insurgents who fell in March 1848 (Pl. R, 32).

About 3 M. to the N. of the Königs-Tor is the village of Weissensee (Pl. B, 34; Schloss-Restaurant), with 43,000 inhab. (Station of the Nord-Ring, see p. 13; tramways Nos. 59-62). To the N.W. is the (1½ M.) race-course for trotting-matches (p. 30).

10. Southern and South-Western Quarters.

Kreuzberg. Tiergarten Quarter. Schöneberg.

From the southern part of the Friedrich-Strasse (p. 120) the Koch-Strasse runs to the E. to the Jerusalem Church (Pl. G, 22, 25). Short of this, the Koch-Str. is crossed by the Charlotten-Strasse. Near the S. end of the latter, in the Encke-Platz, is the Royal Observatory (Pl. G, 22), erected by Schinkel in 1832-35. In 1878 the mean altitude of the kingdom of Prussia (121 ft. above sea-level) was marked on the N. façade of the building. The instruments are shown by the castellan on Wed. & Sat. 9-11 (in winter 10-11). Director, Prof. v. Struve. — At the corner of the Jerusalemer-Str. and Schützen-Str. is the house of Rudolf Mosse (Berliner Tageblatt).

Passing the Jerusalem Church the LINDEN-STRASSE (Pl. G, 22) leads S. to the Belle-Alliance-Platz (p. 172). — To the right of the church, at Nos. 20-21, are the offices of the Victoria Insurance Co. No. 14 is the Kammer-Gericht (Royal Court of Appeal; Pl. G, 22), founded by the Elector Joachim I., built by Gerlach in 1734-35, and remodelled in 1880 (soon to be removed to the old Botanical Garden, p. 175).

The ORANIEN-STRASSE leads to the E. from the above-mentioned Jerusalemer-Kirche into the heart of the industrial S.E. quarter. At Nos. 90-91 (corner of the Alte Jacob-Str.) is the Reichs-Druckerei, or Government Printing Office (Pl. G, 25; no adm.), an institution controlled by the Imperial Post Office. The imposing building contains a model art-printing department in which the bank-notes and postage-stamps of the empire are produced. — In the Waldeck-Park, at the corner of the Kürassier-Str., a marble Statue of Waldeck, the liberal politician (d. 1870), by Walger, was unveiled in 1889.

Following the Oranien-Str. we reach in turn the Moritz-Platz (Pl. G, 25) and the ORANIEN-PLATZ (Pl. G, 28), the latter intersected by the Luisenstadt Canal.

Tramways (pp. 14-21), from the Moritz-Platz: Nos. 1, 2, 4, 12, 18, 20, 28, 29, 36, 36, 37, 41, 47, 48, 58, 65, 93, 95, 98; from the Oranien-Platz: Nos. 5, 11, 12, 18, 20, 27, 28, 29, 30, 32, 47, 48, 58, 65, 93, 95, 98.

A little to the N. of the Oranien-Platz, by the Engelbecken, rises the handsome Church of St. Michael (Pl. G, 28), designed by Soller, and erected in 1853-56 as the (first) Roman Catholic garrison-church. A walk of 5 min. to the S.E. takes us to the Church of St. Thomas (Pl. G, 31), built by Adler in 1864-69. Both churches are domed and exhibit a combination of Romanesque with Renaissance details. — Near the latter church, in the Mariannen-Platz, is the large Bethanien Hospital (Pl. G, 28; adm. Tues., Frid., & Sun. 2-3), managed by Protestant sisters of charity and opened in 1847. In front is a monument to the surgeon Wilms (d. 1880), by Sieme-ring, and to the S., in the Waldemar-Str., rises a marble monument erected in 1902 from designs by L. Hoffmann to the Firemen of Berlin. The latter consists of two pylons flanking reliefs, by A. Vogel, of Athena directing the struggle with the monster Hydra and of suppliants seeking help.

At the end of the Oranien-Str. is a station of the Elevated Railway (p. 13). The Wiener-Str. and the Skalitzer-Str. stretch hence to the S.E. and E. Close by, in the Lausitzer-Platz, rises the Emmaus Church (Pl. G, 31), built by Orth in 1893, a handsome brick edifice in the Romanesque style. A glass mosaic over the porch, designed by Mohn, represents Christ with the two disciples. — To the S., in the Wiener-Str., is the Görlitz Railway Station (Pl. G, 32).

Tramways (pp. 15-22): Nos. 11, 12, 18, 22, 32, 46, 91, 92, 93, 98, and 6; also 82, 89, 90 (Skalitzer-Str.), and 13, 94 (Reichenberger-Str.). — Omnibus 20 to the Stettin Station.

The Elevated Railway (p. 13) passes eastwards down the centre of the Skalitzer-Str., which leads past the Emmaus Church to the site of the old SILESIAN GATE, or Schlesische Thor, now occupied by the handsomest of all the Electric Railway Stations, a structure by Grisebach. In the adjacent Gröben-Ufer, on the river-bank, is a landing-stage for steamboats (p. 24), bearing figures of an Oarsman and a Boat-Builder, by Janensch and Bernewitz (1896). — Farther to the E. the river is spanned by the Oberbaum-Brücke (Pl. G, 34), a massive brick structure 500 ft. long and 90 ft. broad, with two towers in the centre, built by Stahn in 1895-96. The bridge carries the Elevated Railway across to its terminus Warschauer-Brücke (p. 13), close to the Warschauer-Strasse Station of the 'Stadt-bahn' (Pl. G, 34; p. 12).

A handsome avenue, running to the S.E. from the Silesian Gate, and forming a continuation of the Köpenicker-Str., leads via the Schlesische Busch to (25 min.) the Treptow Station (Pl. G, 38) of the 'Süd-Ring' (p. 13). Beyond the station it passes through the Treptower Park (230 acres), which stretches to the left as far as the Upper Spree. The park was laid out in 1876-87 by G. Meyer, of whom a statue, by Manthe, stands to the right of the play-ground. — About 1 M. from the station lies the village of Treptow (Pl. G, 42; 21,000 inhab.), containing several garden restaurants on the river (Regelin; Abtei, on an island). Steamers see pp. 24 and 204; tramways (pp. 21-22): Nos. 83, 89, 102, 104. Near the village is the Treptow Observatory (astronomical museum), containing Archenhold's 'Giant Telescope', which is interesting for the simplicity of its installation (adm., see p. 37). Beyond Treptow lies the Plänter-Wald (220 acres), another public park intersected with paths, in which the timber for the city parks and grounds is grown. In the park itself, and on the bank of the Spree (1 M. from the village) are the Eier-Häuschen (steamboat station), two restaurants much visited from Berlin. — On the right bank of the Spree, opposite the point at which Treptow commences, lies the village of Stralau (Pl. G, 41; 4500 inhab.), well known by the 'Stralau draught of fish' once celebrated here, and containing a picturesquely situated church. The two villages are connected by a tramway tunnel (line d, p. 22) nearly 500 yards in length.

In its less fashionable portion to the S. of the Leipziger-Str. (p. 124) the Friedrich-Strasse crosses the Koch-Strasse at the Café Friedrichshof (p. 11). Farther on, at Friedrich-Str. 18, is the municipal Market II., with a flower-market.

In the centre of the circular BELLE-ALLIANCE-PLATZ (Pl. G, 23), laid out by Frederick William I. at the end of the Friedrich-Str., rises the Friedens-Säule, or Column of Peace, 60 ft. in height, erected by King Frederick William IV. in 1840 to commemorate the 25th anniversary of the peace of 1815. The granite column, rising from a lofty pedestal, has a marble capital, crowned with a bronze Victory by Rauch. The four surrounding groups in marble represent the principal powers that took part in the victory of Waterloo (Great Britain, Prussia, the Netherlands, and Hanover). On the S. side of the Platz are marble figures of Peace, by A. Wolff, and Historiography, by Hartzer.

On the S. the square is bounded by the Halle Gate (Pl. G, 23), a monumental edifice erected in 1879 by Strack on the site of the old building. — Outside the gate, to the right in the Königsgrätzer-Str., is a station of the Elevated Railway (p. 13). To the left in the Gitschiner-Str. is the Imperial Patent Office, erected in 1905 from designs by Solf and Wichards, one of the largest buildings in Berlin (600 rooms).

Tramways (pp. 14-22) run from the Halle Gate and the Blücher-Platz (S. side; I, II, and IV from here) to the Lehrte Station, Moabit (4, 7, 14, 15, 21), Gesundbrunnen (34, 38, 39, 42, 43, 99), the Opern-Platz (34, 39, 42, 43, 53, 55), the Alexander-Platz (64, 70, 73, 75), the Silesian Station (1, 4), Rixdorf (7, 15, 21, 53, 55, I, II, V), Kreuzberg (34, 38, 43, 96, 97, I, II, V), Schöneberg (43, 82, 89, 90, I, II, V), the Anhalt Station and the Brandenburg Gate (1, 7, 14, 15, 21), the Dönhoff-Platz (38, 39, 42, 64, 99), the Friedrich-Str. Station (34, 42), the Gendarmen-Markt (34, 43, 53, 55, 70, 73, 75, 99), the Hackescher Markt (38, 39, 53, 55), the Museum Island (39, 42, 53, 55), the Rathaus (38, 42, 64, 70, 73, 75), the Schloss-Platz (70, 73, 75), the Spittelmarkt (38, 64, 99), and the Stettin Station (4, 34, 43). For the Görlitz Station, the Nollendorf-Platz, the Potsdam Station, and the Zoological Garden Station the Elevated Railway (see p. 13) is quicker.

Opposite the Halle Gate the Landwehr Canal is crossed by the Belle-Alliance Bridge, 110 ft. wide, on the buttresses of which stand marble groups of Navigation, Fishing, Industry, and Trade. The canal is 6½ M. in length, and extends from the Silesian Gate to Charlottenburg, connecting the Upper and Lower Spree. — At the S. end of the bridge is the Blücher-Platz (Pl. G, 23), near which are several cemeteries.

Those of the Jerusalem-Kirche, the Neue Kirche, and the Dreifaltigkeits-Kirche are connected, and have entrances from the Blücher-Platz (to the left), and the Belle-Alliance-Str., the portion of the grounds lying along the Baruther Str. (to the S.) being of particular interest. By the S. wall of the E. section is the grave of Iffland (d. 1814; comp. p. 48); close by, to the right of the main path in the central section, lies F. Mendelssohn-Bartholdy (d. 1847). Near the side-path to the left a handsome monument by Uphues marks the last resting-place of H. von Stephan (d. 1897; comp. p. 125). A gateway leads to the S.W. section, which contains the grave of A. von Chamisso (d. 1838), near the path along the S. wall, and that of E. Th. A. Hoffmann (d. 1822; comp. p. 122), near the junction of the central path and that leading off to the W.

The BLÜCHER-STRASSE (Pl. G, 23, 26), which diverges from the Blücher-Platz to the S.E., passes (on the left) the Church of the Holy Rood (Zum Heiligen Kreuz; Pl. G, 23), a Gothic brick structure erected in 1885-88 by Otzen. — The Blücher-Str. ends at the Kaiser-Friedrich-Platz, in which rises the Second Protestant Garrison Church.

Several cemeteries lie to the S. W. of the Kaiser-Friedrich-Platz, in the Bergmann-Str. In the Neue Dreifaltigkeits-Kirchhof, which lies furthest to the W., are the graves of the poet Ludwig Tieck (d. 1853), the philologist K. Lachmann (d. 1851), the theologian Schleiermacher (d. 1834; comp. p. 123), the historian Theod. Mommsen (d. 1903), and, by the E. wall, Ad. von Menzel (d. 1905; bronze bust by R. Begas, p. 91).

To the E. runs the HASENHEIDE street (Pl. G, 27, 30), formerly, when the pine-grove situated to the right was still accessible, a favourite Sunday resort of the lower classes. Beer-gardens, see p. 10. Near the end to the S., on a site within the district of Rixdorf, is a gymnasium ground, with a bronze statue of F. L. Jahn, the German 'Turnvater' (father of gymnastics), by Encke (1872). The first gymnasium ground, founded by Jahn in 1811, was situated to the S. on the site of the present Karlegarten.

Rixdorf (Deutsches Wirtshaus, Berg-Str. 137; Bergschloss, see p. 11), a suburb which attained to the dignity of a town in 1899, now numbers 220,000 inhabitants. It is served by the stations of Rixdorf and Hermann-Strasse, on the Süd-Ring; and by tramways (pp. 14-22) Nos. 5, 7, 15, 21, 22, 27, 28, 29, 30, 46, 47, 48, 53, 55, 58, 65, 88, 94, I, II, and V. — An equestrian statue of Emp. William I., by M. Wolff, was erected in 1902 in the Hohenzollern-Platz. Remains of antediluvian animals have been discovered on the heights (Rollberge) of Rixdorf. — To the S. Rixdorf is adjoined by the village of Britz (10,500 inhab.), with extensive rose-culture; tramways Nos. 29, 55, and I.

The BELLE-ALLIANCE-STRASSE (Pl. G, 24, 23) leads from the Blücher-Platz to the S., and then, passing a little to the left of the Kreuzberg, and ascends to the Tempelhofer Feld (see p. 174).

The Kreuzberg may be reached direct by tramways Nos. 34-38; also Nos. 2, 41, 43, 70, 73, 99, I, II, and V.

The Kreuzberg (Pl. G, 21, 24) is the highest eminence (203 ft.) on the S. margin of the Spree basin. The Victoria Park, laid out on the slope of the hill in 1888-94, contains a Waterfall in an artificial rocky ravine, which runs 8 hrs. daily from 1st May to 15th Oct., and is illuminated for 2 hrs. every Wed. and Sat. evening. The falling waters are distinctly visible far down the Grossbeeren-Str. In the basin at the foot of the fall is a bronze group ('The rare fish') by Herter, and in the grounds are six marble hermæ of national poets (Körner, Rückert, Uhland, Schenkendorf, Kleist, Arndt). On the E. margin of the Park is the Café Viktoriagarten; to the S.E. not far off is a beer-garden of the Schultheiss brewery.

The National Monument of the War of Liberation, on the top of the Kreuzberg, is an iron obelisk in the Gothic style, 65 ft. high, designed by Schinkel, and inaugurated in 1821. In 1878 it was raised 24 ft. and placed on a bastion-like sub-structure. In the niches of the monument are 12 figures, by Rauch, Tieck, and Wichmann the Younger, symbolizing the chief victories. Most of these are portraits; the battle of Bar-sur-Aube, for instance, is represented by a symbolical figure bearing the features of King William I., afterwards emperor. — From this point a splendid *View of Berlin is obtained, especially on Sundays when the atmosphere is free from smoke. The Grossbeeren-Strasse stretches due N. from the foot of the hill; to the left of it is the hall of the Anhalt Rail. Station, with the Gnaden-Kirche, the Reichstags-Gebäude, and the Column of Victory in the distance; somewhat nearer we see the Central Station and triangle of lines of the Electric Elevated Railway, the Luther-Kirche, the Charlottenburg Rathaus, and the Emp. William Memorial Church; to the W. lie the Grunewald and Steglitz. To the right of the Grossbeeren-Str. rise the domed towers in the Gendarmen-Markt and the Hedwigs-Kirche, then the Cathedral and the cupola of the Royal Palace. Next come the Marien-Kirche; then, beyond the neighbouring Bonifazius-Kirche, the Rathaus, the Nicolai-Kirche and Petri-Kirche, the Georgen-Kirche, and the squat tower of the Märkische Museum, with the Church of the Holy Rood in the foreground. To the E. are the Hasenheide and Rixdorf, and to the S. lie the Tempelhofer Feld and Tempelhof.

In the Tempelhofer Feld the manœuvres of the Berlin garrison have taken place since the days of Frederick William I. (1721), as also the great reviews of the Guards in spring and autumn (p. 30). — The village of Tempelhof (tramways Nos. 70, 73, 99, and I; station of the Süd-Ring, p. 13), with ca. 17,000 inhab., belonged to the Knights Templar down to 1319.

From the Potsdam Station (p. 127) the bulk of the traffic to Schöneberg (comp. p. 175) runs to the E. through the POTSDAMER-STRASSE, formerly a centre of the fashionable West End quarter, but now a busy commercial thoroughfare. Among the monumental buildings recently erected here, we may notice, on the right, Nos. 10-11, W. Wertheim's Warehouse, with a façade of basaltic lava, and on the left, Nos. 127-128, Alt-Bayern (restaurant, p. 9), in red sandstone, both built by Walther, with handsome courts and sculptural adornments.

In the Link-Str., which diverges to the S. from the Potsdamer-Str. not far from the Potsdamer-Platz, a memorial tablet at No. 7, marks the house in which Jacob (1785-1863) and Wilhelm (1786-1859) Grimm, the founders of Germanic philology, lived and died.

At the point where the Potsdamer-Str. is joined by the Viktoria-Str. leading from the Kemper-Platz (p. 143), the Landwehr-Canal

(p. 172) is spanned by the Potsdamer und Viktoria Brücke (Pl. G, 16), erected in 1897-98, on which are seated bronze statues of four eminent men of science: Helmholtz (by Klein), Röntgen (by Felderhof), Siemens (by Moser), and Gauss (by Janensch). — Along the canal we may proceed to the W. by a pleasant road past the Hercules Bridge (p. 176) to the Zoological Garden. The TIERGARTEN QUARTER, between the canal and the Tiergarten, is the most fashionable residential quarter in Berlin (comp. p. 54). Here, particularly near of the Zoological Garden, are numerous examples of those self-contained houses standing in gardens of their own that may be regarded as the most attractive achievements of architecture in Berlin since the days of Schinkel. Tiergarten-Str., see p. 178; Bellevue-Str., p. 127. On this side of the canal, to the N. of the bridge, are several public buildings of interest. No. 18 Viktoria-Str., is the Teltow Court House, by Schwechten (1891). In the Matthäi-Kirch-Str. (20-21) is the House of the Provincial Estates of Brandenburg, by Ende & Böckmann. In the Sigismund-Str. No. 4 is the Hofmann-Haus of the German Chemical Society, by March. — The large Renaissance building of the Imperial Insurance Office (Reichs-Versicherungs-Amt; Pl. G, 16), by Busse, is situated on the canal, at Königin-Augusta-Str. 25-27. Its vestibule contains a group of workmen, by Brütt. — Near the canal (Regenten-Str. 15) is the Spanish Embassy, in a villa built in 1873-76 by Ende & Benda, and embellished with a frieze from Northern mythology by Engelhard.

Beyond the Potsdamer Brücke, at Potsdamer-Str. 120, is at present the Academy of Science (p. 57). The Potsdamer-Str. is then crossed by the Lützow-Str., in which, to the right (Nos. 89, 90) is the German Colonial House (p. 32), with figures of negroes on the façade, and (No. 76) the Blüthner-Saal (concerts, p. 30). — Farther on in the Potsdamer-Str. is the Bülow-Str. Station of the Elevated Railway (p. 13), constructed above the promenade of the Bülow-Str. Near it, to the left, is the Luther-Kirche (Pl. G, 17), a Gothic brick structure by Otzen (1891-94). The Potsdamer-Str. terminates near Schöneberg at the former Botanic Garden (comp. p. 188), part of which is being converted into a public park, where the Königs-Colonnaden, by Gontard, removed in 1910 from the N.-E. end of the Königstrasse (p. 152), will be re-erected. A new building for the Kammer-Gericht (p. 170) is under construction here.

The town of Schöneberg (Ratskeller Restaurant and Grand Cafe Schöneberg, Kaiser-Wilhelm-Platz; Schloss-Brauerei, Haupt-Str. 112-114), although connected with Berlin by unbroken rows of streets, enjoys independent administration and numbers over 163,000 inhabitants. — It is served by the stations of Schöneberg and Ebers-Strasse on the 'Süd-Ring', by the Grossgörschen-Strasse station on the Wannsee Railway (p. 185), and by a station on the Military Railway (Pl. G, 18; for the ranges at Kummerdorf and Jüterbog). Tramways (pp. 14-22): Nos. 2, 3, 5, 8, 23, 24, 40, 41, 43, 50, 51, 56, 57, 59, 60, 61, 62, 69, 71, 72, 74, 82, 87-90, I, II, III, V, B, D, E, and H. An underground line from the Nollendorf-Platz (p. 176), with the stations Victoria-Luise-Platz, Bayrischer Platz, Stadt-park, and Hauptstrasse (near the Ebers-Str. station of the Ringbahn) will be opened in 1910.

In the N. part, near the Nollendorf-Platz (Pl. G, 14), rises the Rom. Cath. St. Matthias-Kirche, erected in the Gothic style by Seibertz. Not far off, at Eisenacher-Str. 12, is the Grand Lodge of German Freemasons, built by Lange (1900). The handsome Victoria-Luise-Platz and the adjacent streets contain numerous interesting private residences in modern style. — The Grunewald-Strasse, to the W., contains the Apostel-Paulus Kirche, built by Schwechten, and the Fritz Heinrich's Gymnasium (Pl. G, 15), built by F. Schulze, both fine specimens of the brick architecture of the Mark of Brandenburg. The Hohenzollern-Schule (Reform-Gymnasium), a building by Egeling, is in the Belziger-Str. To the N. of the Church of St. Paul, at Barbarossa-Str. 74a, is the Pestalozzi-Fröbel House, in the hall of which is a marble statue of Queen Louise with Prince William in her arms, by Schaper. — The main street contains a bronze Statue of Emp. William I., by Gerling, and the Town Hall (Ratskeller, see above).

ST. MATTHEW'S CEMETERY (Pl. G, 18) lies close to the Grossgörschen-Str. Station. It contains the graves of numerous scholars and artists. L. von Sybel (d. 1895), the historian, is buried close to the E. pathway; F. Drake (d. 1882), the sculptor, to the right of the central path; R. Virchow (d. 1902), at the third intersecting path, to the left of the chief walk; A. Kiss (d. 1865), the sculptor, at the end of the third path to the right; the Brothers Grimm (d. 1859 and 1863; comp. p. 174) near the path running parallel to the central path on the S.; etc.

From the Potsdamer-Str. the Bülow-Strasse runs to the W. to the NOLLENDORF-PLATZ (Pl. G, 13), in which stands the domed station of the Elevated Railway (p. 13). This square is situated on the outskirts of Berlin, its S. side belonging to Schöneberg, and its W. side to Charlottenburg (p. 181). At Motz-Str. 6, to the S.W. of the Nollendorf-Platz, is the American Church, a tasteful sandstone building in the Gothic style by March, opened in 1903 (services, see p. 36). Near by is the Neue Schauspielhaus and Mozart-Saal, by Boswau & Knauer (1906; comp. pp. 28, 29). In the Luther-Str. is the Eispalast (Pl. G, 4; ice-area of 7000 square feet, see p. 30). — To the W. the Kleist-Str. and Tauenzien-Str. lead to the Emperor William Memorial Church via the Wittenberg-Platz (Pl. G, 13; station of the Underground Railway, p. 13), in which rises the Kaufhaus des Westens (p. 31), erected in a freely treated Renaissance style by Staudt, with sculptures by Wrba.

TRAMWAYS (pp. 14-22) from the Nollendorf-Platz: Nos. 2, 3, 8, 50, 51, 52, 56, 57, 60, 61, 64, 75, 91, 92, A, D, and H.

The Nollendorf-Platz connects the Maassen-Str., which passes to the N. near the Headquarters of the Engineers (Kurfürsten-Str. 63-69), with the LÜTZOW-PLATZ (Pl. G, 13), embellished in 1903 with the Hercules Fountain, 46 ft. high, designed by O. Lessing; at the top is Hercules as the deliverer of Prometheus, below are four groups typifying the power of water unfettered, tamed, refreshing, and serviceable. — The groups in sandstone by Schadow on the Hercules Bridge, which here crosses the Landwehr Canal (pp. 172, 174), were taken from another bridge near the Exchange.

TRAMWAYS from the Lützow-Platz (pp. 14-22): Nos. 2, 3, 17, 33, 50, 54, 66, 67, 78-81, 93, 98, P, and R.

11. Tiergarten. Zoological Garden.

The following DRIVE of 5 M. ($8\frac{1}{2}$ kil.; taximeter cab about 3 M.) includes the most interesting points in the Tiergarten. — From the Brandenburg Gate by the Königrätzer-Str. (Goethe Monument), Lenné-Str. (Lessing Monument), Kemper-Platz (Sieges-Allée; View of the Column of Victory), and Tiergarten-Str. to the monuments of Frederick William III., Queen Louise and Richard Wagner; thence by the Grosse Weg, passing the Rousseau Island and the Neue See, to the Tiergarten Station, by the Charlottenburger Chaussee and the Grosse Stern to the Rosengarten, by the Spree-Weg, past the Zelten to the Königs-Platz, then the whole length of the Sieges-Allée, and lastly back to the Brandenburg Gate.

The Tiergarten (Pl. R, 10-19), the largest and most attractive park near the town, extends from the Brandenburg Gate to Charlottenburg and covers about 630 acres. It is the private property of the crown, and until the reign of King Frederick I. it was actually a 'deer-park.' In the 16th cent. it extended as far as the E. end of the present Jäger-Strasse, where a royal hunting-lodge stood. Some portions, still laid out in the Versailles style, owe their arrangement to Knobelsdorff, the architect of Frederick the Great, while Frederick William III., assisted by his landscape-gardener Lenné, did much to beautify the park in the 19th century. Within recent years the Tiergarten has exchanged much of its former character as a natural forest for the trimmer beauties of a public park. The Sieges-Allée and the roads skirting the Tiergarten on the E. and S. are fashionable afternoon-promenades. — The remoter parts of the park should be avoided after dark.

From the Brandenburger Tor the CHARLOTTENBURGER CHAUSSÉE runs through the middle of the Tiergarten to Charlottenburg, crossing the Sieges-Allée (p. 142) and the Grosse Stern. Beyond the Sieges-Allée to the left is the pretty ROSENGARTEN (Pl. R, 16), with a marble statue of Empress Augusta Victoria (replica of the statue near the New Palace, p. 199). Near it to the S. is the Rousseau Island (p. 178). The Grosse Stern (Pl. R, 13), a circular space whence roads radiate in all directions, was embellished in 1904 by order of Emp. William II. with the Hubertus fountain, by K. von Uechtritz, and four bronze groups of hunting-scenes, viz. Ancient German buffalo-hunt, by Schaper; Mediæval boar-hunt, by K. Begas; Hare-hunt in the 18th century, by Baumbach; and Modern fox-hunt, by Haverkamp.

On the N. margin of the Tiergarten, about $\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the W. of the Alsen-Platz (p. 140), on the Spree, are the places of recreation known as the Zelte (i. e. tents, from their original construction). These are simply 'al fresco' restaurants and have been popular resorts ever since the reign of Frederick the Great. The Kronprinzen-Zelt is a handsome building by Grisebach (1888).

From the Kurfürsten-Platz (Pl. R, 17), at the W. end of the Zelte, shady walks traverse the N. part of the Tiergarten, running towards the S.E., the S., and the W. In the latter direction, towards the Spree, is the royal Château of Bellevue (Pl. R, 14), built in 1785 by Prince Ferdinand of Prussia, the youngest brother of Frederick the Great, at present the residence of Prince Eitel Friedrich. The park (generally open, except in Jan. and Feb.; entrance from the S. side) contains a monument, by Zumbusch, to Prince Augustus of Prussia (d. 1843), reorganizer of the Prussian artillery.

The Luther-Brücke here crosses the Spree to Moabit (p. 166). Farther along the river are the Bellevue Station of the Stadtbahn (Pl. R, 14) and the fine residential quarter known as the HANSA QUARTER (Pl. R, 14, 10, 11; comp. p. 54). In the centre, at Klopstock-Str. 19-20, is the Imperial Public Health Office (Pl. R, 14), a Romanesque brick edifice by Busse (1896-97). To the S., on the edge of the Tiergarten, is the Emperor Frederick Memorial Church (Pl. R, 13), by Vollmer (1895). Adjoining is the popular Charlottenhof Restaurant (p. 10).

The S. margin of the Tiergarten is skirted by the Lenné-Strasse and the Tiergarten-Strasse, both with tasteful villas and mansions. In the Tiergarten-Str., which begins at the Roland Fountain (p. 143), we may notice the Staudt Mansion, at the corner of the Regenten-Str., built by Rieth, with gorgeous plastic ornamentation by Vogel and Widemann.

In the park, to the N. of the Tiergarten-Str., is the Louisen Island (Pl. R, 16), in which a marble Statue of Queen Louise, by Encke, was erected in 1880; the reliefs on the pedestal represent woman's work in war. On the W. side of the island is a marble bench in memory of the victories of 1870-71; near it, a marble Statue of Emp. William I. when a youth, by Brütt, was erected in 1904. To the N. of the island rises the Statue of Frederick William III. (Pl. R, 16), by Drake, erected by the citizens of Berlin in 1849, the pedestal of which, 18 ft. in height, is adorned with Reliefs representing the enjoyment of nature.

Farther on in the Tiergarten-Str. a marble Monument to Richard Wagner (Pl. R, 16), by Eberlein, was erected in 1903, showing the seated figure of the master upon a Romanesque pedestal adorned with scenes from his operas (Wolfram von Eschenbach; Tannhäuser; Brunhilda and the dead Siegfried; Alberich and one of the Rhine Maidens). — The neighbouring Rousseau Island (Pl. R, 16) and its pretty environs were laid out in the latter half of the 18th century. Near it to the N. are a marble statue of Albert Lortzing, the musical composer (p. 157), by Eberlein (1906), and the Rosengarten (p. 177). — About $\frac{3}{4}$ M. to the S.W. of the Rousseau Island, beyond the Hofjäger-Allée (leading S. to the Lützow-Platz, p. 176), is a marble group of the Volkslied, by Sussmann-Hellborn (1910); and opposite the house Stüler-Str. 6 (Pl. R, 13) is a marble monument to Theodore Fontane (d. 1898; comp. p. 155), the Markish poet, by M. Klein (1910). — At the W. end of the Tiergarten lies the Seepark, with the Neue See (Pl. R, 13; p. 30), where numerous skaters display their skill in winter. On the Schleusen-Insel (Lock Island) are the Experimental Institutes for Hydraulic and Naval Architecture and for Water Motors (connected with the Technische Hochschule, p. 182). A little to the N. is the Tiergarten Station of the Stadtbahn (p. 12) and the Tiergartenhof Restaurant (p. 181).

On the S. bank of the Landwehr Canal, opposite the W. end of the Tiergarten, lies the Zoological Garden.

Stadtbahn, see p. 12. — Underground Railway, see p. 13. — Tramways (pp. 14-22): Nos. 4, 33, 64, 75, 78-82, 89, 93, 98, A, D, F, G, H, O, P, R, and S.

The Zoological Garden (Pl. G, 10, 13) was founded in 1841-44 as the third of the kind in Europe by a company to whom Frederick William IV. presented the small collection of animals previously kept on the Pfauen-Insel (p. 189). The first director was the naturalist Lichtenstein (d. 1857). Under H. Bodinus (d. 1884), who became director in 1869, the collection developed to greater importance. The present director is Prof. Heck. Adm., see p. 42 (usually overcrowded on Sun.); concerts, see p. 30. Restaurants: Haupt-Restaurant* (first class, see p. 8; D., 1-8 p.m., 3½ or 5 M.); the Waldschenke is cheaper; Wiener Cafe, open in summer only.

From the entrance we follow the paved path, which leads to all the points of interest (illustrated description 30 pf.). The present arrangement of the garden dates from 1898. The various buildings are mostly designed after foreign patterns. The Main Entrance Gate, on the Kurfürsten-Damm, the Offices, and the Wading Birds' House are in the Japanese style. The new Aviary is in the Moorish style, as is also the Antelope House, which has a painting on majolica, by P. Meyerheim. The group of centaurs in front of the latter is by R. Begas. The Elephant House is in the form of an Indian pagoda; while an ancient Egyptian style has been adopted for the Ostrich House, and Russian, Siamese, and Alaskan buildings have served as models for the Buffalo Houses. The View Tower (ascent 10 pf.) may also be mentioned. — Exhibition Hall, see p. 183.

The collection of animals embraces upwards of 1300 different kinds, several here shown for the first time in any zoological garden. Many interesting specimens have recently been brought from the German colonies. Among the beasts of prey we note the modern northern varieties of the tiger, leopard, and puma, which remain here in the open air even in winter. The completed wing of the great aviary contains 400 separate cages for foreign birds; among 130 varieties of parrots, 20 are green Amazon-parrots. Nearly every known variety of cranes and storks is represented. Many rarities are to be found also among the deer (50 varieties), horses, wild goats, wild sheep, and wild cattle.—The animals are usually fed between 6 and 7 p.m. from June to September. Wed. is a fast-day for the carnivora. Comp. the lists exhibited at various points in the garden.

II. ENVIRONS OF BERLIN.

12. Charlottenburg.

STADTBahn STATIONS (named in order from Berlin; see p. 12): Tiergarten, Zoologischer Garten, Savigny-Platz, Charlottenburg, Westend, and Jungfernheide. The Zoological Garden and Charlottenburg Stations are the only ones with luggage-offices or in connection with main-line trains. — STATIONS OF THE ELEVATED AND UNDERGROUND RAILWAY (p. 13): Nollendorf-Platz (p. 174), Zoological Garden (p. 179), Knie (p. 183; 13 min.'s journey from the Potsdamer-Platz). — TRAMWAYS (pp. 14-22): Nos. 5, 8, 18, 33, 54, 64, 76, 80, 81, 93, 98, H, N, P, R, T, V; from the Brandenburg Gate to Charlottenburg Palace 25 min., from the Kupfergraben (near the Museum Island) 35 minutes.

Hotels. *PARK-HÔTEL (Pl. q; G, 10), Hardenberg-Str. 29, at the Zoological Garden Station, 50 R. at 5-20, B. 1 $\frac{1}{4}$ $\mathcal{M}$; FÜRST BISMARCK, at the Knie (p. 184), 60 R. at 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ -6, B. 1 $\mathcal{M}$, very fair; SCHLOSSPARK-HÔTEL, Luisen-Platz 1, 18 R. from 2, B. $\frac{3}{4}$, D. 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ $\mathcal{M}$; all with restaurant. — Pensions, see p. 7.

Restaurants. Tiergartenhof, near the Tiergarten Station (p. 179); Hellwig & Sohn (wine), Hardenberg-Str. 15; Motivhaus, same street 6; Ratskeller, in the Rathaus (p. 184); the restaurants of the Theater des Westens (p. 183), the Schiller-Theater (p. 184), etc.

Cafés. Romanisches Café, by the Emp. William Memorial Church; Josty (confectioner), Hardenberg-Str. 27; Café Empire, Theater-Platz 5.

POST, TELEGRAPH, & TELEPHONE OFFICES, Berliner-Str. 62; also six branch-offices.

Charlottenburg, a town with 285,000 inhab. (in 1880 only 30,483), begins immediately to the W. of the Tiergarten, about 1 $\frac{3}{4}$ M. from the Brandenburg Gate. It is now practically part of Berlin, though it still retains an independent municipality, and its present size and prosperity is entirely owing to the recent rapid advance of its large neighbour. It lies on the site formerly occupied by the village of Lietzow, where Sophia Charlotte, wife of Frederick I., founded a country residence at the end of the 17th century.

Beyond the Tiergarten Station, continuing the Charlottenburg Chaussée (p. 177), the BERLINER STRASSE intersects the town. To the N. of it near the station, in the Wegely-Str., stands the Royal Porcelain Factory (Pl. R, 10); adm., see p. 39; see also pp. 33, 124. The factory, founded in Berlin in 1761 and acquired for the state by Frederick the Great in 1763, was removed to its present site in 1871. — The Berliner Strasse crosses the Landwehr Canal (p. 172) by the — Charlottenburger Brücke (Pl. R, 10), completed in 1907 after Schädé's designs. In front of the high gates of the E. side (crowned with allegorical bronze groups by Wrba), bronze statues, by Baucke, of King Frederick I. and Queen Sophie Charlotte (with the model of the palace, p. 184) were erected in 1909; on the W. side rise handsome columns bearing candelabra.—Beyond the bridge, on the left, is the —

Technische Hochschule, or Technical Academy (Pl. R, 7, 10), erected in 1878-84, from designs by Lucas and Hitzig, after the death of the latter under the superintendence of Raschdorff (p. 64). The main building, 750 ft. long and 295 ft. wide, is embellished with numerous sculptures. The balustrade in front of the aula is embellished with five bronze busts by K. Begas: Gauss, the mathematician (d. 1855), Eytelwein, the civil engineer (d. 1848), Schinkel, the architect (d. 1841), Redtenbacher, the mechanical engineer (d. 1863), and Liebig, the chemist (d. 1873). The niches on the central building and the projecting wings are filled with statues; viz. Erwin von Steinbach and Bramante, by Encke; Andreas Schlüter, by Hundrieser; Leonardo da Vinci, by Eberlein; James Watt and George Stephenson, by Keil. In front of the building are bronze statues of Werner von Siemens (d. 1892; by Wandschneider) and Alfred Krupp (d. 1887; by Herter).—The Academy has a teaching-staff of 150 and is attended by 2100 students.

The CENTRAL COURT, covered with a glazed roof, contains a bronze statue of Frederick William III. in classical costume by Kiss, the Genius of Steam by Reusch, busts of eminent teachers, etc. In the corridor on the first floor is a bronze group by Herter, representing Art paying homage to Technical Science; at the sides are busts of Schinkel and Beuth.

On the second floor, to the left (E. & S. sides), is the Architectural Museum (adm., see p. 40; director, Prof. Raschdorff), a large collection of models and plans. Specially noteworthy are the Callenbach collection of models of mediæval German buildings and the competing designs for the Cathedral, the Reichstags-Gebäude, and the Monument of William I. In a separate room is the Beuth-Schinkel Museum, containing the collections of Beuth (p. 159) and the Works of Art* left by Schinkel on his decease. The latter include landscapes and architectural paintings, architectural plans (e. g. of the Château Orianda in the Crimea), the original sketches for the frescoes in the Old Museum, and designs for theatre-decorations.

In the AUGUSTE-VICTORIA-PLATZ, to the S. of the Zoological Garden Station, rises the Emperor William Memorial Church (Pl. G, 10), a late-Romanesque edifice in the shape of a Latin cross, by Schwechten, erected in 1891-95. The main W. tower, 370 ft. high, is the loftiest building in or near Berlin. There are four smaller towers at the angles. The choir is adorned with a dwarf arcade and there are large rose-windows in the W., N., and S. façades. The finely executed portals also merit notice. Admission, see p. 37.

Passing through the W. door we first enter the MEMORIAL HALL (Gedächtnis-Halle; 69 ft. long and 23 ft. wide), decorated with mosaics by Schaper. On the ceiling are Reformers and Emperors of the first German Empire. The frieze on the E. wall represents princes and princesses of the Hohenzollern family; that on the W. wall depicts the heroes of the campaigns of 1813 and 1870-71. The marble reliefs on the walls are by Brütt; four are scenes from the life of Emperor William I.; beside the main door are the Productive Class and the Military Class; over the other doors, Biblical scenes. The centre of the mosaic pavement is occupied by a figure of the Archangel Michael. The apses at the sides of the vestibule are decorated with stained-glass windows, representing (right) scenes from the life of John the Baptist, and (left) scenes from the history of the Prophet Elijah.

The INTERIOR of the church, which is strikingly handsome and spacious, has three galleries, supported by columns of labradorite. It is embellished with mosaics from designs by Linnemann. On the choir-arch appear SS. Peter and Paul, by Geselschap, above whom are angelic musicians, by Quensen. Above the triforium gallery are five beautiful stained-glass windows by Linnemann, representing Moses and the four major Prophets. In the choir are statues of the Evangelists by Janensch and Wenck; of SS. Peter and Paul, by Haverkamp; and of Luther and Melancthon, by O. Lessing. The altar, the pulpit, and the font are elaborate works in Istrian limestone, marble, and bronze. Beneath the altar-canopy is a figure of Christ in the attitude of blessing, by Schaper. To the left of the altar is the richly decorated imperial pew, with a Jerusalem cross in mosaic. The vaulting of the Crossing, which is 69 ft. square and 82 ft. high, bears colossal figures (21 ft. in height) of four archangels and four fathers of the church. Beneath hangs a handsome circular chandelier, 18 ft. in diameter, ornamented with apostles' heads. The rose-windows in the transepts, each framed in mosaic, are filled with stained glass, by Geiges, representing the Presentation in the Temple and the Resurrection; adjacent, the Last Supper and the Entry into Jerusalem, mosaics after Pfannschmidt. The windows in the NAVE are filled with scenes from the life of Christ (above) and the Christian virtues (below). Below the ORGAN GALLERY are mosaics after Seliger, Mary and Martha, Christ and the centurion of Capernaum. The organ, with a case in forged copper, has 80 stops and 4800 pipes.

The Romanesque houses opposite each end of the church are also by Schwedten. The neighbouring Exhibition Hall of the Zoological Garden, 210 yds. in length, also shows Romanesque forms (restaurant, see p. 179). Among the streets radiating from the Auguste-Victoria-Platz, the KURFÜRSTEN-DAMM, an avenue leading to Halensee (p. 184), is the most conspicuous for its many handsome structures. At Nos. 208-9 is the exhibition of the Berliner Sezession (Pl. G, 7; adm., see p. 37). — At Kant-Str. 12, near the Stadtbahn, is the elegantly fitted-up Theater des Westens (Pl. G, 10; p. 28), built in 1896 by Sehring.

A little to the S. of the Emp. William Memorial Church begins Wilmersdorf, a town with 96,000 inhab. (incl. Halensee). Station of the Ringbahn, see p. 13. Tramways (pp. 18-22), Nos. 8, 51, 57, 66, 67, 78, 82, 89-92, B, F, G, O, S, and V. Underground line from the Station Wittenberg-Platz (p. 13) to Wilmersdorf and Dahlem under construction.

In the HARDENBERG-STRASSE, which leads to the N.W. from the Zoological Garden Station to the bend ('Knie') of the Berliner-Str. (see p. 184), are the Ober-Verwaltungs-Gericht (Supreme Administrative Court), a baroque structure by Fürstenau (1907), and the Military Technical Academy. Farther on are two sandstone buildings in the baroque style designed by Kayser & von Groszheim (1902), viz. the Royal Academy of Music (director, Prof. Kretzschmar), with a long façade towards the Fasanen-Str. (Nos. 1-9), and the Royal Academy of Art (director, Prof. Anton von Werner), arranged round a skilfully conceived court; in the wall of the façade are two fountains with Orpheus (by Herter, to the right) and Prometheus (by Hundrieser, to the left); relief in the pediment by Manzel, the Arts under the protection of Peace.

The Academy of Music contains the Collection of Musical Instruments (adm., p. 39), founded in 1888 and enlarged in 1902 by the acquisition of the Snoeck collection from Ghent (3000 Nos.), comprising numerous instruments of artistic and historical interest.

At Hardenberg-Str. 36 is the Royal Academic Institute for Sacred Music (director, Prof. Kretschmar).

From the 'Knie' (Pl. R, 7), or bend, of the Berliner-Strasse (station of the Underground Railway, p. 13), diverge the Hardenberg-Strasse, the March-Strasse (see below; tramway Q to Moabit) to the N.E., and the Bismarck-Strasse to the W. The latter is continued as a military road ('Heerstrasse') through the Grunewald to the manœuvring-ground at Döberitz (comp. margin of the map at p. 187). — In the Bismarck-Str., at the corner of the Grolmann-Str., is the Schiller-Theater Charlottenburg (comp. p. 28), built by Heilmann & Littmann (1906), with a room for popular lectures.

To the N. of the Knie, March-Str. 25, is the Imperial Physico-Technical Institution and to the W. of it, Fraunhofer-Str. 11-12, the Workmen's Welfare Permanent Exhibition (Pl. R, 7, 8; adm. see p. 42), with fenced machinery in motion, etc.

In the industrial district farther to the N. (Pl. R, 8) are two electric works in close connection: viz. the Siemens-Schuckert Works Co. Ltd., Franklin-Str. 28 (capital 4,500,000 l.), and the Siemens & Halske Co. (capital 2,600,000 l.), the latter founded in 1847 by Werner Siemens, the discoverer of the dynamic principle (1867) and inventor of electric tramways (1879). The office of the two societies, which employ 35,000 workmen and officials, is mentioned at p. 127.

The Berliner-Strasse leads to the N.W. from the Knie to the Luisen-Platz. At Nos. 72-73 in this street is the Rathaus (Pl. R, 5), erected in 1899-1905 by Reinhardt and Süssenguth, with a massive and highly ornate façade and a tower 360 ft. in height (an excellent point of view; adm., see p. 39; Ratskeller, p. 181).

In front of the palace is the LUISEN-PLATZ (Pl. R, 2), in which an Equestrian Statue of Emp. Frederick III., by Uphues, was erected in 1905. The pedestal, with its garland of thorns, the massive substructure, and the back-wall with its two pylons (52 ft. high) are of granite; on the top of the pylons are two marble statues of Apollo and Athena; on the base are bronze-reliefs representing the emperor distributing decorations at Königgrätz and reviewing his army for the last time in Charlottenburg Park. — At the beginning of the Schloss-Str. (leading to the left) is a bronze statue of Prince Albert of Prussia (d. 1872), by Börmel and Freyberg (1901). The street runs to the S. to the vicinity of the Lietzen-See (Pl. R, 1, G, 1), which is surrounded with pleasant grounds.

The Royal Palace (Pl. R, 2) consists of a large group of buildings, with a total length of 550 yds. The central portion, erected by Schlüter in 1695-99, was enlarged by Eosander von Goethe (p. 66) in 1701-7 and provided with its effective dome. The right wing ('Neues Schloss') was added by Knobelsdorff in 1741-42, while the theatre at the end of the left wing and the belvedere in the park were erected by Langhans in 1788. — Tickets of adm., and also tickets for the Mausoleum (see below), are obtained to the right, in the first court (marked 'K' on the Plan); comp. p. 37.

INTERIOR. At present only the apartments formerly occupied by Frederick I. and Sophie Charlotte, in the central part, next the garden, are shown. Emp. Frederick III. also spent ten weeks of his last illness here (11th March to 1st June, 1888). The rococo decorations are well worthy of inspection. Visitors should note the Porcelain Chamber, with Chinese porcelain presented to Queen Sophia Charlotte by English merchants; and Wichmann's marble statue of the Empress Charlotte of Russia, in the round garden-saloon.

The entrance to the pleasant PALACE GARDEN, laid out by the eminent French landscape-gardener Le Nôtre in 1694, a favourite promenade for Berliners and Charlottenburgers, is near the small guard-room, adjoining the W. wing. Crossing the orangery to the right, turning to the left and skirting it on the farther side, and then following an avenue of pines to the right, we reach (in 8 min. from the entrance) the Mausoleum (Pl. R, 2; tickets, see above), erected in 1810 by Gentz in the Doric style from Schinkel's designs and enlarged in 1888-90. Queen Louise (d. 1810) and her husband Frederick William III. (d. 1840) repose here, together with Princess Liegnitz (d. 1873), the second wife of Frederick William III., Emperor William I. (d. 1888), and Empress Augusta (d. 1890). The recumbent figures of the first-named pair, executed in marble by Rauch's masterly hand, are strikingly impressive. The beautiful figure of the queen, executed at Carrara and Rome in 1812-13, was placed here in 1815 and at once established the sculptor's fame. The monument of the king was finished at Berlin in 1846. The fine figures of the Emperor William and his wife, by Encke, were placed here in 1894. The mourning angel in the vestibule is also by Encke. The beautiful candelabrum on the right, with the three Fates, is by Rauch, that on the left, with the Horæ, by Tieck; the crucifix in the apse by Achtermann, the painting by Pfannschmidt.

From the Palace the Spandauer-Str. leads to the W. to the Westend Station of the Ringbahn (p. 13); beyond it, to the right, lies the extensive Municipal Hospital. Farther to the W. is the colony of villas known as Westend (Westend Restaurant). Beyond it, about 1½ M. from the station, on the Spandauer Chaussée (tramway R), is the Spandauer Bock, a popular beer-garden commanding a view towards Spandau. About 2½ M. to the S.W. of it is Pichelsberg (p. 187).

13. The Forest District between Charlottenburg and Potsdam.

An extensive wooded district extends to the S.W. from Charlottenburg and Spandau (p. 202) to Potsdam, lying on the E. bank of the Havel, which expands here into a lake (steamer betwee between Spandau and Potsdam, see p. 202). This district is divided into two unequal parts by the Wannsee, a bay-like indentation of the Havel: to the N.E. is the Grunewald, to the S.W., accessible from the station of Wannsee, is the Potsdam Forest. The landscape of mingled wood and water, to which the more favoured parts of the Mark of Brandenburg owe their characteristic charm, may here be enjoyed to special advantage.

a. The Grunewald.

The Grunewald is reached from Berlin by various routes. 1. Viâ the STADTBahn (intramural traffic, p. 12) to Grunewald Station, by the suburban trains to Potsdam (p. 190) or to Nieder-Schöneweide-Grunewald (p. 204). — 2. By the STADTBahn (main line trains Strausberg-Spandau, p. 12) to Heerstrasse Station (on race-days extra-trains to the racecourse, comp. p. 187. — 3. By the RINGbahn (p. 13; 'Südring') to Halensee Station. — 4. The WANNSEE RAILWAY (p. 187) calls at the stations of Zehlendorf-Beerensstrasse and Nikolassee (p. 188). — 5. UNDERGROUND LINE (p. 13) to the Reichskanzler-Platz ($\frac{3}{4}$ M. from the Heerstrasse Station, $1\frac{1}{2}$ M. from the race-course). — 6. By TRAMWAY A (p. 21) to Hundekehle (restaurant 4 min. distant). — MOTOR OMNIBUS (p. 23): from the Brandenburger or Oranienburger Tor to Beelitzhof and Wannsee Station, from the Nollendorf-Platz to Onkel Tom's Hütte, from the Knie at Charlottenburg to Pichelsberg and Schildhorn; also circular trips (see the advertisements). — STEAMBOATS between Spandau and Wannsee see p. 203. — For CYCLISTS (pp. 43, 202) the best routes are viâ the Kurfürsten-Damm and the Kaiser-Damm.

The Grunewald, a royal forest of coniferous trees, about 11,350 acres in area, is a favourite resort of the Berliners, and offers a refreshing change to the tourist when jaded with sight-seeing and weary of the bustle of the city.

About $\frac{1}{3}$ M. to the W. of Halensee Station are the Terrassen am Halensee (Pl. G, 44), a concert-garden, at present united with the Luna Park, a large and noisy establishment containing a water slide, an Alpine railway, a Somali village (85 heads), etc. (open from 1 p. m.; adm. 50 pf.). — To the S. within the precincts of the forest lies the fashionable Villa Colony of Grunewald, consisting chiefly of elegant and comfortable residences grouped on the banks of a number of little lakes, some of which are artificial. Founded only in 1889, it already numbers upwards of 5400 inhabitants. From the Bismarck-Platz, with its bronze Statue of Bismarck by M. Klein (1897), we may proceed to the S. by the Hubertus-Allée to the (1 M.) prettily situated Hubertus Restaurant and Café Grunewald, or to the S.W. by the Bismarck-Allée to the (2 M.) Hundekehle Restaurant* (D. 3 M.). About 1 M. to the N. of the latter, beyond the Hundekehlen Lake, is the Grunewald Station (Pl. G, 48).

From the Grunewald Station paths lead through the woods to the W., in the direction of the Havel, to ($3\frac{1}{2}$ M.) the peninsula of Schildhorn (restaurants; steamboat station), where a monument commemorates the legendary escape of the Wendish prince Jaczo, when fleeing from Albert the Bear. About $1\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the S. of Schildhorn, on the lofty bank of the Havel (steamboat-pier), rises the Kaiser Wilhelm Turm*, erected in 1897 and commanding one of the finest views in the neighbourhood of Berlin. In the memorial hall are a marble statue of the emperor and bronze reliefs of Roon, Bismarck, Moltke, and Prince Frederick Charles, all by Manzel. Steamboat station $\frac{3}{4}$ M. distant. We may return to the station of Grunewald past the forester's house of Saubucht (rfmts.). Pichelsberg (Seeschloss Restaurant) lies $1\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the N., prettily situated on a bay opposite the island of Pichelswerder (Königgrätzer Garten Restaurant). Near Pichelsberg passes the Döberitzer Heerstrasse coming from the Knie at Charlottenburg (4 M., see p. 184); beyond the island it goes on from Pichelsdorf (electric tramway to Spandau, p. 202) to the manoeuvring ground of Döberitz. Pleasant return-route to Grunewald Station via the Teufels-See. — Between Pichelsberg and the Spandauer Bock ($2\frac{1}{2}$ M.; p. 185), near the Heerstrasse, surrounded by wood, is the Grunewald Racecourse (1st class restaurant). This is a station on a loop-line which diverges from the Spandau Stadtbahn at the Heerstrasse Station (p. 202), and will be carried on via Pichelsberg to Spandau.

To the S. of the Grunewald Station we may proceed via Hundekuhle (p. 186) to the ($2\frac{1}{2}$ M.) S. end of the Grunewald Lake, on which lie (1 M.) the Shooting Lodge of Grunewald, built in 1542 by Kaspar Theyss (p. 65) for Elector Joachim II., and the Paulsborn Restaurant*. To Steglitz, see below. — Farther to the S.W. we pass Onkel Tom's Hütte, a restaurant on the Riemeister-See, then the Krumme Lanke (another lake), and the picturesque Schlachten-See (boats for hire; Alte Fischerhütte Restaurant), above the left bank of which we see the villa-colony of that name (p. 188). The Grunewald ends at Beelitzhof (restaurant), situated on the Wannsee, $\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the N.W. of the station of Nikolassee (p. 188) and 1 M. to the N. of the Wannsee Station.

b. The Wannsee Railway and the Potsdam Forest.

Wannsee is served by the suburban trains to Potsdam via Grunewald (p. 186) on the STADTBahn and by the trains of the WANNSEE RAILWAY (station, Pl. G, 19; pp. 13, 188), which run to Zehlendorf (see p. 188) every 10 min. (during part of the day) and to Wannsee every 20 minutes.

The stations of the Wannsee Railway are as follows: $1\frac{1}{4}$ M. Grossgörschen-Strasse. — 3 M. Friedenau (Kaiser-Eiche Restaurant), a villa-colony with 28,000 inhab., with the optical institute of C. P. Götz (2000 hands). About $\frac{1}{3}$ M. S.W. of the station of the Süd-Ring (p. 13), in the Südwest-Corso, is the Deluge Fountain, in sandstone, by P. Aichele.

$4\frac{1}{4}$ M. Steglitz (Ratskeller; Schloss-Restaurant), a commune with 47,000 inhab. Below the Fichtenberg (view from the water-tower) is the Royal Blind Asylum, with the Blind Museum, removed hither from Berlin in 1877. Tramways 59, V, D, E, and F

(p. 21); also to Gross-Lichterfelde (two lines: Gross-Lichterfelde East Station and Cadet School) and to Südende. — From Steglitz to the shooting-lodge of Grunewald and Paulsborn: tramway to the end of Dahlem, then a walk of 25 min.

5 M. Botanischer Garten, station for the new —

Botanic Garden. Entrances: in the Potsdam road, 8 min. from the station, and in the Königin-Luise-Strasse, 1 M. from station Steglitz (tramway see above). Adm. see p. 36. — The garden, founded in 1679 to the N. of Schöneberg (comp. p. 175), was newly laid out in 1897-1903 on the S.W.-side of the Fichtenberg, in the district of Dahlem, by Prof. Engler, the present director. It is inferior in size (100 acres) to Kew Gardens near London, but surpasses them and all other institutions of the kind in its arrangement of plant-types from all parts of the world on the appropriate rock-formations. On the E. side are the Hothouses, containing rich collections of cacti, araceans, and palms (in the large central house). The S. part of the garden is occupied by the Arboretum.

To the N.E. of the garden, in the Königin-Luise-Strasse, is the Botanic Museum (adm., p. 37), with herbarium (E. wing) and exhibits (W. wing; the Colonial section should be noticed), and the Pharmaceutic Institute of the University. To the N.W. are the Royal Gardeners' Seminary, and the biological section of the Imperial Health Office (p. 178).

5½ M. Gross-Lichterfelde (Hans Sachs Restaurant, at the W. Station; Henning, at the E. Station), a villa settlement with about 41,500 inhab., extends from the Potsdam railway (Gross-Lichterfelde West Station) to beyond the Anhalt line (East Station; suburban trains, see p. 13). Tramways ply from one station to the other, passing the Cadet School, and also to Steglitz (p. 187) and Machnower Schleuse (p. 189). In the middle of the village, which is intersected by the Teltow Canal (p. 189), is a Monument to Emperor William I., by Wenck. Near the E. station is a bronze bust of Bismarck, by Magnussen; close by, Wilhelm-Str. 36a, is the Orthopaedic Sanatorium of Georg Hüssing. — At the W. end of the village is the Royal Central Cadet School (1000 pupils; entrance on the N. side); founded in 1717, it was transferred hither from Berlin in 1878. The 'Field-M Marshals' Hall', in the school-building, contains the portraits of 61 Prussian marshals. The 'Flensburg Lion', originally erected by the Danes at Flensburg in 1862 in memory of the battle of Idstedt (1850), stands in the court.

At (7¼ M.) Zehlendorf (Burg Hotel), a village with 16,300 inhab., the Wannsee line diverges to the right from the main Potsdam railway. Beyond (8¾ M.) Zehlendorf-Beerenstrasse we pass (9¼ M.) Schlachtensee (Schloss-Restaurant) and (10½ M.) Nikolassee, two groups of villas situated in the Grunewald (p. 186).

14. Potsdam and its Environs.

A visit to Potsdam is highly recommended on account both of its natural beauties and its historical associations. The spacious parks with their rivers and fountains, and the palaces with their well-preserved interiors and contemporary decorations and furniture, afford a better picture of a royal residence of the 18th century than even the larger and more pretentious palace of Versailles, which was bereft of so much of its splendour by the Revolution. If Versailles has the advantage of uniformity of arrangement, Potsdam has the charm of variety.

Railways from Berlin to Potsdam.

1. POTSDAM MAIN LINE (station, Pl. G, 19; pp. 1, 127). The long distance trains stop at no intermediate station and have no reduced fares. The suburban trains, with their terminus at (18½ M.) Wildpark (½ M. from the New Palace, p. 198) or (21½ M.) Werder (p. 202), call at (13½ M.) Neu-Babelsberg, (16 M.) Potsdam, and (17½ M.) Charlottenhof (10 min. by the Waldemar-Str. from the S. entrance to the park of Sanssouci; p. 196).

2. WANNSEE RAILWAY (station, Pl. G, 19), train to Potsdam every hour; comp. pp. 187-189.

3. STADTBahn (N. platforms). Beyond Charlottenburg these trains call at Grunewald (6 M. from Friedrich-Strasse Station, p. 186), traverse the Grunewald, and beyond (11 M.) Nikolassee follow the route described on pp. 188, 189.

The journey to Potsdam takes ½ hr. by Route No. 1, and 1 hr. by Nos. 2 and 3. Fares by suburban trains from the Potsdam Station or the Friedrich-Strasse Station 85 or 50 pf., by long distance trains 1 M. 40 or 90 pf.

Steamboats (in summer only; recommended). 1. From the Lange Brücke (Eisenbahn Hotel). a. At noon and hourly from 2.10 to Glienicke (p. 200; 20 pf.), Sakrow (p. 189), Moorlake (p. 189; 30 pf.; return-fare on week-days 50 pf.), the Pfauen-Insel (p. 189; 40, 60 pf.), and Wannsee (p. 189; 55, 80 pf.). — b. Twice or thrice every afternoon (on Sun. every hr. from 1.45 p.m.), to Glienicke, the Meierei, Nedlitz (p. 200; 30, 50 pf.), and Krampnitz. — c. At 12, 2, 3, 4, 6 p.m. (oftener on Sun.) to the Kiewitz, Tornow, Templin, Caputh, Baumgartenbrück, and Werder (p. 202; 30-60 pf.) or Ferch (55, 80 pf.); on certain afternoons separate trips to Werder, Glindow, Phöben; also to Schildhorn and Pichelswerder (p. 184; there and back 60 pf.). — d. On Mon. a trip is generally made round the 'Island of Potsdam' ('Potsdamer Werder'), touching at Glienicke and the Meierei (4 hrs.; 1 M., starting at 3 p.m. Restaurant on board.

2. From the Lange Brücke (Schultheiss Restaurant) eight times daily to Glienicke (15 pf.), in connection with the steamers plying to Neu-Babelsberg station (30 pf.; comp. p. 189).

Tramways. From the Railway Station to the Kaiser-Brücke (Wilhelm-Platz) and thence: A. To the Brandenburg Gate (Sanssouci) and Charlottenhof Station (p. 189); — B. To the Glienicke Bridge (p. 200); — C. To the Allée-Str., near the New Garden (p. 200); — D. From the Kaiser-Brücke past the Railway Station to Nowawes (p. 189). Fares 10-15 pf., or with change of carriage at the Kaiser-Brücke 20 pf.

The Fountains of Sanssouci usually play in summer on Sundays, from noon till 7 p.m. The great fountain also plays on Tuesday and Thursday, 3-7 p.m.

The Royal Palaces are usually open from 10 to 6 (Sun. 11-6) in summer; 10-4 in winter. Admission to the Town Palace (p. 193), the Garrison Church (p. 194), the Mausoleum of Emp. Frederick III. (p. 196), Sanssouci (p. 196), the Picture Gallery (p. 197), the Orangery (p. 198), the New Palace (p. 198; from the middle of Jan. to the end of April, or in the absence of the royal family), the Japanese House (in summer only, p. 198), and Babelsberg (p. 201) is granted by ticket (25 pf. each pers.).

Smoking is prohibited in the royal gardens, except at Babelsberg and near the Orangery.

Plan of Excursion. One day is insufficient for the excursion to Potsdam, unless only the chief points be visited and a free use of cabs, etc. be made. In any case visitors are recommended to be at the Town Palace (p. 193) punctually at 10 a.m., when the first party is admitted. Thence take the tramway to the Brandenburg Gate (p. 195), and walk to the Friedens-Kirche, Sanssouci (p. 196), the Orangery (p. 198), and the New Palace (p. 198). If the latter be closed to visitors, walk from the Orangery via Charlottenhof to the Viktoria-Strasse, and return by tramway to the town. In the afternoon by tramway or steamboat to the Glienicke Bridge, walk via Glienicke to Babelsberg (p. 201) and Neu-Babelsberg station (p. 189); or from the tramway terminus to the Pfingstberg (p. 199), thence to the Meierei in the Neue Garten (p. 200) and past the Jungfern-See back to the Glienicke Bridge (steamboat to Neu-Babelsberg Station, tramway to Potsdam Station).

An alternative plan for one day is as follows. Take the train (p. 189) to Neu-Babelsberg and the steamboat (p. 189) thence to Klein-Glienicke. Walk to Babelsberg Palace and through the park, passing the Flatow-Turm (view) to the Havel. Cross by boat to Potsdam (Holzmarkt-Str.; see p. 190) and visit the Town Palace about midday. Then take the tramway to the Brandenburg Gate; walk to Sanssouci and the Orangery and proceed thence either to Wildpark Station or to the tramway in the Luisen-Strasse, which takes us to Potsdam station.

Cycling Route (comp. p. 202; cycles are not admitted to the royal parks). After visiting the Town Palace proceed via the Altmarkt, Schloss-Str., Plantage, Bäcker-Str., and Charlotten-Str., to the Café Sanssouci outside the Brandenburg Gate, where cycles may be left. Visit the park of Sanssouci. Mounting once more, ride via the Hohenzollern-Str., Kaiser-Wilhelm-Str., Jäger-Str., and past the Russian Chapel, via the Pfingstberg to the Dairy in the New Garden (leave cycle). Visit the park on foot. Ride via the Grosse Weinmeister-Strasse, Schul-Strasse, Manger-Strasse, and the Neue Königs-Strasse to the Glienicke Bridge (which must be crossed on foot) and to the Bürgerhof Restaurant in Klein-Glienicke (leave cycle). Visit Babelsberg on foot, and finally ride back to Potsdam.—Before crossing the Glienicke Bridge a digression may be made to the left to the Boating Station (p. 200).

Potsdam (61,400 inhab., garrison 7000), the seat of government for the province of Brandenburg and the frequent residence of the imperial court, is charmingly situated on the Potsdamer Werder, an island in the Havel, which here expands into a series of lakes and is bounded by wooded hills. The town, first mentioned in the 10th cent., is of ancient Slavonic origin, but was of no importance until the Great Elector founded the original town-palace. It is indebted for its modern splendour to Frederick William I. and still more to Frederick the Great, who generally resided at Potsdam. From the reign of the latter date the present Town Palace and the Palace of Sanssouci (the interiors of which are among the finest examples of the then prevalent rococo style), and also the gorgeous New Palace and a large part of the royal parks. The Marble Palace, in the incipient 'classicist' style, was built by Frederick William II., and Fred. William III. began the Church of St. Nicholas and laid out the park on the Pfauen-Insel. Frederick William IV., when crown-prince, erected the Charlottenhof, a charming work in the developed classicist style, and after he came to the throne he added, besides the Friedens-Kirche and the church of Sakrow, the Orangery and the building on the Pfingstberg, two highly effective examples of the Italian decorative style. In the Gothic palace of Babelsberg, built by William I. before he became king, we recognize the influence of Rhenish romanticism. The edifices at Glienicke, designed by Schinkel for Prince Charles, are of greater artistic value. — The royal influence extended even to the private buildings. Frederick William I. erected a Dutch quarter, and Frederick the Great adorned the main streets with reproductions of the façades of Italian palazzi. On the whole, however, the older parts of Potsdam present as monotonous an appearance as Versailles.

Potsdam is the true cradle of the Prussian army. From Potsdam Frederick William I. issued his regulations for uniformity of drill and discipline, which he had previously tested on his gigantic grenadiers. Every regiment had annually to send a detachment of officers, non-commissioned officers, and men to Potsdam, where the king personally instructed them how to carry out his regulations. To this day the numerous soldiers, especially the picked men of the regiments of guards†, form the most characteristic feature in the streets of the town.

The Railway Station is situated in the Teltow Suburb, on the left (E.) bank of the Havel. The Lange Brücke, or Kaiser-Wilhelm-Brücke, which leads thence to the town, rests partly on the W. end of the 'Freundschafts-Insel' and is adorned with eight typical figures of soldiers since the time of the Great Elector, by Herter (1895). — On the island, close to the bridge, is an Equestrian Statue of Emperor William I., by Herter, erected in 1900. A goddess of victory is seated in front of the pedestal, which is embellished with reliefs of Prince William as 'galloner' at Bar-sur-Aube in 1814 and of the Entry into Paris in 1871. From beside the monument we command a view, to the S., of the Brauhausberg, with the Military Academy, while from the bridge we see, to the E., the Church of the Holy Ghost and Babelsberg.

On the right bank, in the middle of the street, stands the lime-tree where petitioners used to station themselves in order to attract the attention of Frederick the Great, when he was in residence at the Town Palace.

The Town Palace, or Stadt-Schloss, originally erected about

† The garrison consists of the 1st regiment of Foot Guards, a battalion of Riflemen of the Guards, the Gardes du Corps, the Hussars of the Life Guards, the 1st and 3rd regiments of Lancer Guards (Uhlans), and the 2nd and 4th regiments of the Field Artillery Guards. The Infantry Instruction Battalion, to which officers, non-commissioned officers, and men from all regiments in the German army (with the exception of the Bavarian contingent) are temporarily attached from 15th April to 1st Oct., serves the same purpose as the above-mentioned regulations of Frederick William I.

1661, but reconstructed by Knobelsdorff in 1745-51, is a remarkable specimen of the dignified classic style, though built at the zenith of the rococo period. The excellent materials and the admirable taste displayed in the execution of the interior place it on a very high level. Only the apartments on the groundfloor of the S. main building are shown (adm., see p. 191; tickets at the N.E. angle of the court).

In the S.E. corner Frederick the Great's richly decorated apartments, with sumptuous furniture and noteworthy pictures by Pater, Lancret, and Pesne, have been preserved in their original condition. Adjoining the Library, which is separated from the Bedroom by a massive silver balustrade only, is a Cabinet with double doors, from which the dining-table could be let down by means of a trap-door, and where the king occasionally dined with his friends without risk of being overheard by his attendants. The Study in the S.E. angle is noteworthy. (The library and bedroom are still frequently used for royal christenings.) — In the centre is the Marble Saloon, built by the Great Elector and richly decorated by Frederick the Great. It contains a ceiling-painting, four large allegorical paintings, and three bronze reliefs, referring to the achievements of the Great Elector. The adjoining Bronze Saloon, with its white panelled walls and mirrors adorned with charming bronze-gilt ornaments by J. M. Ramby and Schwitzer, is an admirable example of rococo decoration. Over the fireplace is a double portrait of King Frederick William I. and Augustus the Strong, by Silvestre. The handsome French clock opposite should be noticed. — Farther on are the Reception Rooms, containing paintings by Hasenpflug, Begas, Gudin, etc., and marble groups by F. Wolff and Möller. — In the S.W. corner is the so-called Russian Suite, used for distinguished guests.

In front of the palace, on the bank of the Havel, extends the Lustgarten, with a colonnade and fountain, decorated with statues of the early 18th century. Near the fountain are bronze busts of personages eminent at the period of the war of liberation, by Rauch. A bronze statue of Frederick William I. by Hilgers (a replica of that in the Berlin Arsenal) was erected here in 1885 on the side next the parade-ground, where he used to drill his gigantic grenadiers. The spring review of the garrison still takes place here.

To the N. of the palace is the ALTMARKT, in which is an Obelisk, 75 ft. in height, embellished with medallion portraits of the Great Elector and the first three kings of Prussia. On the E. side of the square is the Rathaus, built in 1753 in the Dutch style, with a gilded figure above the gable of Atlas bearing the globe.

The Church of St. Nicholas, in the Altmarkt, erected in 1830-37 from Schinkel's designs, a lofty edifice of cubical form with a dome added in 1842-50, contains a large fresco in the apse (Christ with the apostles and evangelists) by Schinkel, and four prophets by Cornelius in the spandrels of the vaulting under the dome. Fine view from the open colonnade of the dome. (Sacristan at the parsonage, adjoining the church on the right.)

The Garrison Church, 5 min. to the W. of the palace, was built by Gerlach in 1731-35. Adm. (see p. 191) in summer 10-6 by Portal B; in winter apply to the sacristan, Kiez-Str. 24. A vault behind the marble pulpit contains the remains of Frederick the Great and of his father Frederick William I., the founder of the church. In this church Frederick William III. and Alexander I. of Russia formed their friendly alliance on 4th Nov., 1805. The peal of bells in the tower chimes at the quarters. — To the N., in the Plantage, is a bronze replica of the statue of Frederick the Great, by Uphues (p. 142). To the W. is the large Military Orphanage, founded by Frederick William I. and rebuilt in 1771-78 by Gontard. Adjacent, in the Waisen-Str., is the Rechnungshof des Deutschen Reiches (built in 1904-7), where the budget of the German Empire is controlled.

The WILHELM-PLATZ, skirted by the tramway, is adorned with a Statue of Frederick William III., by Kiss (1845). — To the N.E., in the BASSIN-PLATZ, are the French Church, built by Knobelsdorff in 1752, and the Roman Catholic Church (1867-70). To the N. and W. of the square is the Dutch Quarter mentioned on p. 190. To the W., the Charlotten-Strasse, with numerous palatial buildings erected by Frederick the Great (see p. 192), and the Brandenburger-Strasse lead to the Brandenburg Gate; between these streets, in the Waisen-Str., is the Offizier-Casino, built by Schinkel in 1823-24.

The Brandenburg Gate ($1\frac{1}{2}$ M. from the rail. station; tramway see p. 191) was erected by Unger in 1770 in the form of a Roman triumphal arch. Outside the gate, in the Luisen-Platz, is a bronze Statue of Emperor Frederick III., in bronze, by Börmel (1903). To the S.W. of the Luisen-Platz extends the Brandenburg Suburb, with the station of Charlottenhof (p. 198). — The Hohenzollern-Str. leads to the N. to the main entrance of the Park of Sanssouci (p. 196; by the obelisk) and to the so-called Weinbergs-Tor, erected by Fred. William IV. in 1852 in honour of the return of his brother Prince William (afterwards Emp. William I.) from the campaign in Baden (1849). A few minutes farther a path diverging to the right from the Nauen road and passing through pretty grounds leads in $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. to the Neue Garten (p. 200).

The usual entrance, however, to the Park of Sanssouci is by the 'Green Railing', reached by an avenue bearing a little to the right from the Brandenburg Gate. On the right, in front of the gate-house (tickets for the Mausoleum, see below), rises the Friedens-Kirche, or Church of Peace, in the early-Christian basilica style, designed by Persius, and completed in 1850, the favourite building of Fred. William IV. The detached campanile is 130 ft. in height. In the Atrium (the 'paradise' of the ancient basilicas), in front of the church, stand Rauch's *Group of Moses, Aaron, and Hur, and (in the centre) a copy of Thorvaldsen's Risen Christ. To the S. of the atrium are cloisters, the entrance to which from the park is formed by a terracotta reproduction of the entrance to the abbey-church of Heilsbronn. In the cloisters are a few fragments of early-Christian sculptures.

The somewhat bare INTERIOR of the basilica, borne by sixteen Ionic columns in black marble, contains, in front of the chancel, the burial-vaults of Frederick William IV. (d. 1861) and his Queen Elizabeth (d. 1873). The apse is adorned with an old Venetian mosaic from the church of San Cipriano di Malamocco, representing Christ, Mary, and Peter on the right, and John the Baptist and St. Cyprian on the left.

On the N. side of the atrium is the Mausoleum of Emp. Frederick III. (adm., see p. 189; tickets in the gate-house, to the right), erected by Raschdorff in 1890 in imitation of the chapel of Innichen in Tyrol. The interior of the circular domed structure is supported by nine columns of labradorite. The marble *Sarcophagi of the emperor (d. 1888) and of Empress Victoria (d. 1901), and of their sons Waldemar and Sigismund, are by R. Begas. In the altar-niche is a Pietà* by Rietschel (845). The dome is embellished with mosaics of angels, after Ewald's designs.

Entering the Park of Sanssouci by the green gate, and bearing to the right round a corner, we soon reach a reduced marble replica of Rauch's equestrian statue of Frederick the Great (p. 58). Beyond it is the Great Fountain (p. 192), which rises to a height of 130 ft. The twelve figures surrounding the basin are French works of the 18th century. The Mercury and the Venus (copies; originals see p. 100), by Pigalle, were presented by Louis XV.; the figures of Hunting and Fishing are by Lambert Sigisbert Adam, and most of the others are by his brother François Gaspard Adam. To the N., in front of the fountain, is the porphyry bust of Duke Paolo Jordanzio of Bracciano, bought by Frederick the Great for 3000*l.* The fountain is situated in the broad main avenue, 1 $\frac{1}{4}$ M in length, which intersects the park from E. (Obelisk, p. 194) to W. (New Palace, p. 198).

A broad flight of steps, 66 ft. in height, intersected by six Terraces, on which Frederick the Great cultivated vines and choice fruit, ascends from the great fountain to the palace. On the highest terrace two elegant fountains throw up water in the form of bells. Frederick the Great's greyhounds are buried at the E. end of this terrace. The king expressed a wish to be buried at the foot of the statue of Flora here ('Quand je serai là, je serai sans souci').

The Palace of Sanssouci, a building of one story, 320 ft. in length and 39 ft. high, erected by Knobelsdorff for Frederick the Great from the king's own sketches in 1745-47, and that monarch's almost constant residence, stands on an eminence above the town. The terrace on the N. side is enclosed by a semicircular Corinthian colonnade. Frederick's rooms are still preserved almost unaltered; they are interesting on account of their rococo decorations as well as for their historical associations (adm., see p. 191; tickets obtained at the back of the palace).

The WEST WING contains Voltaire's Room, with interesting wood-carving and a porcelain bust of Voltaire ('immortalis'), and Fred. William IV's Rooms, in which he died in 1861. — In the CENTRAL BUILDING is the oval Dining Room, the S. side of which can be thrown open to the terrace. The figures of Apollo and Urania are by Fr. G. Adam (p. 193). The king's famous round table is well known from Menzel's painting (p. 92). — EAST WING. The Audience Room and the adjacent apartments are hung with admirable *Paintings by Watteau, Puter, and Lancrer, and contain handsome furniture. — The clock in the Concert Saloon, which Frederick was in the habit of winding up, is said to have stopped at the precise moment of his death (2.20 a.m., 17th Aug., 1786). The wall-paintings in this room are by Pesne; handsome ceiling. — Frederick the Great's Apartment. This room, in which he died, was reconstructed the same year by his successor. Graff's portrait of Frederick represents him at about the age of fifty-six. Marble *Statue by Magnussen (1898), representing the 'last moments of Frederick the Great'. In the alcove is a portrait of the king's mother, Sophia Dorothea, by Pesne. — The Library*, charmingly decorated in the rococo style in cedar-wood and gilt-bronze, contains a few antique busts, the best of which is one of Homer. Specimens of the king's handwriting and a drawing (design of the palace) by him. — The Gallery, with paintings by Watteau and his school, leads to the Purple Room, behind the dining-room, where our visit terminates.

The Picture Gallery, built in 1756, occupies a separate building to the E., the interior of which is lavishly decorated with stucco (adm., see p. 189; visitors are conducted by an attendant). It contains a few good works by Rubens (17. Holy Family), Van Dyck (8. Four Evangelists; 155. Cupid skating), Cranach, Cornelis van Haarlem, Hans Baldung Grien, and P. Molenaer. There are also several works by the two Van der Werffs, some good examples of Jan Brueghel (102. Vulcan's forge), and paintings by Pesne, Graff (53. Iffland the actor as Pygmalion), etc. A small room at the back contains a vase of bloodstone. — The Grotto of Neptune, a little to the E., is a relic of the rich architectonic decoration of the Park of Sanssouci in the reign of Frederick the Great (1761). In front of it stands a reproduction of the statue of Frederick by Uphues (p. 142).

From Sanssouci a path leads in ¼ hr. to the Ruinenberg, an eminence with artificial ruins (1748), beneath which is the reservoir for the fountains of Sanssouci. The water is pumped into it from the Havel by means of steam-engines. The tower (fee) commands a beautiful and extensive prospect. Rfmts. from the keeper.

The way to the Orangery leads to the W. from Sanssouci past the famous Windmill, the owner of which is said to have refused to sell it to Frederick the Great (now royal property). Near it a restaurant is under construction. To the right of the mill a path ascends to the Orangery (see below); to the left the Maulbeer-Allée runs to the New Palace (p. 198), dividing the Nordische Garten (right) from the Sizilianische Garten (left). In the latter are figures of a colossal archer, by Geyger, and of a Girl drawing water, by E. Wolff. To the W., beyond the terraces ascending to the Orangery, on the right of the Allée, is the Paradies-Garten, with a charming atrium in the Greek style (see p. 199).

The Orangery, an extensive structure in the Florentine style, 330 yds. in length, was completed in 1856 from plans by Hesse. The façade is embellished with allegorical statues, and in front of the central building is a marble statue of Fred. William IV., the founder, by Bläser (1873). On the terrace are five astronomical instruments from the Imperial Observatory at Peking, brought to Europe by the German troops in 1901. These magnificent specimens of Chinese bronze-casting are stated by the Jesuit Father Verbiest to have been executed by Chinese artists in 1673. Below are two ancient sarcophagi, used as fountain-troughs. The towers of the château command an extensive View.

The CENTRAL SALOON contains forty-eight Copies from Raphael and numerous modern sculptures. — MALACHITE SALOON: Thorvaldsen, Head of Antinous, and Head of a shepherd; Troschel, Bacchus; Cauer, Statuette of Fred. William IV. Paintings: O. Achenbach, Park near Frascati, etc. — AMBER ROOM: Rauch, Danaid*; good Berlin and Dresden china. — TORTOISE SHELL ROOM: E. Hildebrandt, Views in Palestine. Adm. see p. 189.

Beyond the W. wing of the Orangery we may descend to the left to the Paradies-Garten (shortest route to the New Palace, see p. 196). Straight on, beyond a ravine crossed by a bridge, are the Drachen-Häuschen (1769; rfmts.) and a Belvedere erected in 1770-72 by Unger (no adm.).

To the S. of the main avenue (comp. p. 195 and the Map, p. 190) are the Sea Horse Fountain, by Kiss, and the Japanese House, called the 'ape-saloon' by Frederick the Great (accessible in summer, p. 191). Farther on (best reached by the bridge at the beginning of the Lenné-Str. and past the porter's lodge) is the Roman Bath House (fee; closed in winter), containing a valuable bath of jasper, a copy of the antique mosaic of the Battle of Alexander, etc. — In 25 min. from the Orangery we reach the —

Charlottenhof, originally an unpretending country-house, but tastefully transformed by Schinkel in 1826 into an Italian villa and surrounded by beautiful grounds. The vestibule contains reliefs by Thorvaldsen, a bust of Schinkel by Rauch, etc. In one of the rooms is a chair of steel and silver, made by Peter the Great. Two rooms contain memorials of A. von Humboldt. (Castellan on the groundfloor; fee.) — The Wildpark Station (p. 190) is $\frac{3}{4}$ M. from here.

We now skirt the W. portion of the park of Sanssouci (generally closed to the public in summer and autumn) in order to visit the New Palace, which lies 1 M. from the Orangery, about $1\frac{1}{4}$ M. from the Charlottenhof, and $\frac{1}{2}$ M. from Wildpark Station. The —

New Palace, the summer-residence of the Emperor, was planned by Frederick the Great during the Seven Years' War as a visible proof of his power and wealth and was built by him in 1763-69 at a cost of 450,000*l*. The plans were furnished by J. G. Büding of Hamburg, who followed Dutch and English models.

The main building is 700 ft. in length, and the central portion, surmounted by a dome, has three stories. The chief façade is turned towards the E., overlooking the park. To the W., beyond the palace, are the Communs, the buildings intended as quarters for the royal retinue picturesquely designed by K. von Gontard, united by a semicircular colonnade. The palace and the commons together form an imposing pile, though the details are sometimes poorly executed. The sculptures are mediocre, but the effect of the weathered sandstone figures against the red brick background is very pleasing. Emperor Frederick III. was born in the palace in 1831, he resided in it for many years when crown-prince, and he died there in June 1888. William II. has thoroughly restored the building and has added a large terrace, with candelabra by Schott, on the side next the garden. Adm., see p. 191; entrance in the S. wing.

The INTERIOR contains about 200 rooms, the varied decoration of which speaks highly for the decorators employed by Frederick the Great, although inferior in execution to that of the rooms in the Town Palace. The rooms of the S. wing are shown; the N. wing contains the private rooms of the Emperor.—GROUND FLOOR. The library in the Apartments of Frederick the Great* contains a portrait of Voltaire drawn by the king; in the king's study is a good Watteau (Dance in the open air). The Shell Saloon* is inlaid with shells, the friezes with minerals and precious stones. The tasteful Theatre has seats for 500 persons.—On the FIRST FLOOR are numerous old pictures. In the Marble or Concert Room (100 ft. long): Van Loo, Ganymede introduced to Olympus (ceiling-painting), Sacrifice of Iphigenia; Pesne, Rape of Helen.—In the Ball Room: G. Reni, Lucretia, Diogenes; L. Giordano, Judgment of Paris, Rape of the Sabines.

In a garden to the N.E. of the New Palace (closed) rises a Marble Statue of Empress Augusta Victoria, by R. Begas (1905). To the E., on the left and right of the main avenue (p. 197), are the Antiken-Tempel, where Frederick the Great preserved antique works, and the Temple of Friendship, erected by Gontard for Frederick the Great in memory of his sister the Margravine of Bayreuth (d. 1758), with her statue.

To the W. of Wildpark Station (p. 198) is the entrance to the pretty WILDPARK, in which Frederick William IV. erected the Bayrische Häuschen for his consort Elizabeth, a Bavarian princess (3 M. from the station; rfmts.).

TO THE N. OF POTSDAM, about $\frac{1}{2}$ M. from the Nauener Tor (tramway to the Allée-Strasse, p. 191), is the colony of Alexandrowka, consisting of fourteen log-houses and a Greek chapel, built in 1826 by Frederick William III. for the Russian musicians who were at that time attached to the 1st Regiment of Guards.

On the Pfingstberg*, which we reach in 20 min. from the tramway terminus, rises a handsome ornamental building, with two towers which afford an extensive view of the environs, with Berlin, Spandau, Nauen, and Brandenburg in the distance, most striking by evening-light. A carriage-road ascends to the summit of the hill. The castellan lives in the N.E. tower (fee).—To the N., about $2\frac{1}{2}$ M. from the Pfingstberg, is the village of Nedlitz (several restaurants; steamboat, see p. 189), opposite which is the Römer-Schanze (p. 189; ferry); to the N.E. (direction-board) of the Pfingstberg the Meierei (see below) may be reached in $\frac{1}{4}$ hr.

To the E. of Alexandrowka (see above) lies the NEUE GARTEN, or New Garden, notable for its fine examples of foreign trees. In its E. part, on the Heilige-See, rises the pretty—

Marble Palace, begun in 1786 by Gontard, continued in 1788-96 by K. G. Langhans, and completed in 1845. Emp. William II. occupied this palace (1881-88) before his accession; since 1905 it has been a summer residence of the Crown Prince and is no longer accessible to the public.

In the COURT, in front of the palace, Prometheus, by E. Wolff. In the ARCADES, scenes from the Niebelungenlied and views of the Rhine and the Danube by Kolbe and Hesse. The INTERIOR contains marble sculptures by Rauch, Tassaert, E. Wolff, and Troschel, and pictures by Hackert and others. In the Oriental Cabinet is a costly table, presented by Empress Catherine II. of Russia to Frederick the Great. — In the Dining-Room are marble busts of Emp. William II. and the Empress Frederick, by R. Begas.

In the N. angle of the park lies the Meierei, or dairy (rfmts.); ferry to the woods between Sakrow and the Römer-Schanze, see p. 189; steamboats, see p. 191. Attractive footpath hence, skirting the Jungfern-See, past Kongsnds, a boatmen's station built in the Norwegian style, to the Glienicke Bridge ($\frac{1}{2}$ hr.; see below).

TO THE E. OF POTSDAM we ferry from the Holzmarkt-Str., outside the Berliner Tor, to Babelsberg (see below). The Neue Königs-Strasse, which begins at the Berliner Tor, passes the Barracks of the Hussar Guards (right) and of the Gardes du Corps (left) to the Glienicke Bridge (Kaiser-Friedrich-Brücke; tramway, see pp. 189, 202). The bronze groups in front of the latter barracks (soldiers of the regiment leading horses) are by Kiss.

Near Klein-Glienicke, to the left beyond the bridge, is the Palace of Prince Frederick Leopold, built for Prince Charles (d. 1883), the prince's grandfather, by Schinkel. The park is not accessible. At the corner near the Glienicke Bridge is a rotunda, built by Schinkel in imitation of the Monument of Lysicrates at Athens.

Following the Babelsberg road, which leads the right, we soon reach the Hunting Château of Glienicke, originally built in 1678 by the Great Elector, restored and enlarged in 1856 by Prince Frederick Charles (d. 1885) and subsequently by his son, Prince Frederick Leopold (no admittance). — The bay of the Havel, on which the château lies, is connected by the Teltow Canal with the Griebnitz-See, to the E. — In the village there are piers near the Bürgershof Restaurant and near the canal-bridge, of the steamers to the Neu-Babelsberg station (p. 189).

To the S. of the canal bridge is the principal entrance to the park and the Schloss of Babelsberg, a visit to which occupies 1½ hr. Numerous stones with way-marks.

The picturesque Château of Babelsberg was erected in the English Gothic style by Schinkel in 1835, and extended in 1843-49 by Strack. It stands in a beautiful park, laid out by Prince Pückler. The interior of the château is simply but tastefully decorated in the unassuming style which prevailed in Germany about the middle of last century. Emp. William I. used to spend the latter half of the summer here, and his study and bedroom as well as the reception rooms are shown to visitors. The walls are hung with numerous works of art, mainly of the early Berlin and Düsseldorf schools. Memorials of the campaigns of 1849, 1864, 1866, and 1870-71 are also preserved here. The N. windows command charming views. — In front of the palace, to the right, is the Gerhard Fountain, presented by the architects of Cologne Cathedral; and behind the palace is a monument with the Archangel Michael, by Kiss.

A walk through the park is recommended (guide-posts). To the S.W. stands the Gerichts-Laube, a Gothic portico originally belonging to the old Rathaus in Berlin. To the S. rises the Flatow-Turm, a copy of the Eschenheimer Tor tower at Frankfurt, erected in 1856 and commanding a fine *View of Potsdam and the environs, across the broad expanse of the Havel in the foreground (shown by the castellan; fee). — To the E. of the tower is the Feldherrn-Bank, with bronze busts of generals of 1870-71; a little higher up is a Column of Victory (fine view). — Ferry to the Holzmarkt-Str. from the S.W. corner of the park (15 min.; 10 pf.).

TO THE S. OF POTSDAM rises the wooded Brauhausberg, which may be easily ascended in ¼ hr. from the railway-station by crossing the bridge over the line and skirting the Schützen-Platz to the right. On the Brauhausberg stand the Military School and, to the W., a Belvedere (10 pf.; keeper in the tower in fine weather), commanding a fine *View. The Wackermannshöhe Restaurant, a little lower, also has a good view.

Farther to the S., on the Telegraphenberg, are three government scientific institutions, with conspicuous domes. The Astro-Physical Observatory, usually known as the 'Sonnenwarte', is an admirably-equipped institution, opened in 1878 (adm. Frid., 3-6; visitors are conducted by the castellan; director, Dr. Schwarzschild). The new double refracting telescope, with object-glass 20 inches in diameter for ocular observations, and 31½ inches in diameter for photographic purposes, is the largest but two of instruments of the kind. The other institutions are the Meteorological-Magnetic Observatory (comp. p. 159; director, Prof. Schmidt) and the Geodetic Institute (director, Prof. Helmert) in which is the central office for the international measurement of the earth.

Other pleasant points in the neighbourhood of Potsdam are the for-ester's house of Templin (restaurant), on the Havel, a drive of $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. or walk of $1\frac{1}{4}$ hr. (steamer, see p. 191), and the village of Caputh, $\frac{1}{4}$ hr. farther on, behind which rise the Kröhenberge (views). We may cross the Havel at Caputh and proceed to ($\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) Baumgartenbrück (restaurant), at the point where the Havel emerges from the Schwieelow-See, about $5\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the S.W. of Potsdam.

The orchard-covered hills beside the little town of Werder (6900 inhab.) afford charming views, especially when the fruit-trees are in blossom. One of the best points of view is the Bismarckhöhe Restaurant. The town, which lies on a small island, $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. from the station (tramway), is reached by the suburban trains from the Potsdam Station in Berlin; steamers, see p. 191. A bronze statue of Emp. Frederick III., by Arnoldt, was erected here in 1904. A ferry plies to the opposite bank of the Havel, a point which may be reached in $1\frac{1}{4}$ hr. by a pleasant road from Wildpark Station.

Cycling Route. FROM BERLIN TO POTSDAM, $18\frac{1}{2}$ M., by a good and generally level road. Start from the Schloss-Platz (prohibited streets, see p. 43). — 4 M. Schöneberg. — 5 M. Friedenau. — $6\frac{1}{4}$ M. Steglitz. — $9\frac{1}{2}$ M. Zehlendorf, beyond which wood is traversed. — 13 M. Wannsee. — Beyond the kilometre-stone 21.9 ($13\frac{1}{2}$ M.) we keep straight on via the (16 M.) Böttcher-Berg to the ($16\frac{1}{4}$ M.) Glienicke Bridge, which must be crossed on foot. — $18\frac{1}{2}$ M. Potsdam (Altmarkt), p. 195.

Return-route (20 M.). — $11\frac{1}{4}$ M. Glienicke Bridge (dismount). — At kilometre-stone 26.2 turn to the left and then skirt the Havel. — At kilometre-stone 21.9 (see above) turn to the left. — 7 M. Wannsee. — Turning to the left at kilometre-stone 20.4 (before the railway-line), proceed through the Grunewald. — $11\frac{1}{2}$ M. The Stern. — 13 M. Hundekehle (dismount). — $13\frac{1}{4}$ M. Grunewald-Halensee. — Thence via the Kurfürsten-Damm, past the Emp. William Memorial Church (keep to the right), across the Cornelius-Brücke, and via the Hitzig-Str. and the Tiergarten-Str. to the (20 M.) Brandenburg Gate.

15. Spandau and Tegel.

The Upper Spree and the Dahme.

SPANDAU AND TEGEL. — Spandau may be reached by the Nauen suburban trains from the Lehrte Station ($7\frac{1}{2}$ M.) via Fürstenbrunn Station, or by the trains of the Stadtbahn (p. 13) via Heerstrasse Station (p. 184).

Spandau (Hôtel Kaiserhof, near the station; Restaurant Pohrt, Breite-Str. 32; Restaurant Havel-Terrassen, at the Charlotten-Brücke), a town with 70,300 inhab. formerly fortified, at the confluence of the Spree and the Havel, has large military workshops. Beyond the Charlotten-Brücke is a bronze Statue of Emp. Frederick III., by Manthe (1892); in front of the Nicolai-Kirche is a bronze Statue of Elector Joachim II., by Encke (1889), commemorating the elector's adoption of Protestantism here in 1539; near the garrison-church is an equestrian statue of Emp. William I., by Dörenbach (1909); at the beginning of the Neustadt is a Monument to Bismarck, by G. Meyer (1901); and outside the former Fehrbellin gate is a statue of pioneer Klinke, who fell in 1864 at Düppel, by Wandschneider (1908). — The imperial military reserve fund of six millions sterling is kept in the Julius-Turm of the citadel, to the N.E. of the town. About 1 M. to the E. of the station is a trotting race-course.

TRAMWAYS: to the S. to Pichelsdorf, on the right bank of the Havel opposite the Grunewald (p. 186); to the N. to the Stadtpark Restaurant and to Hakenfelde, both on the margin of the pleasant Bürgerheide; to the E. via Haselhorst to the Nonnendamm, to the S.E. to the Spandauer Bock, near the Grunewald (p. 186).

STEAMERS ON THE LOWER HAVEL, from the Charlotten-Brücke ($\frac{1}{2}$ M. from the station) on week-days 6 times, Sun. 12 times daily to Pichelswerder (p. 187; 20 pf.), Schildhorn, Gatow, Kaiser Wilhelm-Turm (30 pf.), Lindwerder, Wannsee (p. 189; 50 pf.), Pfauen-Insel, Moorlake, Sakrow, Glienicke Bridge (p. 200), and Potsdam (Lange-Brücke, 80 pf.); comp. p. 191. — ON THE UPPER HAVEL, from the garrison-church ($\frac{1}{4}$ M. from the station) frequent trips are made to Heiligensee, and via Tegelort or Saatwinkel to Tegel (in 50 min.; 30 pf.; comp. below).

The suburban trains on the Lehrte line go on beyond Spandau via Seegefeld to Finkenkrug. The popular Finkenkrug Restaurant, $\frac{3}{4}$ hr. from the station, is situated in the Brieselang*, the only considerable forest of foliage-trees now left near Berlin.

CYCLING ROUTE. From Berlin to Finkenkrug, $25\frac{1}{2}$ M., a pleasant excursion through wood; start from the Brandenburger Tor (prohibited streets, see p. 43). — $4\frac{1}{2}$ M. Schloss Charlottenburg; ascent to Westend. — $6\frac{1}{4}$ M. Spandauer Bock; rapid descent. — $8\frac{3}{4}$ M. Spandau (from the market-place to the right, via Potsdamer-Str. and Schönwalder-Str.). — 10 M. Fehrbelliner Tor. — $10\frac{2}{3}$ M. Stadtpark Restaurant. — 15 M. Schwanenkrug. — 20 M. Pausin; here to the left. — $22\frac{1}{2}$ M. Brieselang Colony. — 25 M. Finkenkrug. — Thence to Falkenberg and (to the right) the station of Seegefeld ($3\frac{3}{4}$ M.).

STEAMERS FROM SPANDAU TO TEGEL, starting near the Garrison Church (30 pf.) ply frequently across the broad Havel to the pleasure-resorts of Tegelort (to the N.) and Saatwinkel, and then cross the wood-girt Tegeler See, which branches off towards the N.E., to Tegel. — FROM BERLIN, Tegel may be reached by tramway (see p. 16; Nos. 25, 26, 31), or by railway (8 M.; suburban service on the Kremmen line, from the Stettin Station). Stations: $1\frac{1}{4}$ M. Gesundbrunnen (p. 168); 3 M. Pankow (p. 168); $3\frac{3}{4}$ M. Schönholz (comp. p. 168); 5 M. Reinickendorf (31,000 inhab.), with numerous factories; $6\frac{1}{4}$ M. Wittenau (Dalldorf, 8300 inhab.), with the large Berlin Lunatic and Idiot Asylum (tramway No. 28, p. 16); 8 M. Tegel.

Tegel (Restaurants: Strandschloss, Kaiser-Pavillon, both on the lake) is a village with 19,300 inhabitants. To the S. are Borsig's Engine Factory (comp. p. 167) and the large Gas Works. To the N. ($\frac{1}{4}$ hr. from the station) is Schloss Tegel (Schloss Restaurant), rebuilt by Schinkel in 1822 in the style of a Roman villa. Formerly owned by the Humboldt family, it now belongs to the allied family of Heinz. The house contains plaster casts and a number of original antique sculptures (adm. in the absence of the family; fee). In the park (adm. 25 pf.) are the graves of William (d. 1835) and Alexander (d. 1859) von Humboldt, marked by a replica of Thorvaldsen's statue of Hope (in the château). To the S. of the park, on the lake, is the Kurhaus Schloss Tegel. Numerous pleasant walks in the woods of the vicinity.

After flowing through two lakes of some size, the Spree unites at Köpenick with the Dahme, the lower course of which is pretty broad, and thence flows towards the Oberbaum-Brücke (p. 171) under the name of Upper Spree (Oberspree). This reach is the chief resort of boating parties from Berlin, and the settlements on its wooded banks are very popular (served by the suburban trains on the Silesian and Görlitz lines).

A STEAMBOAT TRIP ON THE UPPER SPREE is recommended (p. 24), especially as it also affords an opportunity of estimating Berlin's importance as an industrial centre. Beyond the Süd-Ring (p. 13) the steamer touches at Stralau (left) and Treptow (right; comp. p. 171), adjoined by the Eierhäuschen. Then, opposite each other, are the manufacturing towns of Ober-Schöneeweide (on the left; 19,500 inhab.), with a cable factory of the Allgemeine Elektrizitäts Gesellschaft (p. 168), and Nieder-Schöneeweide (on the right; 5800 inhab.). The stations mentioned on p. 24 are restaurants; railway-stations see below. To the right, belonging to Köpenick, is Spindlersfeld, the large cleaning and dyeing establishment of Messrs. Spindler (pp. 162, 205). — The voyage ends at Köpenick (Ratskeller Restaurant; 27,000 inhab.), a thriving town, with the château (now a normal school) in which Frederick the Great, when crown-prince, was tried by court-martial in 1730. Tramway from the railway-station (see below) through the town to Kolonie Wendenschloss (opposite Grünau, p. 205), a convenient approach to the Müggel-Berge (p. 205).

SILESIA RAILWAY TO ERKNER (from the platform of the Stadtbahn). — $1\frac{1}{4}$ M. (from the Silesian Station) Stralau-Rummelsburg. Stralau, see p. 171; Rummelsburg, p. 169. — $4\frac{1}{2}$ M. Karlsborst, a villa-colony, with a steeplechase course (p. 30); $1\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the S. is Ober-Schöneeweide (see above). — $7\frac{1}{2}$ M. Köpenick, see above. — $9\frac{1}{2}$ M. Friedrichshagen (Ratskeller Restaurant; Hôt.-Restaurant Bellevue, on the lake; steamer, see p. 24), a village with 13,200 inhab., founded by Frederick the Great, to whom a bronze statue, by Görling, was erected here in 1904. On the N. bank of the Müggel-See, where sailing regattas frequently take place, are the Berlin waterworks and a royal institute for fresh-water fishery.

A tramway runs from the station to the (1 M.) efflux of the Spree from the lake. On the other side is the Müggel-Schlösschen Restaurant, whence we may proceed, passing the Teufels-See (restaurant), to the (1 hr.) Müggel-Berge (see below).

15 M. Erkner (Railway Restaurant) is a village situated between the Dämeritz-See and the Flaken-See. — Rüdersdorf is visited hence by steamer in $\frac{3}{4}$ hr. (fare 35 pf.). The steamer crosses the Flaken-See to the summer-resort of Woltersdorfer Schleuse (Hôt. zum Kranichsberg; steamer to Berlin, see p. 24), situated in the woods. View-tower on the Kranichsberg. We change steamers here and proceed on the Kalk-See to Kalkberge Rüdersdorf (Restaurant zur Traube), with large limestone quarries. Pleasant walks in the grounds laid out on the heaps of débris; view-tower. — From the railway station of Rüdersdorf ($\frac{3}{4}$ hr. to the N.) a branch-line runs to (3 M.) Fredersdorf (p. 210).

Another pleasant route from Erkner to the Kalkberge is as follows. We cross the Flakensee (Woltersdorf Lock) by motor boat (8 times daily) and then on the Löcknitz and the adjoining lakes (Werls-See, Peetz-See), between the pleasant colonies of the Werlsee-Gemeinde, reach ($\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) Alt-Buchhorst (restaurant; the Fangschleuse Station, $\frac{3}{4}$ hr. to the S.W., is on the Silesian suburban railway). Thence on foot we traverse fine wood to the N. viâ Dorf Rüdersdorf to ($\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) Kalkberge Rüdersdorf.

Cycling Route. FROM BERLIN TO THE MÜGGELEESE AND BACK, a circular tour of $33\frac{1}{2}$ M. Start from the Silesian Gate. — To ($\frac{4}{2}$ M.) Nieder-Schöneeweide, see p. 204. Turning to the left at the station, we proceed viâ Spindlersfeld to (7 M.) Köpenick. Beyond the bridge over the Dahme at Köpenick turn to the left, then, beyond the bridge over the Spree, at kilomètre-stone 11.6, and again at kil. stone 12, to the right. — $8\frac{1}{4}$ M. Hirschgarten, a group of villas. — 10 M. Friedrichshagen, where we keep to the right. — $12\frac{3}{4}$ M. Rahnsdorfer Mühle, another group of villas. — At kil. stone 25 ($15\frac{1}{2}$ M.) to the right through Erkner and Neu-Buchhorst. — 18 M. Neu-Zittau; here to the right. Beyond ($19\frac{3}{4}$ M.) Gosen, the Seddin-See appears on the left. — $22\frac{1}{4}$ M. Müggelheim. A road to the Müggel-Berge (see below) diverges to the left, 2 M. farther on. — $26\frac{1}{4}$ M. Kietz-Köpenick. — 29 M. Nieder-Schöneeweide, see p. 201. — $33\frac{1}{2}$ M. Berlin (Silesian Gate).

GÖRLITZ RAILWAY TO KÖNIGS-WUSTERHAUSEN (suburban service; to Nieder-Schöneeweide or Grünau also from the local stations of the Staatsbahn, N. platform). — 3 M. (from the Silesian and Görlitz stations) Baumschulenvweg; Späth's Nursery, 1 M. to the S., is the largest in Europe. — $4\frac{1}{2}$ M. Nieder-Schöneeweide (p. 204); branch-line to ($\frac{2}{2}$ M.) Spindlersfeld (p. 204).

$8\frac{1}{2}$ M. Grünau (Gesellschaftshaus Restaurant; steamer to Schmöckwitz and Zeuthen, see p. 24) is a villa-colony, pleasantly situated on the Dahme, on which sailing and rowing regattas are held (comp. p. 30). About $\frac{1}{4}$ hr. upstream is a monument to Emp. William I. (restaurant near it). Pleasant walks lead through the woods on the opposite bank (ferry from Kolonie Wendenschloss, p. 204) to the ($\frac{3}{4}$ hr.) Müggel-Berge (several restaurants), $\frac{1}{4}$ hr. to the N. of the steamboat station. The Bismarck Tower commands a fine view (to the N. the Müggel-See and Friedrichshagen, p. 210). —

12 M. Eichwalde. The village of Schmöckwitz (Palme Restaurant), $\frac{3}{4}$ hr. to the E., is prettily situated between the Lange-See, the Seddin-See, and the Zeuthener See. — 13 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. Zeuthen (Seglerschloss Restaurant) is a colony of villas on the Zeuthener See, frequented by boating and sailing parties. — 15 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. Wildau.

17 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. Königs-Wusterhausen (Hôtel Pfuhl, at the station), a village on the Notte, with a Royal Shooting Lodge, famous as the meeting-place of King Frederick William I.'s 'Tobacco Parliament'. The house contains various memorials of that king (portraits of his gigantic grenadiers painted by himself, etc.) and also of Emp. William I. On the Dahme, 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the E. of the station, is the pleasure resort of Neue Mühle (steamer, see p. 24).

Cycling Route. FROM BERLIN TO KÖNIGS-WUSTERHAUSEN, 18 $\frac{1}{4}$ M. Beyond Nieder-Schöneeweide the road is good and level; numerous woods. Start from the Silesian Gate. — 1 $\frac{1}{4}$ M. Treptow; riders must dismount before the village. — 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. Paved road, where riding is prohibited. 4 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. Nieder-Schöneeweide. To Köpenick, see p. 204. Our route lies straight on. 6 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. Adlershof. — 8 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. Grünau. — 15 $\frac{1}{4}$ M. Zeuthen. — 18 $\frac{1}{4}$ M. Königs-Wusterhausen, whence a trip may be taken to Neue Mühle (to the left before the station).

Return-route: 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. Waltersdorf. — 10 $\frac{1}{4}$ M. Rudow. — 14 $\frac{3}{4}$ M. Rixdorf — 17 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. Berlin (Halle Gate).

16. Longer Excursions from Berlin.

The long distance trains call only at the termini of the suburban service, not at the intermediate stations, with the exception (for the routes described below) of Gesundbrunnen, Spandau, and Nieder-Schöneeweide.

a. EBERSWALDE. CHORIN. FREIENWALDE. — Railway (Stettin line; suburban service to Bernau, comp. p. 13) to Freienwalde, 40 M., in 2 hrs.; special trains on Sun. in summer. — 3 M. Pankow-Schönhausen (p. 168). — 9 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. Buch (6000 inhab.), with a lunatic asylum and other hospitals of the city of Berlin. — 14 $\frac{1}{4}$ M. Bernau (Kaiserhof), a town of 9500 inhab., with remains of the old town wall, noted for its determined resistance to the Hussites in 1432. — 20 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. Biesenthal. The little town (2800 inhab.) lies 2 $\frac{1}{4}$ M. to the W. of the station.

About 3 M. to the W. of the town is Lanke (Hôtel-Restaurant Schlosspark), with a château and park of Count Redern. Thence we may go on through fine woods to (1 $\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Uetzdorf (restaurant) and skirt the pretty Liepnitz-See to the (3 M.) restaurant at its W. extremity. At Wandlitz Station, 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. from the restaurant, we may join the branch-line of the Nord-Bahn (p. 209), beginning at Reinickendorf. Motor-car trips see p. 24; cycling route, p. 210.

28 M. Eberswalde (Deutsches Haus, R. 2-3, B. 1, D. 2 M., well spoken of; Pinnow, at the station; Railway Restaurant), a busy town with 23,850 inhab., situated on the Finow Canal, which here receives the Schwärze, is the seat of a school of forestry. The well-wooded neighbourhood attracts numerous visitors in summer.—A pleasant walk leads to the S., viâ the Schützenhaus (restaurant and view-tower) and Kurhaus Gesundbrunnén (with the Königsquelle) to the ($2\frac{1}{4}$ M.) Zainhammer Restaurant, whence we may go on to the Wasserfall Restaurant, to Spechthausen (restaurant), and the Nonnenfließ.—Cycling route to Eberswalde, see p. 210.

The second station beyond Eberswalde is ($35\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Chorinchen, about $\frac{3}{4}$ M. to the E. of which lies Amt Chorin* (Neue Klosterschenke), a former Cistercian monastery, founded about 1258. The ruined abbey-church, a brick basilica in the purest early-Gothic style, is the most interesting mediæval building in the Mark of Brandenburg. The monastery is surrounded by fine woods.

FROM EBERSWALDE TO FÜRSTENBERG, $48\frac{1}{2}$ M., branch-line in $3\frac{1}{2}$ -4 hrs. — 11 M. Werbellinsee. About 6 M. to the S., in the Schorfheide, near the Werbellin-See, lies the royal shooting-lodge of Hubertusstock.—For details see Baedeker's Northern Germany.

We leave the Stettin main line at Eberswalde and take the branch-line, viâ ($36\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Falkenberg (Hôtel Kettlitz), a favourite summer-resort, to—40 M. Freienwalde (Hôt. Schertz, R. 2-3, B. 1 M, well spoken of), a town with 8300 inhab., charmingly situated on the verge of the Oderbruch. The wooded hills which rise behind it dispute with those near Buckow (p. 210) the title of the Markish Switzerland* (Märkische Schweiz). The tower on the Wilhelmshöhe and the Ruinenberg command beautiful views. A weak chalybeate spring, rising in the Brunntal (Brunnen-Hotel, Hôtel Bellevue), $\frac{3}{4}$ M. to the S. of the town, was used by the Great Elector. The Restaurant zur Grünen Tanne, a little farther to the S., is the starting-point for pretty walks through the woods: to the Baa-See, 1 hr.; to the Bismarck-Turm (Schweizerhaus Restaurant) and Falkenberg (see above), $1\frac{1}{4}$ or 2 hrs.

CYCLING ROUTE. From Bernau to Freienwalde (viâ Liepnitz-See, Biesenthal, Eberswalde), 36 M., a pleasant excursion through wood. Start from Bernau Station.— $\frac{3}{4}$ M. from the Mühlentor (N.), straight on.— $2\frac{1}{2}$ M. Waldkater (restaurant).— $6\frac{1}{4}$ M., at kilomètre-stone 32.4, digression to the right to Rest. Liepnitz.— $7\frac{1}{2}$ M., near Wandlitz Station, to the right, and at kilomètre-stone 30.7 again to the right.— $8\frac{3}{4}$ M. Arendsee.— $11\frac{1}{4}$ M. Ützdorf.—13 M. Lanke.— $15\frac{1}{2}$ M. Biesenthal.—($17\frac{1}{4}$ M. Biesenthal Station). To the left at kilomètre-stone 2.4.— $18\frac{3}{4}$ M. Melchow.— $22\frac{1}{2}$ M. Spechthausen.— $24\frac{1}{4}$ M. Gesundbrunnen.— $25\frac{1}{2}$ M. Eberswalde (market-place); here to the right (Breite-Str.).—26 M., at the crossing turn to the left.— $27\frac{1}{2}$ M. Sommerfeld.— $28\frac{3}{4}$ M. Tornow.— $30\frac{1}{2}$ M. Hohen-Finow.—32 M. Falkenberg.—34 M. Schweizerhaus (Bismarck-Turm).—36 M. Freienwalde.

b. BRANDENBURG. Travellers who are interested in the mediæval art of the Mark (of which there are comparatively few examples in Berlin itself; comp. p. 52) should not fail to devote a day to Brandenburg. Railway in $1-1\frac{1}{2}$ hr. (fares 5 M 30, 3 M 50, 2 M 20 pf., or 4 M 80 pf., 3 M, 1 M 95 pf.) viâ Potsdam (p. 191), Werder (p. 202), and Grosskreutz. From the last a branch-line runs to (7 M.) Lehmin, which has a monastic church of the 12th-13th centuries (restored).

38 M. Brandenburg (Schwarzer Bär, Stein-Str., Schwarzer Adler, St. Annen-Str., both very fair; Railway Restaurant), a town with 51,900 inhab., is divided by the Havel into an Old Town, a New Town, and the Cathedral Island. Under the name of Brennabor it was the chief town of the Slavonic Hevelli. It was captured in 927 by King Henry I., and in 1150 by Albert the Bear, who thenceforward styled himself Margrave of Brandenburg. From 949 to 1544 the town was the seat of a bishop.

From the railway-station (tramway) we proceed viâ the Schützen-Str., the Annentor Bridge, and the St. Annen-Str. to the ($\frac{3}{4}$ M.) Rathaus, which dates from the 15th century. In front of the Rathaus stands a Roland Column, 16 $\frac{1}{2}$ ft. in height, the ancient emblem among the Lower Saxons of free market rights. — A little to the W. is ST. CATHERINE'S CHURCH*, a handsome Gothic brick edifice without transepts, of which the nave was built in 1381-1401, the choir about 1410, and the W. tower in 1583-85. The carved wooden altar (restored) dates from 1474; one of the N. chapels contains a brazen font of 1440 (sacristan, Katharinen-Kirch-Platz 4). — From the Rathaus we proceed viâ the market-place and the Mühlendamm to the —

CATHEDRAL* (sacristan, Zielgasse 52, to the S.), a Romanesque columnar basilica of about 1200, converted in the 15th cent. into a Gothic church with a vaulted roof, and frequently restored. On the walls of the interior are numerous tombstones. The choir contains an altar of 1518 and portions of another of 1375. The elaborately adorned columns and the excellent sculptures in the Romanesque crypt should be noticed. The S. transept contains a small museum.

We now cross the Grillendamm to the old town, where the most interesting buildings are the Gotthards-Kirche (13th-15th cent.) and the former Altstadt Rathaus (15th cent.).

The Marienberg, to the N.W. of the town, commands a good view (tower 98 ft. in height, erected in 1880 as a monument of victory from Stier's designs); tramway from the Rathaus to the Plauer Tor.

Amongst other towns of interest to the student of mediæval art in the Mark are Stendal and Tangermünde, Chorin (p. 207), Königsberg in der Neumark, and also Havelberg and Lehnin (p. 207). For details as to these, and for farther information about Brandenburg, see Baedeker's Northern Germany.

c. NEU-RUPPIN. — Railway in 1 $\frac{3}{4}$ -2 $\frac{1}{3}$ hrs., either by the Hamburg line (47 $\frac{1}{2}$ M.) or the Kremmen line (40 $\frac{1}{2}$ M.). — By the Hamburg line to Spandau and (14 M.) Finkenkrug, see p. 203 (suburban service to Nauen, see p. 13). — 30 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. Paulinenaue. A branch-line runs hence to Neu-Ruppin, viâ (40 $\frac{1}{4}$ M.) Fehrbellin (Deutsches Haus), 4 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the N.W. of the village of Hakenberg, where the Great Elector defeated the Swedes in 1675. A column, 105 ft. in height, with a figure of Victory and a relief portrait of the Great Elector by A. Wolff, was erected here in 1879. View of the battlefield from the top.—48 M. Neu-Ruppin, see below.

The Kremmen line starts from the Stettin Station (see p. 13).—As far as (8 M.) Tegel, see p. 203.—15½ M. Velten, with numerous stove-factories. At (23 M.) Kremmen (2800 inhab.) we change carriages.—33 M. Radensleben is the station for the village of Wustrau, situated 1¾ M. to the W., at the S.E. angle of the Rupiner See (8 M. in length). Hans Joachim von Zieten (d. 1786), the well-known general of Frederick the Great, is buried in the church here.—The railway crosses the lake to—40½ M. Neu-Ruppin (Märkischer Hof, R. 2-3, B. ¾, D. 1½ M); Krone, both in the Friedrich-Wilhelm-Strasse), a town with 18,600 inhabitants. About 4 min. from the station a statue of Theodor Fontane, the poet (1819-98), by Wiese, was unveiled in 1907. A Monument to Fred. William II., by Tieck, commemorates that monarch's contribution towards rebuilding the town after a conflagration in 1787. Another monument, by Wiese, commemorates Karl Fried. Schinkel (1781-1841; p. 49), who was born here. On the lake stands the Abbey Church, a 13th cent. Gothic edifice of brick, restored by Schinkel.—The so-called Ruppin Switzerland*, a hilly district with beech-woods and several lakes, is one of the prettiest parts of the Mark. On Sun. afternoons in summer (sometimes in the morning also) a steamboat plies to the forester's house of Tornow (rfmts.). Visits may also be paid to the forester's house of Rottstiel, to the Bolten-Mühle on the Tornow-See, and to Binenwalde on the Kalk-See.

d. RHEINSBERG. Railway from the Stettin Station, 52 M. in 2½ hrs. (Nordbahn: suburban service as far as Oranienburg, comp. p. 13).—4½ M. Reinickendorf-Rosenthal. Branch-line hence to Liebenwalde and Gross-Schönebeck (comp. Wandlitz, p. 206); Reinickendorf, see p. 201.—8 M. Hermisdorf, with 44,000 inhab. lies at the beginning of the wood which stretches hence far beyond Oranienburg and attracts many visitors.—14 M. Birkenwerder (Boddensee Restaurant). About 1½ M. to the N.E., near Kolonie Briese (restaurant) begins an imperial shooting-preserve.—18 M. Oranienburg (Hôtel Eilers, R. from 2, B. ¾, D. 1½ M), with 10,650 inhab., is situated on the Havel. A monument, by Fr. Wolff, in front of the château (now a normal school), commemorates Princess Louise Henriette of Orange (d. 1667), to whom the town owes its name, wife of the Great Elector.—From (28½ M.) Löwenberg, where we change carriages, we take a branch-line viâ (41½ M.) Lindow to—

52 M. Rheinsberg (Ratskeller; Kronprinz, R. 1½ M), a town with 2600 inhab., situated at the efflux of the Rhin from the Grinerick-See. The château, purchased by Frederick William I. in 1734, was the residence of Frederick the Great as crown-prince in 1736-40, a bronze statue of whom, by Elster, was erected here in 1903. From 1753 to 1802 it was occupied by Prince Henry, Frederick's brother. It has ceiling-paintings by Pesne and retains some memorials of its former owners; the sculptures in the park are in poor preservation. — The woods on the N., extending to the borders of Mecklenburg, include extensive stretches of deciduous trees and several large lakes. Drives may be taken to the hamlets of Zechlin, Zechliner Hütte, and Neu-Globsow.

Cycling Routes. FROM BERLIN TO ORANIENBURG, 19½ M. Rough paved road to Dalldorf; thence a mediocre road. We start from the Schloss-Platz (prohibited streets, see p. 43) — 5¼ M. Lunatic asylum of Dalldorf (p. 203). — 7 M. Wittenau. At kil. stone 11.8 (7¼ M.), keep to the left. — 9 M. Hermendorf. — 9¾ M. Glienicke. — 13 M. Stolpe-Hohen-Neuendorf. — 14¾ M. Birkenwerder. — 17 M. Havelhausen. — 19½ M. Oranienburg.

FROM BERLIN TO RHEINSBERG, 52 M. The road is good almost throughout. We start from the Schloss-Platz (prohibited streets, see p. 43). — 4½ M. Tegeler Chaussee-Haus, beyond which we keep straight on. — 7½ M. Tegel. — 9½ M. Schulzendorf. — 12½ M. Hennigsdorf. — 13¼ M. Cross the railway to the left. — 17 M. Marwitz. — 19 M. Eichstädt. — 21 M. Vehlefanz. — 21¾ M. Schwante. — 25½ M. Kremmen. Turn to the right at the Rathaus. — 28¾ M. Sommerfeld. — 29¾ M. Beetz. — 34½ M. Rüthenick. — 37 M. Herzberg. — Beyond the village, at kil. stone 13.7, turn to the right. — 39¼ M. Schönberg. — 42 M. Lindow. Here keep to the left. — 43¼ M. Klosterheide. — 46 M. Dierberg. — 47¼ M. Heinrichsdorf. — 49 M. Köpernitz. — 52 M. Rheinsberg.

e. BUCKOW. — Railway to (28½ M.) Dahmsdorf-Müncheberg in 1½ hr. from the Silesian Station (Ostbahn; suburban service as far as Strausberg, comp. p. 13). — 3 M. Lichtenberg-Friedrichsfelde. For Lichtenberg, see p. 169. Friedrichsfelde (with Karlshorst, p. 204) has 18,300 inhabitants. About 1½ M. to the E. of the station is the formerly royal château of Friedrichsfelde, erected under Fred. William I., since 1818 the property of the Von Treskow family, with a large park (visitors admitted). — 5½ M. Biesdorf has a municipal hospital for epileptics. — At (10½ M.) Hoppegarten is the chief race-course of Berlin (p. 30). — 14 M. Friedersdorf (branch-line to Rüdersdorf, see p. 205). — 17½ M. Strausberg.

Branch-line (3 M.) to the N. past a race-course to the town of Strausberg (7900 inhab.; Hôt. Städtfeld; Restaurant Seebad, on the W. bank of the lake), which is pleasantly situated on the Straus-See, to the N. About 1½ M. to the N. of the town begins the Blumen-Tal, a somewhat lonely wood, intersected by two chains of lakelets. On its N.W. margin is Tiefensee (Spitzkrug), a station of the Wriezen railway (25 M. from the Silesian Station).

28½ M. Dahmsdorf-Müncheberg. A branch-line runs hence to (3 M.) —

Buckow (Kronprinz; Bellevue, R. 1½-2½ M.), a little town with 2000 inhab., frequented as a summer-resort. The pleasant lakes and well-wooded, picturesque hills of the neighbourhood have earned for it the title of the Markish Switzerland* (Märkische Schweiz); comp. p. 204. Among the most picturesque points, near Buckow, are the Bollersdorfer Höhe (269 ft.; rfmts.), $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. to the N., above the Schermützel-See; then the Silberkehle, the two Tornow Lakes, and the Pritzhagener Mühle (restaurant).

Cycling Route. FROM BERLIN TO BUCKOW, 39 M. This is an attractive route; the road is good, though hilly; the first $5\frac{1}{2}$ M. are paved. Start from the Alexander-Platz (prohibited streets, see p. 43). — $4\frac{1}{3}$ M. Friedrichsberg-Lichtenberg. — $5\frac{1}{2}$ M. Friedrichsfelde. — 7 M. Biesdorf. — 8 M. Kaulsdorf. — $9\frac{1}{2}$ M. Malsdorf. — $10\frac{3}{4}$ M. Dahlwitz (to the left, road to Hoppegarten). — $14\frac{1}{2}$ M. Vogelsdorf. — 17 M. Tasdorf (digression to the Rüdersdorfer Kalkberge). — 20 M. Herzfelde. — $21\frac{3}{4}$ M. Lichtenow. — $26\frac{1}{4}$ M. Wilder Mann Inn. — 32 M. Müncheberg. Then to the left viâ ($36\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Dahmsdorf to (39 M.) Buckow.

Return-route: $1\frac{1}{4}$ M. Bollersdorf. — $3\frac{3}{4}$ M. Ruhlsdorf. — $8\frac{3}{4}$ M. Strausberg. Then keep to the right to ($16\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Alt-Landsberg. — 19 M. Seeburg. — 21 M. Hönow. — $24\frac{1}{2}$ M. Marzahn. — $31\frac{1}{2}$ M. Berlin (Alexander-Platz).

f. The Spreewald, 37 M. long and from $\frac{1}{2}$ M. to $4\frac{1}{2}$ M. broad, is watered by the Spree, which intersects it in a network of about 200 channels. It is reached from Berlin by the Görlitz railway.

In natural beauty the Lower Spreewald, below Lübben, is the finer part in virtue of the wide expanses of deciduous trees that still cover part of it. In the Upper Spreewald no woods of any size are to be found except in the N.; the W. part is a region of flat pasture-land; while the S.E. (Burg), which is tolerably well populated and has nearly all been brought under the plough, has more the appearance of a wooded park. Nursery-gardening, cattle-rearing, and fishing are the principal industries of the Wendish population, which has here retained its original language and customs. The women still wear a peculiar costume. The villages of Lehde and Leipe, in the pastoral region, are accessible only by water, or in winter over the ice. In the farming district of Burg the widely scattered wooden houses may be reached on foot, but many water-channels have to be crossed by curiously-built bridges. — A visit to the Spreewald is most agreeable in May or September. In summer the gnats are very troublesome.

RAILWAY TO LÜBBEN, $46\frac{1}{2}$ M., in $1\frac{3}{4}$ hr. — To ($17\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Königs-Wusterhausen, see p. 206.

$46\frac{1}{2}$ M. Lübben (Stadt Berlin, R. $1\frac{1}{2}$ – $2\frac{1}{2}$, D. $1\frac{1}{2}$ –2 M.; Goldener Stern, both very fair), an old town with 7200 inhab., is surrounded by four arms of the Spree. Between the station and the (1 M.) town, we pass a pleasant grove with a bronze statue of Minister von Manteuffel (d. 1882), unveiled in 1908. Paul Gerhardt (p. 159), who was archdeacon from 1668, died here in 1676 and is buried in the parish-church, in front of which a monument, by Pfannschmidt, was erected to him in 1907.

Lübben is the best starting-point for an excursion in the Lower SPREEWALD. The most convenient plan is to proceed from Lübben by boat (7–8 M.; ample notice to the boatman should be given at the hotel) viâ Schleppzig (Hôtel zum Unterspreewald) to the Puhl and Gross-Wasserburg (inn), although by this route the woods are not reached until 2 hrs. after starting. An alternative plan is to drive to Schleppzig ($1\frac{1}{2}$ hr.; 5–7 M.) and thence take a boat. — From Gross-Wasserburg (inn) we may either return by boat through the woods to the landing-place of Hartmannsdorf, and walk thence viâ this village to the ($1\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) station of Lübben; or we may proceed by rail from the station of Hartmannsdorf, $1\frac{1}{2}$ M. from the landing-place.

Those bound for the UPPER SPREEWALD go on by railway beyond Lübben to ($53\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Lübbenau (Brauner Hirsch, Deutsches Haus, both in the market-place; in summer rooms should be secured beforehand), a little town with 3800 inhab. and a château and park of Count Lynar. The boatmen of the Spreewald Society may be found stationed at the E. end of the town (1 M. from the station) or may be enquired for at the hotels. Tariff 60 pf. per hr. besides a retaining-fee of 1 M; if the boatman is dismissed at Burg, 2 M 40 are due for his return-journey. The usual boating-trip from Lübbenau (6 hrs., not incl. halts; fatiguing) is that viâ Lehde (see below), the Wotschofska Restaurant (also R., good), the forester's houses of Kannomühle and Eiche (small restaurant near) situated in the woods, and then viâ the Polenz-Schenke Restaurant and Leipe (inn) back to Lübbenau.—An idea of the curious residential and domestic arrangements of the Spreewald may, however, be obtained by a trip (1 M) from Lübbenau viâ the Lübbenauer Kaupen to the ($\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) village of Lehde* (Inn zum Fröhlichen Hecht, with an annexe for tourists, 36 R. at $1\frac{3}{4}$ - $2\frac{1}{4}$, B. $\frac{3}{4}$ M), the 'Venice of the Spreewald'.—An interesting spectacle is offered on Sun. by the gay costumes of the Spreewald women on their way to church at the village of Burg (Inn zum Spreewald, R. $1\frac{1}{2}$, D. $1\frac{1}{2}$ -2 M, very fair, Zur Bleiche, both on the Mühlspree, 50 and 30 min. from the station respectively; Schwarzer Adler, Koch, both in the village). Intending spectators should leave Berlin on Sat. and take the Spreewald Railway (Cottbus branch-line) from Lübben to Burg (spend night). Or they may on Sun. at an early hour proceed by boat viâ Leipe to Burg. After the midday meal, they may take a boat from Burg viâ the forester's houses of Eiche, Kannomühle, etc. (the route mentioned on p. 209 in the reverse direction) to Lübbenau, and return to Berlin by an evening train.

List of the Principal Streets, Squares, Public Buildings, Bridges, etc., of Berlin.

The large Map of Berlin, on the scale of 1:20,000, is divided into three sections, of which the uppermost is coloured brown, the central red, and the lowest gray. Each section contains 42 numbered squares. In the following index the capital letters B, R, G, following the name of a street or building, refer to the different sections, while the numbers correspond with those of the squares in each section. Thus, Admiral-Strasse will be found on the grey section, square 29. If the name sought for is also indicated on the Plan of the Inner Town printed in red (in the scale of 1:12,500; p. 54), this is shown by an I before the first perpendicular line. The numbering of the squares is so arranged, that squares in different sections bearing the same number adjoin each other. Thus, square 15 on the brown section finds its continuation towards the S. in square 15 on the red section.

The squares will also be useful for calculating distances, each side of a square being exactly a kilomètre (1093 yds., or about $\frac{2}{3}$ M.), while the diagonals if drawn would be 1531 yds.

The large Italics (N, O, S, W, C, etc.) following the names of the streets indicate the postal district to which the street belongs.

Abbreviations of names of districts and villages in the environs of Berlin: Box. = Boxhagen; Char. = Charlottenburg; Grun. = Grunewald; Hal. = Halensee; Plö. = Plötzensee; Rix. = Rixdorf; Rum. = Rummelsburg; Schmar. = Schmargendorf; Schön. = Schöneberg; Trep. = Treptow; Weis. = Weissensee; Wilm. = Wilmersdorf.
